Further Papers (No. 8A) relative to the Insurrection in the East Indies.

The President of the Council of India in Council to the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

Fort William, February 9, 1858. (No. 30.)

WE have the honor herewith to transmit, for your information, copy of accompanying correspondence, with a Memorandum drawn up by the Judge Advocate-General of the Army, of the circumstances which, apparently, led to the mutiny of the native army being precipitated.

2. These papers will be laid before the Commission of Inquiry at the proper time.

We have, &c.

Inclosure 1.

The Judge Advocate-General of the Army to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Simla, October 21, 1857.

AS some time must yet elapse ere the proceedings of the general court-martial, held at Meerut on the 6th May last, in the trial of the eighty-five non-commissioned officers and troopers of the 3rd Light Cavalry, can be submitted to his Excellency the Commander-in-chief, and transmitted for the information of the Governor-General of India in Council, I have the honor to forward the accompanying Memorandum of the circumstances which, apparently, led to the mutiny of the native army being precipitated, and which I lose no time in forwarding, now that the communication with Calcutta has been restored.

I have, &c.

KEITH YOUNG, Lieutenant-Colonel,

Judge Advocate-General of the Army.

P.S.—Copies of these papers have been sent to the Chief Commissioner of the Punjab, for his information, with letter No. 586 of this date, of which a copy is inclosed, and a copy also of the Memorandum, in a demi-official form, has been forwarded to the Commissioner of Scinde.

Inclosure 2.

Memorandum of the circumstances which led to the Trial of Muttadien Sing, Havildar, and eighty-four others, Naicks and Troopers of the 3rd Light Cavalry

Judge Advocate-General's Office, Simla, October 21, 1857.

ON the 24th April, 1857, Brevet-Colonel Smyth, commanding the 3rd Light Cavalry, addressed the following letter to the Major of Brigade at Meerut:—

"Sir,

"I have the honor to report, for the information of the officer commanding the station, that, yesterday, I ordered a parade to take place this morning, for the purpose of showing the men the new mode by which they might load their carbines without biting their cartridges; and, late in the evening, I received information from the Havildar-Major that the men of the first troop would not receive their cartridges (which were the same that they always used), and my Adjutant received a letter from Captain Craigie, copy of which is inclosed. This morning I explained to the men my reason for ordering the parade, and I first ordered the Havildar-Major to show them the new way of loading, which he did, and fired off his carbine. I then ordered the cartridges to be served out, but, with the exception of the men noted in the margin,* they all refused to receive them, saying they would get a bad name if they took them, but that, if all the regiment would take their cartridges, they would do so. I explained to them that they were not new cartridges, but the very same they had always been using, and once more called on them to receive the cartridges, but, with the exception of the men above mentioned, they all still refused: after which I ordered the Adjutant to dismiss the men, as they were too large a party to send to the guard. The party consisted of ninety men."

2. On the receipt of this letter, a Court of Inquiry was assembled by Major-General Hewitt, commanding the Meerut division, with the view to elicit facts, if possible, to elucidate the cause of the refusal of the men of the 3rd Light Cavalry to use the cartridges on the 24th April, and to ascertain if there was anything objectionable in them.

3. The Court of Inquiry, which was held on the following day (April 25), was composed of the following native officers:—

Subadar-Major Thakoor Awnstie, 20th Native Infantry,
Subadar Gungadeen Dooley, 20th Native Infantry;
Subadar Ranehurn, 3rd Light Cavalry;
Subadar Gunness Sing, 20th Native Infantry;
Subadar Golab Khan, 3rd Light Cavalry;
Subadar Buxors Sing, 20th Native Infantry,
Jemadar Fyze Khan, 3rd Light Cavalry.

4. This shows three Cavalry and four Infantry officers (the 11th Regiment had not reached Meerut, it is believed), as composing the Court, and there were two Mahomedans, two Brahmins, two (apparently) Chuttries, and one (apparently) inferior caste Hindoo. The late Captain Macdonald, 20th Native Infantry, was superintending officer, assisted by Major Harriott, Deputy Judge Advocate-General of the division; and Captain Earle, 20th Native Infantry, was interpreter.

5. Before this Court, the Quartermaster-Havildar, a havildar the regimental tindal, and the senior havildar, and the senior Mahomedan trooper of each troop, were examined. The Quartermaster-Havildar, a Hindoo, knew nothing of the making up of the particular cartridges, but he stated: "I know of nothing which should prevent either Hindoo or Mussulman using them. The cartridges are unobjectionable; they are the same as have been in use with the regiment for years. There is no grease in them." Hereupon the witness was directed to produce some of the cartridges, he did so, without hesitation. The members of the court examined them, and observed that "they are exactly similar to what have been in use in the service for thirty and forty years."

6. The havildar, a Hindoo, who superintended the making up of these very cartridges, said, "There is nothing whatever about them that either Hindoo or Mussulman can consider objectionable; they are precisely the same as have been in use for years with the regiment; they were made in the regimental magazine, as heretofore, by the regimental classies."

7. The tindal, a Hindoo, states, "The present cartridges were made up by myself and the classies of the regiment; they are precisely the same in paper, and in all materials, as they have been ever since I have been in the regiment, and that is thirty-three years. Till now I never heard an objection of any kind against them, and even now I cannot understand what point in particular is objected to. I have never heard anything beyond general rumour, which no one is able to particularize."

8. Of the twelve troopers examined, not one could point out anything objectionable in the cartridges; they spoke of the suspicion of impurity of some kind, though, of its nature, not one knew anything. Moollah Bux (Mahomedan) when questioned on the subject, insolently replied, "I have doubt about the cartridges; they, apparently, look like old ones, but they may, for aught I know, have pigs' fat rubbed over them." The next witness, a Hindoo, voluntarily handled the cartridges, to show that he considered them perfectly unobjectionable. It may be here remarked, that not only had no objectionable cartridges been served to the 3rd Regiment Light Cavalry, but, so far as is known, none fit for carbines had been received at Meerut when the mutiny occurred:

* Hoera Sing, Havildar, 4th Troop; Persaud Sing, Havildar, 5th Troop; Golam Nubbie Khan, Havildar 5th Troop; Shuaib Golam Mahomed, Naik, 6th Troop; Delawin Khan, Naik, 6th Troop.

9. The opinion of the Court of Inquiry is contained in the following words —

"The Court, having attentively weighed the evidence given before them, are of opinion that no adequate cause can be assigned for the disobedience of Colonel Smyth's orders by the men of the 3rd Light Cavalry, in refusing to receive and use the cartridges that were served out: the only conclusion the Court can arrive at in regard to this point, is that a report seems to have got abroad, which, in some vague form, attaches suspicion of impurity to the materials used for making these cartridges; but the Court are unanimously of opinion that there is nothing whatever objectionable in the cartridges of the 3rd Light Cavalry, and that they may be freely received and used as heretofore, without, in the slightest degree, affecting any religious scruple of either a Hindoo or Mussulman; and, if any pretence, contrary to this, is urged, that it must be false."

10. When the proceedings of the Court of Inquiry reached the late Commander-in-chief, General Anson, accompanied by Colonel Smyth's report, his Excellency ordered the mutinous soldiers (of whom forty-nine were Mahomedans and thirty-six were Hindoos) to be tried by a native general court-martial, on the following charge:—

For having, at Meerut, on the 24th of April, 1857, severally and individually, disobeyed the lawful command of their superior officer, Brevet-Colonel G. M. C. Smyth, commanding the 3rd Regiment of Light Cavalry, by not having taken the cartridges tendered to each of them, individually, for use, that day on parade, when ordered by Colonel Smyth to take the said cartridges.

11. The Court sat on the 6th, 7th, and 8th of May, and was composed of six Mahomedan and nine Hindoo native officers, taken from the following corps:—

Artillery, 3rd company 7th battalion ..	0 Mahomedan ..	1 Hindoo.
3rd Light Cavalry ..	1 ..	1 ..
11th Native Infantry ..	3 ..	2 ..
20th Native Infantry ..	0 ..	2 ..
38th Native Infantry ..	1 ..	1 ..
54th Native Infantry ..	1 ..	1 ..
74th Native Infantry ..	0 ..	1 ..

12. At the trial, the evidence of Colonel Smyth was as follows:—

Examined by Judge Advocate:

Q. On the 24th of April, 1857, were you commanding the 3rd Regiment of Light Cavalry?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you any of the troopers of your regiment on parade that morning?

A. Yes; including non-commissioned officers and troopers, 90 men.

Q. Were the prisoners in Court amongst those 90 men?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Did they, on that occasion, disobey any lawful command you gave; if so, state the circumstances?

A. Yes, they did disobey my lawful command. Each of the troopers, on being ordered by me to take their cartridges from the Kote duffadars, who tendered them to them, refused to do so, saying, "if all will take the cartridges, we will take them." I then separately and individually ordered each of the prisoners to take the cartridges; each man refused, saying, "I shall get a bad name if I do so:" this was the only plea that any of them urged; not one of them alleged any scruple of religion, but simply declared that he would get a bad name among his comrades if he took them. Previous to ordering the men to take their cartridges, I made the havildar-major load and fire off his carbine, to show them how it could be loaded without putting the cartridge to the mouth; this the havildar-major did before them. When they had all refused the cartridges, I pointed out to them that the havildar-major had used these cartridges; that there was no grease of any kind on them, and that they were the same as they had always used, and that they had better take them. With these men on parade were 5 others, non-commissioned officers, who made no objection to taking the cartridges; I made these 5 men, who had obeyed my orders, advance a short distance in front of the prisoners, to follow the example those men had set them, but not one of them would do so (sic).

The prisoners, one and all, ended by disobeying the orders I gave them on parade, and as this was the case I caused the parade to be dismissed, and reported the circumstance for the information of the officer commanding the station.

Cross-examined :

Meer Kudrat Ally, Naick, No. 232, puts the following question :—

Q. Did you show us the cartridges that we might see whether they were old ones or new ones ?

A. The Kote duffadars had them in their hands ; you might have examined them in any way, but you refused to touch them.

Q. Were the cartridges, which we refused, put aside and confined with us ?

A. No ; all the cartridges of the regiment are precisely the same ; there are not two kinds.

The other prisoners decline to cross-examine.

Examined by the Court :

Q. Why did you tell the men they would have to fire, instead of merely ordering them to do so ?

A. The parade was in orders the day before, and entered in the order-book as usual, and each man was ordered to receive three cartridges. I wished to show them the new way of loading without putting the cartridge to the mouth, and attended the parade for that purpose ; when I came on parade, the Adjutant informed me that the men had not taken their cartridges, and it was on that account I ordered the havildar-major to take a cartridge and load and fire before them ; and it was then, also, that I said, when the whole army heard of this way of loading, that they would be all much pleased and exclaim " Wah, wah ! "

13. The defence of the prisoners made by Mulladeen, havildar, on behalf of himself and others, was in the following words :—

" On the evening of the 23rd ultimo, at about half-past 7 o'clock, about five or six men of the 3rd Troop were standing in the lines ; they were saying to each other that Brijmohun Sing had just said that he had that day fired off two of the new greased cartridges ; there will be a parade to-morrow morning, the Colonel and the Adjutant be present, and the new greased cartridges are to be used ; we shall then see whether any one, Hindoo or Mussulman, will refuse to use them. After this, a number of us said to each other, if we use the greased cartridges, we shall lose our caste, and shall never again be able to return to our homes. We then consulted as to what was to be done, and came to the conclusion that we ought to report the circumstances to the Captains of our troops, so that something might be done to save our caste. The native officers of troops reported the circumstances to the Captains commanding troops. We all went to our respective huts. Early in the morning, as we were ordered to turn out for parade, we all went there without knowing what had been done or said the night before by Captains of troops. The Adjutant came down to parade shortly afterwards ; and then the Colonel stood in front of the skirmishers, and said, ' I have invented something ; listen to what I am about to say : if you will fire off these cartridges, the Commander-in-chief will be much pleased, and you will have a great name, and I shall likewise get great praise ; and I will have the whole affair published in the papers.' The Colonel called the havildar-major to the front, and said to him, ' take a carbine, load, and fire it off in the way I showed you yesterday ; ' and then he said to us that we should have to load and fire in the same manner. The havildar-major brought his carbine to his side ; and, having handled his cartridge, was about to bite off the end, when the Colonel stopped him, saying, ' tear it with your hands ; ' he loaded and fired. The Colonel then said, ' Where are the cartridges ? bring them here.' Kote duffadars brought the cartridges tied up in cloth. The Colonel went to the right, and said, ' Will you take those cartridges ? ' All said, ' No, we won't take them ; ' we would not take them, as we had great doubts about them, as the Colonel had to induce us to take them—a thing he had never done before. When the Colonel had put us three about to dismiss us from the parade, we begged to make a statement to him. He fronted us, and we said, ' If the other regiments will fire one cartridge, we will fire ten.' The Colonel said, ' There are no other cartridges for other men.' We said, ' There are pistols.' The Colonel then again put us three about, and dismissed us."

14. By the votes of fourteen out of the fifteen native officers, the whole of the prisoners were convicted, and sentenced to imprisonment with hard labour for ten years each. But the Court solicited favorable consideration for the prisoners, on account of the good character which they had hitherto borne, as testified to by their commanding officer, and on account of their having been misled by vague report regarding the cartridges.

15. Major-General Hewitt approved and confirmed the sentence, and made the following remarks :—

" I will gladly attend to the recommendation of the Court, if I could."

anything in the conduct of the prisoners that would warrant me in so doing. Their former good character has been blasted by present misbehaviour; and their having allowed themselves to be influenced by vague reports, instead of attending to the advice, and obeying the orders, of their European superiors, is the gist of the offence for which they have been condemned. It appears, from these proceedings, that these misguided men, after consultation together, on the night of the 23rd of April, 1857, came to the resolution of refusing their cartridges, having so far forgotten their duty as soldiers. Their next step was, to send word to the troop Captains that they would not take cartridges unless the whole of the troops in the station would do so likewise. Some of them even had the insolence to desire that firing parades might be deferred till the agitation about cartridges among the native troops had come to a close. In this state of insubordination they appeared on parade on the morning of the 24th, and then consummated the crime for which they are now to suffer, by repeatedly refusing cartridges that had been made as usual in their regimental magazine, when assured, too, by Colonel Smyth, that the cartridges had no grease on them: that they were old ones, and exactly similar to what had been in use in the regiment for thirty or forty years. Even now they attempt to justify so gross an outrage upon discipline, by alleging that they had doubts of the cartridges. There has been no acknowledgment of error, no expression of regret, no pleading for mercy.

"To the majority of the prisoners no portion of the sentence will be remitted. I observe, however, that some of them are very young, and I am willing to make allowance for their having been misled by their more experienced comrades; and, under these circumstances, I remit one half of the sentence passed upon the following men, who have not been more than five years in the service;" and then follow the names of eleven troopers.

16. The prisoners having been delivered over to the Civil Power on the 9th of May, the Native Cavalry and Infantry at Meerut mutinied on the evening of the following day, and proceeded to Delhi, where they were joined by the native troops at that station. It will be seen that the general court-martial was formed of native officers from all the corps that mutinied on the 10th and 11th of May, and the President of the court-martial, the Subadar-Major of the 38th Light Infantry, was afterwards, it has been said, one of the principal leaders of the mutineers.

17. When a report of the result of the trial was made to the late General Anson, it was intimated that the mutineers, before being made over to the Civil Power, were put in irons on the parade-ground in the presence of their regiment. His Excellency approved of the sentence that had been passed upon the prisoners, but expressed his regret at this unusual procedure. Nothing more was heard regarding the mutineers till the receipt of the telegraphic message giving information of the mutiny, and of their release from jail.

Judge Advocate-General of the Army.

Inclosure 3.

The Judge Advocate-General of the Army to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

October 31, 1857.

IN continuation of my letter of the 21st instant, regarding the case of the troopers 3rd Light Cavalry, I have the honor to annex a copy of a letter of the 28th instant, this day received from the Assistant Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Punjab.

I have, &c.

KEITH YOUNG, Lieutenant-Colonel,
Judge Advocate-General of the Army

Inclosure 4.

The Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Punjab to the Judge Advocate-General of the Army.

Sir,

Lahore, October 28, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant, forwarding Memorandum of the circumstances leading to the trial of native officers and men of the 3rd Light Cavalry, previous to the outbreak of the Meerut mutiny, and with reference to the erroneous impression which the account of that event, as laid by Colonel Sykes before Parliament in the debate of the 11th August last, is calculated to convey both to the people of England and also to natives of this country.

The Chief Commissioner is of opinion that subsequent events occurring with such a unity of plan and operation through the length and breadth of the land is an ample refutation of the statement of Colonel Sykes, which at the present time is of no power either for good or ill.

Under this view of the case, the Chief Commissioner desires me to return the documents, the publication of which he trusts you will agree with him in thinking can be safely delayed, till the opportunity offers for forwarding them to the Supreme Government.

I have, &c.

W. WYLD, Captain,
Assistant Military Secretary.

Inclosure 5.

The Judge Advocate-General of the Army to the Military Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Punjab.

Sir,

October 21, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to forward, for the information of the Chief Commissioner, copies of a letter and memorandum which I purpose dispatching, for submission to the Governor-General of India, as soon as direct postal communication is established with Calcutta.

2. The Chief Commissioner will doubtless have observed, as reported in the public journals, the erroneous account of the mutiny at Meerut which Colonel Sykes is stated to have laid before Parliament in the debate of the 11th August last. Coming from such high authority, the statement made by him will, of course, be received, not only in England, but throughout India, as the correct version of what actually occurred at Meerut, and it will probably be some time before Colonel Sykes is placed in possession of the true facts of the case, to enable him to explain to the House of Commons, and through it to the world at large, the error into which he had been led by some ignorant or designing individual. In the interim, the effect, as it appears to me, may be very prejudicial, for it will be generally believed that the commanding officer of the 3rd Cavalry endeavored to force the objectionable greased cartridges upon his men, and that the Commander-in-chief of the army abetted him in so insane a proceeding.

3. I would beg to suggest, therefore, for the consideration of the Chief Commissioner, whether, in justice to the late General Anson, and with the view to counteract the unfavorable impression such a belief may have, especially amongst the native community, it will not be desirable to take immediate measures for making as public as possible a correct statement of the circumstances originating the mutiny at Meerut; and Sir John Lawrence may, perhaps, agree with me that the best mode of doing this will be to allow the editor of the "Lahore Chronicle" to publish in the next number of his paper the inclosed memorandum, or such portions of it as may be thought sufficient for the purpose, with an intimation that it has been furnished him from your office, by direction of the Chief Commissioner.

4. I may here also remark, that Colonel Sykes appears to have been equally misinformed as to the origin of the disaffection in the 19th Regiment Native Infantry in the month of February last, the cartridges which the men of his corps declined to take not having been greased cartridges, but those of the common kind that had been up to that period in use in the regiment, and containing nothing whatever objectionable in them.

I have, &c

KEITH YOUNG, Lieutenant-Colonel,
Judge Advocate-General of the Army.

*The Governor-General of India in Council to the Court of Directors of the Fort William, January 9, 1858. (No. 5.)

WE have the honor to transmit herewith, for your information, a continuation of the narrative forwarded with our separate letter of the 24th ultimo, taken from correspondence and messages by the electric telegraph, of what has occurred at different stations in this Presidency in connection with the disturbed state of affairs.

Inclosure 1 in No. 1.

Narrative of Events, dated January 11, 1858.

[The Narrative transmitted by the mail dispatched on the 24th ultimo, contained the news received up to that date.]

Fort William, January 11, 1858.

Agra.—A LETTER of the 25th December from Agra mentions that Scindia had arrived there on a visit.

Allahabad.—Brigadier Campbell had an action on the 5th January, with the rebel Nazim, near Secundra, killing upwards of 350 of the insurgents. Our loss was only one private killed, and one sepoy wounded, and fifteen horses killed and wounded.

The Engineers have received instructions with unlimited authority to provide accommodation for 4000 European soldiers.

Allyghur.—Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton left Delhi on the 6th December with a column escorting an immense convoy of provisions, stores, and establishments for the camp of the Commander-in-Chief. This convoy he left under the guns of the Fort at Allyghur on the 11th, and proceeded into the district against the insurgents. He engaged them at Gungeree on the 14th, and at Putteealla on the 17th, utterly routing them, and inflicting a heavy loss on both occasions, capturing in all fifteen guns, which have been sent into Allyghur. Colonel Seaton reached Mynpoorie, which he re-occupied on the 27th December, took six guns, and cut up 250 of the enemy, who retreated, none killed, it is believed, on our side. The greater part of the grain and flour has been stored at Allyghur, but on carts ready to be sent on at a moment's notice—and on the spare elephants and camels—the tents, quilts, blankets, doolie bearers, hospital, and barrack establishments, and such things as are most required by European troops recently arrived, are ordered down to join Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton at Mynpoorie. It is since reported that Colonel Seaton's column has reached Bewar, and that a communication has been opened with the Commander-in-Chief's camp.

Azinghur.—The magistrate of Azinghur reports that firing was heard in the direction of Gorruckpore during the 4th of January.

Banda.—No news.

Barrackpore (Fort William).—The 70th Regiment Native Infantry has sailed for Hongkong in the transport "Mauritius," and Her Majesty's steam frigate "Adventure." The recruit depôt at Barrackpore has been broken up, and the men sent up the country.

The following vessels with troops have arrived since the 24th ultimo.

The steamer "Hydaspes" on the 28th December with Royal Artillery on board.

The mail steamer "Bengal" on the 31st December with two sergeants, two corporals, and twenty sappers from Malta.

The steamer "Cleopatra," and ship "Defiance" on the 8th instant, from Madras, the former with 66 camp followers, 11 tattoos and 114 bullocks, and the latter with 431 camp followers, 61 bullocks, and 13 tattoos.

Barilly.—The following refugees have, it is reported at Agra, been rescued from Rohileund, Captain J. Y. Gowan, 18th Native Infantry; Serjeant-Major Belcham, wife and four children; Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson, and a married sister of the latter; Mr. and Mrs. Porter; Mr. Porter, junior; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Maclean and infant; Thomas Peters; Mr. and Mrs. J. Peters; Mr. and Mrs. M. Peters, and two children; Isaac, Native Christian, wife and infant; Sergeant Hardy, wife and four children; William Hardy, nephew; Mr. and Mrs. J. Steers, and infant; Mr. and Mrs. H. Matthews, and three children; Benjamin Lake, nephew, and Kishna, servant of Mr. H. Matthews; Mrs. Betsy Roberts and son—forty-five persons in all.

Benares.—All quiet; arrangements are in progress for the erection of barracks and accommodation for the European troop establishment to be located at this station.

Bhopaul.—The Bombay column crossed the Nerbudda into the Bhopaul territory on the 8th December.

Cawnpore.—A column under the command of Brigadier Walpole of the Rifle Brigade, left Cawnpore on the 18th December, and occupied Etawah on the 29th. The insurgents fled towards Furruckabad.

The Commander-in-Chief left Cawnpore on the 24th December, for the advance on Futteghur, which he reached and occupied on the 3rd instant. On the 2nd, the rebels attacked the working party who were repairing the bridge over the Kallie Nudda on the road to Futteghur, which had been previously destroyed, but were repulsed with heavy loss. after a skirmish of some duration, all their guns, seven in number, were captured in the pursuit. Inroads have been made into the Cawnpore District by the rebels from Calpee and from Oude, but not in large force.

A good deal of miscellaneous property belonging to the Nana has been captured in the district, and at Bithoor some gold and silver plate has been recovered from a well, and more is expected.

Chittagong.—All quiet.

Chuprah.—A large number of rebels are said to have collected at Burhal, supposed to be desirous of escaping from Goruckpore into Behar.

Chyebassa.—A small detachment of Sikh volunteers, under the command of Captain Hale, left Chyebassa on the 25th to quell an insurrection amongst a portion of the Cole tribes. He came upon a body of them about 2,000 strong the same day, and dispersed them, inflicting some loss on them. On proceeding to the north-west of Chyebassa, he found that they had entirely left that part of the country, but hearing that they were collecting to the southward, and threatening an advance on Chyebassa, he returned to that place, and as soon as he can obtain correct information, he hopes to attack and disperse them. This insurrection is not thought to be a general rising of the Cole tribes, as many of their head men, with their followers, have come in upon the order of the Civil authority—but the insurgents number about 5,000, and though they can easily be dispersed, Captain Hall cannot with his small available force surround them and make a signal example of them.

Dacca.—All quiet. The Sylhet Light Infantry met the Chittagong rebels at Satoo, in the Sylhet District, on the 18th December, and defeated them, killing thirty-eight, the remainder fled into the jungles. Our loss was very slight, but Major the Hon. R. P. Byng, commanding the Sylhet Light Infantry, was unfortunately mortally wounded, and died on the same day. The Sylhet Infantry came across these mutineers again on the 1st January. They were retreating towards Munninpore. They again defeated them with loss, and are still in pursuit of them. The Sylhet Infantry, including the Hindostanees of the corps, behaved admirably.

Delhi.—A detailed report of the action fought by the column under Lieutenant-Colonel Gerrard with the Joudpore Legion, accompanies this narrative. This took place at Namool on the 16th of November, and not on the 4th as previously supposed. The enemy numbered about 1000 Infantry, 2500 Cavalry, and 8 guns. They were defeated with the loss of their guns, and about 350 killed and wounded, 300 bodies having been counted in the field. Our loss was 6 officers wounded (Colonel Gerrard, mortally, and died same day), and 76 non-commissioned rank and file killed and wounded. The Nawab of Jhuggur has been hung.

The Commander-in-Chief arrived at and re-occupied this place on the 3rd January. It was found evacuated by the rebels who had fled on the night of the 2nd, after their defeat at the Kallie Nudda. It is said that they took away 3 guns. The heavy guns were found in position, and a considerable amount of stores belonging to the gun-carriage and clothing agencies have been recovered. His Excellency was also in communication with Colonel Seaton's column.

Futtehpoore.—A small party under the command of Colonel Barker, Royal Artillery, left Futtehpoore on the 11th December for the purpose of clearing out some villages, the inhabitants of which were known to be disaffected and notorious, not only for harbouring mutineers and turbulent characters, but for arming themselves and driving off the police. This has been most successfully done, the known bad villages having been destroyed, a few armed men were shot in some of them, and many prisoners taken, some of whom have been executed, and others made over to the civil authorities. After the first village was surprized, the men spread, and they were for the most part found evacuated; the inhabitants of the good villages alone remaining in their houses; the number of boats on the Jumna facilitated the escape of the rebels. The column took a circuitous route in order to exhibit the troops to the inhabitants of the district and returned to Futtehpoore on the 17th. The movement has been of much benefit. Revenue having been sent in and supplies promised, and the magistrate anticipates no difficulty in re-establishing his police in most of the places visited.

Goruckpoore.—Brigadier-General MacGregor joined the camp of the Goorka Army on the 23rd December, at Bettial, on the 30th the whole of Jung Bahadoor's force had completed the passage of the Gunduck. One brigade was in advance, and the rebels had retired to Captaingunge. The whole force was expected to reach Goruckpoore on the 5th or 6th January.

A party of the Goruckpoore rebels were attacked on the 27th December by the force under Colonel Rowcroft, and the naval Brigade under Captain Sotheby, and driven back to Mughowlic with the loss of three out of four guns, ammunition, camp, &c. No officer touched on our side.

Gwalior.—Nothing new. Scindia is absent on a visit to Agra.

Hazareebaugh.—Nothing new.

Jaunpoore.—Brigadier-General Frank's Force is divided into three columns. One opposite Azinghur, another in the centre, a few miles in advance of Jaunpoore, and the third further to the westward at Budlapore, each consists of an European Regiment, 1000 Goorkhas, and 6 guns, besides 2-18 pounders, with the centre column.

The rebels are committing excesses in the district, about 120 miles from Jaunpoore.

Jelpigoree.—A party under Captain the Hon. E. G. Curzon, which had gone out in pursuit of the Dacca rebels, was still at Phollaree on the 27th December, not having been able to come across them, but it was reported that Mr. Yule had started with a party to attack them. It appears that he missed the main body, but came across a few stragglers, they were in full flight towards the west, this was on the 28th; on the same night news came in that a small body of rebels who had not crossed with the remainder were about to cross at a small ghat near camp; a small party was detached and concealed to attack them on landing. This they did, but owing to imperfect light were unable to disperse the whole of eleven who landed, four were killed, and one made prisoner, he was afterwards hanged. The remainder escaped.

Jubbulpore.—All quiet at Jubbulpore. The first portion of the column was expected to arrive early in January, when they hoped to attack Bijryrajghur.

Lahore.—All quiet in the Punjab.

Lucknow.—Sir J. Outram attacked a party of the enemy on the 22nd December, and dispersed them, capturing four guns with several waggons of ammunition and an elephant. Our loss was trifling.

The insurgents in Lucknow are said to be strongly fortifying themselves, especially at the Kaisar Bagh.

Mhow.—No news.

Midnapore.—All quiet.

Meerut.—A party of Europeans and Goorkhas are watching the ghats of the Ganges in the neighbourhood of Hardwar, but it is not expected that the rebels will make any attempt to cross from Rohilkund.

Mirzapore.—The 47th Native Infantry has received orders to come down to the Presidency for the purpose of embarking for foreign service (China). This corps is one of those raised for "General Service," and subject at any time to be ordered on foreign service. It has of late, however, repeatedly expressed its desire to be sent, and is now under orders.

Nagode.—Captain Osborne carried the city of Myhere by storm on the 29th December, and took the Fort of Myhere on the 3rd January.

Mohund Sing is a prisoner.

Captain Osborne intended to send the main body of his force to besiege Bijryrajghur.

Nagpore.—All reported quiet in this province.

Nusseerabad.—No news.

Oudh.—No news except that reported under the head of Lucknow.

Patna.—All quiet.

Rajpoochna.—Nothing new.

Rewah.—Captain Osborne took the Fort of Myhere on the 3rd January (see under Nagode).

Saugor.—All safe in the fort; the district is still disturbed, and will remain so until the arrival of troops, shortly expected from the Madras and Bombay columns.

Sehore.—No news.

Trunk Road.—The Trunk Road is now open to Mynpoorie for which place the mail cart has again started from Cawnpore.

No event of moment reported from Azimghur. Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton, Commanding Moveable Column, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Mynpoorie, December 28, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that I reached this place yesterday, and found Rajah Tej Sing's force posted outside the cantonments. I attacked him at once, routed them, took six guns, and killed about 250 of his rabble. I took possession of the town at once, which I found nearly deserted. I had only two men wounded.

Since I left Delhi, this little force of 1959 men has captured 22 guns and killed 1400 insurgents. I shall remain here until the 31st, and, on that morning, march for Bhowgong, to cover the march of the convoy, and be on the main road ready to communicate with his Excellency's camp. I have sent six letters to your address, but have not as yet received any reply. I shall await his Excellency's orders, and be prepared to move with the convoy the moment I hear of his Excellency's approach. The guns I captured at Gungeera and Putteella, I sent in to Allyghur. Nine of them are of our own manufacture. Of the guns captured yesterday, one is a fine new pattern 8-inch howitzer, and was the fitting-gun of the carriage manufactory at Putteghur. Rajah Tej Sing fled to Bhowgong yesterday with only 16 horsemen.

Inclosure 16 in No. 1.

Major-General Penny, Commanding Delhi Field Force, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Delhi, November 24, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to forward for submission to the Commander-in-Chief, Captain Caulfield's report, with its inclosures, of the action fought by the moveable column, to the command of which he succeeded on the death of Lieutenant-Colonel Gerrard, with the Joudpore Legion, and other insurgents, at Narnool, on the 16th instant.

I have, &c.

N. PENNY.

Inclosure 17 in No. 1.

Captain Caulfield, Commanding Moveable Column, to Deputy-Assistant Adjutant-General.

Sir,

Camp near Narnool, November 18, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of Major-General Penny, C.B., commanding Meerut Division, that the moveable column, under command of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Gerrard, marched from Kawonde at 1 A.M. on the morning of the 16th instant. Owing to the slow progress made by the heavy guns, the column did not reach this place till 11 A.M. About two miles before arriving here, we passed a small village on our right; and some of the Guide Cavalry, who were sent to reconnoitre, brought back with them the jemadar of the village, who informed us that the enemy, numbering 1000 Infantry, and 25,000 Cavalry, [?] with eight guns, (of which, however, only five were mounted), were encamped to the left of the village of Narnool, on the other side of a nullah, and that they intended to come out to meet us.

The jemadar came with us, willingly, to point out their position, and brought us to the edge of a very large plain with hills on either side, and, at the opposite end, slightly wooded.

There we halted until the heavy guns came up, when Colonel Gerrard formed up the column. The Carabiniers and Guides on the right, then the 7th Punjab Infantry, Horse-Artillery, 1st European Bengal Fusileers, heavy guns, 23rd Punjab Infantry, Puttecalla Infantry, Sikh Horse-Artillery, and the Cavalry under Captain Stafford. In this order we advanced; the Infantry in quarter-distance column, at deploying distance, Colonel Gerrard leading in front of the left flank of the 1st Fusileers, and very soon perceived the enemy advancing to meet us.

After going about 100 yards, the enemy opened fire from three guns with round shot, grape, and shrapnel.

The order was then given to deploy into line at the double, and for the guns on both flanks to advance, while the heavy guns opened fire, at once. After about five minutes, the enemy's fire, (having slackened a little), the Carabiniers and Guides were ordered to charge by Captain Wardlaw, while the whole line advanced rapidly. The charge was most brilliantly executed under command of Captain Wardlaw, of the Carabiniers, the enemy's Cavalry met them without flinching, and engaged them hand to hand. They swept along the whole front and through the guns, and returned to their former position. The enemy's guns opened again with grape on the advancing line, but the 1st Fusileers, who were immediately in front of them, now charged them in the most gallant and spirited manner, and captured two of them, the other was taken by the Mooltanee Horse, more to the left. The line again formed and advanced. The enemy disputing every foot of ground with determination and inclining to the right, the left flank crossing a deep and broad nullah, and clearing some thick brush jungle, came in view of the village of Narnool on our right, and the enemy's camp across the nullah on some rising ground in front.

Colonel Gerrard himself brought up the Horse-Artillery to bear upon the camp, and ordered the line to advance. At that moment he was mortally wounded, and the command of the force now fell upon me as next senior officer present.

I was then leading the 1st Fusileers across the nullah, and we charged the enemy's camp, followed by the Punjab Infantry, and captured two more guns, which were keeping up a heavy and destructive fire.

I was afterwards obliged to withdraw the Fusileers to support the guns which I now opened on the village.

The enemy returned in force, and re-possessed themselves of the guns and camp, and again opened fire. I immediately sent two companies of the 1st Fusileers, and two companies of the Punjab Infantry, and a party of the Carabiniers and Guides to retake them. They succeeded in taking one, but the enemy withdrew the other to a large pukka-serai, where they now took refuge.

I ordered the Guide Infantry, under Lieutenant Ward, to advance gradually upon them, occupying the tops of the intermediate houses with the heavy guns in their rear. The light guns I ordered round to the left of the serai, where there was a single door, the other one opening into the street being a strong double one. By the time the guns had got round and opened fire, the Guides had taken possession of a high house commanding the serai, and compelled the enemy to evacuate it. This being reported to me, I ordered the guns to cease firing, and the Fusileers and 7th Punjab Infantry advanced into the serai, taking the gun at the door, and killing the few of the enemy that remained inside.

The ground we had advanced over during the day was between two and three miles, and it was now late, so I ordered the Fusileers, and Punjab Infantry, and Guide Infantry to occupy the serai during the night, while Captain Stafford, with his force, bivouacked on the enemy's encamping ground. Early the following morning I cleared the city with a party of the Fusileers, and found it nearly deserted. The three dismounted guns were found in their camp, and I have ordered one, an old worthless one, to be destroyed. The enemy having fled in different directions, I was unable to follow them up.

I should estimate the loss of the enemy at 350 killed and wounded, 300 bodies were counted on the field. I have the honor to enclose a return of casualties in the force under my command, for the information of the Major-General.

My reason for not moving the guns earlier to the left was, that a large body of men appeared on our right, and I was not certain whether they were friends or enemies, they proved to be friends. I did not send the Cavalry in pursuit, owing to the lateness of the hour, and the men having been in their saddles since 1 A.M.

I sent a party under Captain Wardlaw the next morning as soon as I could procure information as to the probable route taken by the enemy. He followed them nearly as far as Kantee, but saw no signs of them.

I omitted to mention, that previous to taking the gun on the left, Lieutenant Lind, with the Mooltan Horse, charged the enemy's Cavalry on that flank, and cut up about thirty of them.

I have the honor to enclose the report of Captain Stafford, commanding detachment, together with a return of his killed and wounded, also the reports of Captain Wardlaw, commanding Cavalry on the right, and Lieutenant Lind, commanding Mooltanee Horse.

My thanks are due to all ranks for the gallantry displayed, especially to Officers commanding corps and detachments, but I would bring to the particular notice of the Major-General the names of Captain Wardlaw, of the Carabincers, and Lieutenant Cookworthy, commanding 1st Troop 3rd Brigade Horse-Artillery (too much praise cannot be given to these Officers), and I trust the Major-General will bring their names to the favorable notice of the Commander-in-Chief; Captain Stafford, commanding detachment Hurrianah Field Force; Lieutenant Lind, commanding Mooltanee Horse; Lieutenant Humphreys, Engineers (this officer charged a party of the enemy's Cavalry, and, when wounded and unhorsed, fought his way out on foot); Lieutenant Money, Acting Adjutant 1st European Bengal Fusileers, when going to his assistance, had his horse shot under him. This officer was of great use to Colonel Gerrard, as his detachment staff. Great credit is due to Lieutenant Ward, 5th Native Infantry, doing duty with Guide Infantry, for the manner in which he took his men into the city. I was also much pleased with Lieutenant Godley, commanding 7th Punjab Infantry; Lieutenant Wallace, 1st Fusileers, was wounded while acting as my orderly-officer; Lieutenant Hogg, of the Commissariat; and Captain Osborn, 54th Native Infantry, were of great use to Colonel Gerrard and myself as orderly-officers.

I would also beg the Major-General to bring to the notice of the Chief Commissioner, the invaluable services of Mr. Ford, collector of Gourgaon, his exertions in obtaining information and supplies, have been most indefatigable.

Captain Stafford makes favorable mention of Lieutenant Warner, 1st Fusileers, and Lieutenants Pearce, Hamilton, Hunt, and Walcott, Assistant-Surgeon Minas, and Sergeant-Major Jackson.

Captain Wardlaw speaks highly of the gallantry of the Carabiniers and Guides, and of the gallant conduct of Lieutenant Hudson, commanding squadron of Carabineers, and Lieutenant Kennedy, commanding Guides; also of Captain Sandford and Lieutenant Craigie, Guide Cavalry.

Lieutenant Lind, in his report, speaks most favorably of Lieutenants Caulfield, 9th Cavalry; and Russell, 46th Native Infantry, doing duty with Mooltan Horse.

My very best thanks are also due to Doctor Brougham, 1st Fusileers, for his attention to the wounded in the Field Hospital.

I have, &c.

J. P. CAULFIELD,
Commanding Moveable Column.

Inclosure 18 in No. 1.

Captain Stafford, Commanding Detachment Hurriana Field Force, to the Officiating Major of Brigade.

Sir,

Camp Narnool, November 18, 1857.

FOR the information of Captain J. P. Caulfield, commanding Moveable Column, I have the honor to report the part which the force under my immediate command* took in the engagement of the 16th instant at Narnool, with the Joudpore Legion and other rebels.

2. When we had passed the village of Nusseerpore about a quarter-of-a-mile from the enemy's position, the force, in obedience to Lieutenant-Colonel Gerrard's orders, advanced at deploying distance; 23rd Punjab Infantry on the right; guns in the centre; and the Putteealla Infantry on the left, the Cavalry being on the extreme left.

3. The force was soon directed to deploy, and the advance was ordered. After two of the enemy's guns were taken, the advance still continued in the same order, until we came to the dry bed of a river. Lieutenant G. G. Pearce, commanding Cavalry of the Hurrianah force, was, I much regret to say, here wounded (in two places), and the command devolved upon Lieutenant R. A. Hamilton. The guns being unable to cross the nullah, they diverged to the right, and took up a position near the Horse-Artillery guns, whilst the 23rd Punjab Infantry and Putteealla Infantry, in company with the 1st Fusileers, crossed and advanced towards the enemy's camp, which was soon taken, two guns falling into our possession. By order of Captain Caulfield, the Infantry under my command returned to where our guns were in position.

Some time after this, and when the rebels had returned to their camp, and commenced firing round-shot at us with one of the guns which had been previously taken, I was directed to re-occupy the camp with two Companies of the 1st Fusileers, and two Companies of the 23rd Punjab Infantry, some Cavalry, with which Lieutenant Hamilton was, having been despatched to the left to follow up the mutineers when routed. The camp was attacked in flank, and the gun, which had been annoying us, was gallantly charged, and taken by the 1st Fusileers, led by Lieutenant Warner. The two guns were ordered to be removed, and the Infantry was directed to remain in the enemy's camp. I now returned to where the remainder of my force was, and shortly afterwards the serai was taken possession of.

4. My very best thanks are due to all, but more especially to Lieutenants Pearce and Hamilton, commanding Cavalry; Lieutenant Hunt, commanding 23rd Punjab Infantry, and Lieutenant Walcott, commanding Artillery, whose gunners, (lately embodied), behaved remarkably well. My thanks are also due to Sub-Assistant-Surgeon, P. A. Minas, in medical charge, for his attention to the wounded.

Lieutenant Hunt makes favourable mention of Lieutenant Chatterton, Officiating-

* Punjab Mounted Police, 70; Esakhyl Horse, 90; Tewanah Horse, 90; Artillery, four 6-pounders; 23rd Punjab Infantry, 500 bayonets; Putteealla Infantry, 260 bayonets.

Adjutant 23rd Punjab Infantry, and Lieutenant Hamilton, brings to notice the gallant conduct of Ressaldars Aboolha Khan, Esakhyl Horse; Alum Khan, Tewanah Horse; and Shire Mohamed Khan, Punjab Mounted Police; and Jemadar Hatim Allee Beg, also of the Mounted Police. Ressaldar Alum Khan's conduct deserves special commendation; for when the enemy returned to their camp, he took up a position near a temple, and retained it until a reinforcement was brought up, when I saw him there myself.

It was here that the Tewanahs lost many horses.

Lieutenant Walcott reports as follows on the conduct of Sergeant-Major J. H. Jackson, and I have much pleasure in bearing testimony to it:—"I much wish to call your attention to the assistance rendered me by Sergeant-Major J. H. Jackson throughout the day, assistance peculiarly valuable, in consequence of my being, myself, an infantry officer."

5. I beg to inclose a return of killed and wounded.

I have, &c.

W. J. STAFFORD.

Inclosure 19 in No. 1.

Lieutenant Lind, Commanding Mooltance Cavalry, to Captain Caulfield.

Sir,

Camp Narnool, November 18, 1857.

THE late lamented Colonel Gerrard, when forming his line of attack, directed the Mooltance Cavalry, under my command, to form up on the left of the line. There not being room to do this at first, I was ordered to go round the hill on our left, and cross it as soon as possible. I soon found this was impossible, and returned with all speed, and got into my position. When the enemy limbered up their guns to retire, I ordered a charge, and captured the two 9-pounder guns with their limbers. Immediately afterwards, the Mooltanees were engaged in a smart affair, with the enemy's Cavalry, in which many of the rebels were cut down and finally driven off. Our line being again reformed, I kept my position on the left flank, and came up through a wood in rear of the entrenched position held by the rebels. Afterwards being directed to proceed back to our guns, I was about to do so, but thought I had better bring off one of the guns captured in the entrenched position before mentioned. Accompanied by Lieutenants Caulfield, Russell, and Hamilton, and a few sowars, we tried to get the gun off, and whilst doing so were attacked by the rebels (Cavalry and Infantry), in such force as made the abandoning of the gun a matter of necessity. Ressaldar Kellydoid Khan was here severely wounded, and several Sowars also. The Mooltance Cavalry formed a part of the attacking party to retake it. We held the entrenched position during the night with the 23rd Punjab Infantry, Hurriana guns, and Lieutenant Hamilton's (Tewanah) Cavalry.

2. I have every reason to be proud of having such officers as Lieutenants Caulfield and Russell under my command, their gallantry was most conspicuous in the charge in which the guns were taken, and they rendered me every assistance during the day.

Ressaldar Attah Mahomed Khan behaved with his usual bravery, and was in the thickest of the fight.

Sowar Mitty Khan, of the Gundapoor troops of Mooltanees also behaved very well. The whole Ressalah indeed showed well in all our hand-in-hand engagements with the enemy, and were led by their Khans in them.

I have, &c.

J. B. LIND.

Inclosure 20 in No. 1.

Captain Wardlaw, 6th Carabiniers, to Captain Caulfield.

Sir,

Camp Narnool, November 18, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report that on the morning of the action of the 16th instant, I received instructions from Colonel Gerrard to command the right consisting of the Carabiniers and Guides. Shortly after forcing the line, the enemy's guns re-opened fire on the extreme right, and several of the Carabiniers were wounded ; our Horse-Artillery advanced and returned the fire, and after a few rounds, I received the order to advance, we did so, and perceiving the enemy's Cavalry, showing a disposition to charge, we accordingly charged, broke and dispersed them, cutting up a large number, but were charged by others on the left flank. They fought in the most determined manner, but found their pluck of little avail against the swords of the Guides or Carabiniers ; about fifty were killed, the Guides wheeled to their left, and charged the guns on the flank, and the Carabiniers wheeling to the left-about, charged through the guns in rear, and several gunners were killed, and the majority fled amongst the trees. I regret to say the Carabiniers and Guides suffered rather severely in this charge. The gallantry displayed by both corps was most conspicuous, and the conduct of the Guides was most distinguished, their commanding officer, Captain Kennedy, to whom I am much indebted for assistance during the day, was wounded, but did not leave the field, though his left hand was disabled. I can only say that no European corps could have charge with greater spirit or more effect than did the Guides on this occasion.

The detachments under my command had received orders to protect the right flank, whilst the attack on the serai and camp was going on, but the enemy's Cavalry showing in various points on our rear and flanks gave us a good deal of annoyance, and immediately we approached, they fled. Subsequently, at the request of the commanding officer of the Fusileers, I moved to the left a portion of the Carabiniers to support their attack in the camp, after their taking which, I sent Lieutenant Vyse with a division in pursuit of the enemy with the Irregulars, under Captain Hamilton. Several of the enemy were cut up.

Owing to a large force appearing on our right, which afterwards proved to be the Jeypore troops. I was unable to move the greater part of my force to the left when the enemy were flying, but as there were other corps of Irregular Cavalry on the left, I trust that a considerable number of the enemy were cut up.

I have much pleasure in reporting the gallant way in which Lieutenant Hudson managed the squadron of Carabiniers under his command. Captain Kennedy, whose conduct I have noticed above, in command of the Guides, was worthy of the highest praise. Two other officers of the Guides were severely wounded, Captain Sandford and Lieutenant Craigie, while gallantly leading on their men.

I trust you will have the goodness to represent to the Major-General commanding, the conduct of the men under my command. I forgot to mention that I received great assistance from Captain Anderson of the 54th Native Infantry, interpreter to the Carabiniers, who came through the charge and secured a tumbril with three or four Carabiniers.

I have, &c.

GEORGE WARDLAW.

The Deputy-Adjutant-General of the Army to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Head-Quarters, Camp Chowleepore, December 25, 1857.

IN completion of the despatches and reports relative to the recent operations and dispositions of the troops at Cawnpore and Lucknow, I have the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to inclose copies of six memoranda, written by the Chief of the Staff by order of his Excellency, for the guidance of Major-Generals, C. Windham, C.B., and Sir James Outram, G.C.B.

2. I am also directed to inclose copy of a letter from the Chief Staff Officer of Major-General Sir J. Outram, G.C.B., dated the 11th instant.

I have, &c.

H. W. NORMAN.

Inclosure 23 in No. 1.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the guidance of Major-General Windham.

Cawnpore, November 6, 1857.

MAJOR-GENERAL WINDHAM, C.B., will assume command of the Cawnpore Division, as a temporary arrangement in pursuance of the General Order issued this day.

2. His attention will be immediately directed towards the improvement of the defences and of the entrenchment, which now cover the Commissariat, two of the hospitals, &c.

3. He will communicate daily with Captain Bruce, the Police Magistrate, who will furnish all the intelligence to the Major-General which it is in his power to give.

4. A careful watch must be maintained over the movements of the Gwalior force, which it is supposed, will arrive at Calpee on Monday the 9th instant.

5. If this force show a real disposition to cross the Jumna, the garrison at Futteh-pore,* should be withdrawn to Cawnpore, and execute the march in two days bringing their guns with them, and destroying the entrenchment.

6. A post† should be formed in such case at Lohunda, the terminus of the railway, to consist of not less than five Companies of Infantry, and four guns.

7. Parties proceeding from Lohunda to Cawnpore, should, if the contingency allowed it to take place, be of the strength of a battalion. But the bullock-train parties are not to be discontinued, till positive information respecting the movement of the Gwalior Contingent renders such precautions absolutely necessary.

8. Supposing this to have taken place, General Windham will make as great show as he can of what troops he may have at Cawnpore, leaving a sufficient guard in the entrenchment, by encamping them conspicuously, and in somewhat extended order, looking, however, well to his line of retreat.

9. He will not move out to attack unless compelled to do so by the force of circumstances, to save the bombardment of the entrenchment.

10. For the present, the Garrison of Cawnpore will consist of the detachments of Her Majesty's 5th Fusileers, 84, and recovered men of various corps, and of the Head-Quarters of Her Majesty's 64th Regiment, amounting in all to about 500 men.

The British Infantry which will be arriving from day to day, will be sent forward into Oude, by wings of regiments, unless General Windham should be seriously threatened. But of course in such case he will have been able to take the orders of Commander-in-Chief.

11. General Windham may detain the 2nd Madras Brigade, under Brigadier Carthew, for a few days, until the intentions of the Gwalior Contingent are developed.

* The officer in command at Futteh-pore must communicate this, but quite confidentially, to the Chief district authority.

† To be furnished from Allahabad.

This force will arrive with convoy on the 10th instant.

He will desire Brigadier Campbell, commanding at Allahabad, and the officer commanding at Futtehpore, to report to him, and communicate so much of these instructions to those officers as affects them.

Inclosure 24 in No. 1.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the guidance of Major-General Windham.

Head-Quarters, Cawnpore, November 8, 1857.

IN continuation of former instructions, Major-General Wyndham is requested to direct his attention to the general position of the stations threatened or affected by the Gwalior Contingent.

Assuming that force to have arrived at Calpee, it is apparent, from the map, that, besides the Jumna, there are, between that place and Cawnpore, the Rind Nudee and the Pandoo Nudee.

Supposing the enemy to contemplate an advance on the line of the Ganges, from Calpee, he would proceed either to Akbarpore or Ghatumpore.

In either case, measures would be taken to destroy the bridges on these streams.

If the enemy proceed to Akbarpore, it is tolerably evident that he would be bound either for Cawnpore or to Sheorajpore. There would be ample time then to take urgent measures at Cawnpore, supposing the bridges to have been destroyed.

If, on the contrary, he makes for Ghatumpore, it may be presumed that his aim is Futtehpore.

When he is at Ghatumpore, it will be time enough to think of abandoning the post of Futtehpore, which is to be avoided as long as possible consistently with the military safety of the garrison.

Assuming that he is bound for Cawnpore, it will be for General Wyndham to exercise his discretion in calling up the Futtehpore garrison as a reinforcement. This should only be done as a last resource; Government having been fully restored in the Futtehpore District, the interests of which would be sacrificed by the abandonment of the post.

General Wyndham will have at his disposal about 500 rank and file of British troops, including a detachment of the Naval Brigade left to work his guns.

The Madras Force will give him 550 rank and file, with 6 field guns.

Two 24 lb. guns have been added to his ordnance in the last three days, making, in all, nine guns for the intrenchment, besides the Madras guns above alluded to.

There are, in addition, two 9-pounders and one 24-pounder howitzer, with ammunition in their waggons, available for movement, but for which there are no gunners.

There are now in course of arrival, at very early date, at Cawnpore :—

1 Company Reserve Artillery (Royal Artillery).

1 Horse Field Battery Royal Artillery Military Train.

5 Companies Her Majesty's 23rd Foot detachment, Her Majesty's 82nd Foot.

2 Madras Horse-Artillery guns.

The 23rd and Military Train, and the Royal Artillery will pursue their march towards Lucknow, without delay, with convoys of ammunition, engineer's park, and commissariat stores.

The Detachment of the 82nd Foot will remain at Cawnpore till they reach the strength of a wing, when they will make the distance to Alumbagh in two marches.

Major-General Windham will have the goodness to send due notice of the arrival and departure of every detachment and convoy, to and from Cawnpore, to the Officer in Charge of the Quarter-Master-General's Department, Head-Quarters.

Inclosure 25 in No. 1.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the Guidance of Major-General Windham.Camp, Alumbagh, November 14, 1857.

MAJOR-GENERAL WINDHAM will cause all detachments coming along the Grand Trunk Road, to halt at Cawnpore until further orders.

All men arriving must be fully equipped.

The gram-bags will be returned as soon as possible.

He will have the goodness to communicate the substance of this memorandum to Captain Bruce.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the Guidance of Major-General Sir James Outram.Head-Quarters, Camp, Cawnpore, December 8, 1857.

THE Commander-in-Chief is of opinion that you should take immediate steps in pursuance of the advantage gained the day before yesterday at Cawnpore, to put your communications with this place in a thoroughly effective condition, you will, therefore, on the receipt of this memorandum detach to the rear 400 European soldiers, 200 Madras Infantry, Captain Olphert's Light Field Battery, and half your Cavalry, with all your camels.

This force which should be placed under your best officer, must clear the vicinity of the road from Alumbagh to Cawnpore of all refractory characters, including Munsih Aly, who disturbs the neighbourhood of Onoa.

This force will collect as it marches as much carriage as possible bringing it to the north bank of the Ganges to be laden with grain and supplies for your field force.

The difficulties of procuring carriage at Cawnpore are very great, but every effort is being made in your behalf.

Inclosure 27 in No. 1.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the Guidance of Major-General Sir James Outram.Camp, Head-Quarters, Cawnpore, December 12, 1857.

THE Commander-in-Chief has had under his consideration a letter addressed to the Chief of the Staff, by Colonel Berkeley, Deputy-Adjutant-General, by order of Major-General Sir James Outram, G.C.B., in which the reasons of the latter are alleged for not giving execution to his Excellency's orders, conveyed in the memorandum by Major-General Mansfield, Chief of the Staff, on the 7th of December.

It is a subject of the deepest regret to his Excellency, that he cannot coincide in the reasoning of Sir James Outram, the order above alluded to having been considered with the greatest care before it was given with reference to the country in which Sir James Outram's camp is pitched, and the knowledge of what it is in the power of the enemy to attempt.

His Excellency entreats Sir James Outram to believe that he is fully alive to the circumstances of his position, and he does not think it possible for him to be threatened by real danger.

Including the Posts of Alumbagh and Bunnec, Sir James Outram has at his disposal 4,400 fighting men, of which the bulk is composed of European Infantry, besides a very powerful Artillery.

The effect of the late successes on the right bank of the Ganges cannot but be felt throughout the provinces of Oude as elsewhere.

If the left be threatened by a battery, his Excellency would suggest the advisability of attacking and destroying it before it can become a cause of annoyance.

If on the occasion of a detachment going out, Sir James has fears for his position, his Excellency would further venture to suggest, that the front of the camp should be contracted, or that it should be converted into a bivouac in case of really imminent danger.

The strength of detachments is always calculated by the Commander-in-Chief with the greatest care, with reference to general circumstances, with which it is hardly possible that any one but his Excellency should be acquainted.

In conclusion, his Excellency observes that nothing advanced in this memorandum is said by way of reproach, but merely of advice and friendly caution.

Inclosure 28 in No. 1.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the Guidance of Sir James Outram.

Head-Quarters, Camp, Cawnpore, December 15, 1857.

TWO HUNDRED gun-bullocks have been dispatched to Sir J. Outram, yoked to carts.

He will have the goodness to apply them to the guns.

A fortnight's provisions have been dispatched for all Sir James Outram's force, including Bunnee, together with what stores of clothing, tentage, and boots, it is in the power of Brigadier Inglis, commanding at Cawnpore, to give.

Sir James Outram will arrange in future, by order of his Excellency, to send a sufficient escort, with carriage, once a fortnight, to take out what supplies he may want from Cawnpore to his camp.

This escort must never consist of less than 350 European Infantry, 150 Native Infantry, 70 Cavalry soldiers, together with two field-guns. Colonel Fisher, commanding at Bunnee, being under the command of Sir James Outram, will be supplied by the Commissariat of the Major-General's Division, and not from that of Cawnpore, which belongs to another.

It will be easy for Captain Macbean and Captain Christopher so to arrange together under the orders of the Deputy-Commissary-General, that the supplies meant for Bunnee shall not travel onwards to Alumbagh.

Sir J. Outram is informed that owing to the neglect of his Deputy-Assistant-Quartermaster-General or other Staff Officer, a quantity of flannel shirts and serge jackets, besides other articles, which had been provided by the Commander-in-Chief for the use of his division, were positively allowed to return to Cawnpore, instead of being made use of as intended.

The Chief of the Staff is aware that an order was issued on the occasion of the Commander-in-Chief quitting Alumbagh, that the quilts, &c., brought for Sir James Outram's Division, should be taken charge of at once. It appears never to have occurred to his Staff Officer to have examined the other bales besides those containing quilts, although it was perfectly well known to every one in the Force, that what stores were in Alumbagh, had been brought solely for the use of the Lucknow garrison, under Sir James Outram.

Sir James Outram is requested to inform the officers subordinate to Colonel Berkeley, now on the Staff of his Division, of the Commander-in-Chief's marked displeasure on this account, and to enforce their personal attention and superintendence of every duty committed to their charge.

Any Staff Officer failing in this respect in future, will be immediately deprived of his appointment according to a General Order, lately published on the subject.

Details of Infantry, European and Native, and Artillery return to join their respective corps in Sir James Outram's Division.

A corrected statement is required of the strength of that Division which will include the new arrivals, and the posts of Bunnee and Alumbagh.

Brigadier Inglis has received orders to meet all indents for supplies and stores as far as lies in his power, which may be sent from Sir James Outram's Division; but it is necessary that all such requisitions should be signed by the Major-General himself.

It will be impossible for Brigadier Inglis to meet the demands of requisitions signed merely by commanding officers of regiments or Brigadiers.

All accounts must be carefully kept by the respective corps and departments and regiments charged according to rule for all necessities and clothing furnished by the State.

If at any time the Major-General should be of opinion that remission of charge for such necessities would be equitable, it will be for him to make the necessary application for the demand to the Adjutant-General, for sanction by the Commander-in-Chief.

On the occasion of the last convoy coming in from Alumbagh, all the available camels, and the hundred carts described to be in the camp, must be sent in to carry out supplies; the hundred carts now sent with the gun-bullocks, and which will be without cattle, will be attached to the empty carts, and so returned to the Commissariat at this place.

If the Commissariat officer personally superintend this, and see that the carts are all really empty, the bullocks employed will drag through the carts with perfect ease.

It is to be hoped that Sir James Outram will be able to provide gram and other grain in his own neighbourhood, in order to economise carriage, and save the District of Cawnpore, which has been almost drained of supplies.

Grain is now at Cawnpore about 11 to 12 seers to the rupee.

Inclosure 29 in No. 1.

Colonel Berkeley to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp Alumbagh, December 11, 1857.

I AM directed by Major-General Sir J. Outram to acknowledge the receipt of the message dispatched by you by cossid on the 8th instant, with the account of the Commander-in-Chief's victory over the Gwalior force, which arrived yesterday; he did not, however, bring the "Memorandum by the Chief of the Staff for the guidance of Sir J. Outram, G.C.B." Sir James only received the copy of that this morning. He is desirous of being informed if the memorandum was sent by the cossid, that he may deal with him according to his deserts, if he has been playing false.

His examination is herewith attached, and he will remain a prisoner until information is received from you.

Sir J. Outram is much concerned to find by that "memorandum," that the Commander-in-Chief expects him to detach so large a force to the rear as 400 Europeans and 200 Madras Infantry, as well as half the Cavalry, and Captain Olphert's Light Field Battery.

In his letter to the Governor-General in Council of the 9th instant, which was forwarded under a flying seal for the Commander-in-Chief's information, he states, "We have barely carriage for a weak brigade, which, however, would not be detached with prudence, to a distance involving an absence of more than a day, without exposing the camp to considerable risk, menaced as it is by many thousands of the enemy, supported by several guns posted in the gardens and enclosures on this side of the canal on our front and flanks, which daily send round shot into our advanced posts, though from so great a distance as to do no injury."

The enemy are now busily employed in erecting a battery on our left flank which, very likely, is intended for defensive purposes; but, at the same time, might become offensive at any moment: they are, also, daily strengthened by the fugitives of the army defeated by the Commander-in-Chief.

They have lately brought out two Horse-Artillery guns. These guns could do much harm by moving on our flanks, if we had no guns of a similar description to oppose to them: and it must be recollected that they have a strong reserve of guns in the city, which might, at any time, be brought out against this camp, or the Alumbagh.

We are, also, entirely without gram; and we shall be obliged to make more distant expeditions in search of it, and these parties must of course be increased in strength in proportion.

The Cavalry force is most inefficient : the horses of the Volunteer Cavalry, and the Irregulars, who have all been in the Presidency, are so reduced in condition that they can render little or no service, and our present want of gram and the cold at night prevent their regaining it. The Military Train can only mount 140 men, their saddle-trees being so bad that no amount of stuffing suffices to prevent sore backs, and these, therefore, comprise the only efficient Cavalry we have.

Detaching 200 Madras Infantry from Bunnee, would weaken Colonel Fisher too much, as strong parties of the enemy, accompanied by guns, have been reported as moving along the old road to our rear and in the direction of that post, and Sir James thought it expedient, on Colonel Fisher's application, to reinforce him with 50 Europeans : they will, however, accompany the convoy, and remain at Bunnee on their return.

The Major-General also wishes to point out the extensive nature of his position, the right of which is Jellallabad, and the left resting on a village to the left of the main road—a front, altogether, of nearly four miles. This extent is rendered necessary by being obliged to occupy Jellallabad, in which direction all the grazing and forage for the cattle is obtained, and the villages on the left-front and flank have to be occupied in order to prevent the enemy commanding the main road and our flank with their guns, from a very strong defensive position.

Sir J. Outram trusts that the Commander-in-Chief will view these points in the same light that he does, and agree with him in the inexpediency, under these circumstances, of detaching the force proposed to the rear.

To-night the convoy consisting of 350 camels will leave this camp, escorted by 150 European Infantry, 50 Sikhs, 25 Cavalry, and he joined at Bunnee by 50 of the 90th Regiment now stationed there. This is the utmost extent of the force Sir James feels himself justified in sending.

He retains 150 camels for the purpose of bringing in grain, which, from information received, he hopes to lay his hands on. Your letter only specifies camels, and Sir James has not sent any carts, as it delays the march of the convoy, and involves a larger escort accompanying it.

I have, &c.

F. BERKELEY, Colonel,
Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Cawnpore, December 21, 1857.

I HAVE the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to inclose for the information of the Governor-General of India in Council, a copy of a letter dated the 17th instant, from Colonel G. R. Barker, C.B., Royal Artillery, detailing the recent operations of a small force under his command in the Futtehpore District.

2. I am to state that his Excellency considers Colonel Barker deserving of credit for the manner in which he has carried out the duty assigned to him.

I have, &c.

H. W. NORMAN.

Inclosure 31 in No. 1.

Colonel Barker, R.A., to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp Futtehpore, December 17, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report that on the receipt of your confidential letter, dated the 9th instant, and received the following afternoon, I immediately placed myself in communication with Mr. Probyn, the Collector at Futtehpore; and, after mature consideration, I decided that the southern and south-eastern portion of the district was the best field for the operations I was enjoined to carry out.

Accordingly, on the afternoon of the 11th instant, I marched back on the Grand Trunk Road to Khaga, which I reached the following morning. At midnight the column started again for Koth, a large village on the Jumna, 25 miles distant, and noted as the principal rendezvous of mutineers and turbulent characters of the district. On the way, we visited a village called Kirtraim, the inhabitants of which had shown themselves disaffected, and arming themselves had driven away the Police and plundered the Tehseelee, and become the terror of all well disposed people in the neighbourhood. On reaching the village, several men were seen with arms in their hands; and, as they endeavoured to escape, two or three were shot; one being taken, was hung by Mr. Probyn, who accompanied the column.

This Magistrate was, at once, enabled to re-establish his Native Officials at the Tehseelee.

Thence the column continued its march to Koth, the approach to which, for some miles, was so difficult over fields and country intersected with nullahs, that we did not reach the place till 4 o'clock. The inhabitants, who were very numerous, and amongst them, as we had learnt, a large number of sepoys, having heard of our approach, had deserted the place, some crossing the river and others concealing themselves in the ravines. The very long day's march obliged me to halt for the night, and prevented my molesting them till the morning, when, however, I sent parties in each direction along the banks of the river for the purpose of destroying the boats and securing any men that they might find.

Many prisoners were brought in, amongst them many suspicious characters who were handed over to the civil authorities. After search had been made in the village for treasure supposed to be buried there, the place was destroyed. A considerable quantity of European wearing-apparel was found, and many uniforms of the 3rd and 6th Light Cavalry, also of the Body Guard; but no treasure was discovered.

The same afternoon, the column continued its march in a north-west direction towards Gurha Narowlee, another disaffected village, to which the following morning I sent a detachment of Her Majesty's 53rd Regiment, who burnt it, but could take no prisoners. A village named Raree was burnt the same day. I halted for the night at Narnur. In the morning I again sent detachments of Her Majesty's 13th Light Infantry and Madras Rifles, on either side of the road, to the villages of Surkundee and Saton, both of which places had become notorious for harbouring mutineers and budmashes, who were continually plundering and murdering the inhabitants of the neighbouring villages. These were both destroyed, and a few armed men shot down in each. These detachments then rejoined the column at Jummulmour.

This morning the column continued its march to Futtehpore, taking a somewhat circuitous route for the purpose of exhibiting, as much as possible, the troops to the inhabitants of the district, and visiting one or two other villages.

As the time of my progress was limited to five or six days, I was unable to extend my march to any other parts of the district, but I am able to state, from the report of the Magistrate, that the movement has been so far satisfactory, that revenue has already been sent into the Treasury, and supplies have been promised from several quarters, and he anticipates no difficulty in re-establishing the Police in most of the places which were visited.

The small number of rebels may be accounted for by the fact that, after the first village was surprised, the news was spread all over the country, and every refractory village was found completely deserted, the inhabitants of the good ones alone remaining in their own homes. The number of boats on the Jumna facilitated the escape of the rebels on every point.

The column moved in the lightest possible order, and as it was necessary, in order to show the force, and also on account of the difficulty of crossing some parts of the country, to march only by daylight, we were not able, at all times, to make long marches.

The column will proceed to Cawnpore by ordinary marches to-morrow morning.

I have, &c.

G. R. BARKER.

Sir,

Camp Ajoodhea, December 25, 1857

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that a detachment of Sikh Volunteers, strength as per margin,* under my command, marched from Chyebassa this morning. The object of my march was, upon a requisition from the Senior Assistant Commissioner of Singbhoom, to quell an insurrection among certain portions of the Cole tribe to which they had been incited by the (late) Rajah of Parchat and his brother.

I came upon a large body of the insurgents this morning shortly after daylight, about 2000 in number, and dispersed them without difficulty, inflicting severe loss upon them, with none to myself.

I shall follow them up to-morrow, and shall, in a day or two, have the honor of sending in a further report of my movements.

Sir

Kemi, December 22, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report my arrival at this place, six miles on the road to Jelpigoree, having left Phoolbaree this morning, I propose marching for Byrmtopore to-morrow, and from there attacking the mutineers in Bootan. My present intention is to arrive at the mutineers' position at daylight on the morning of the 26th. They are about six miles from Byrmtopore, across the Teesta.

I have, &c.

E. G. CURZON.

Sir,

Camp Arroul, December 27, 1857.

I HAVE the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to forward for the information of the Governor-General in Council copy of a letter dated the 19th instant, received by cossid yesterday, from Lieutenant-Colonel T. Seaton, C.B., commanding a moveable column, reporting his defeat of a force of insurgents on the 17th idem, and adverting to his probable future movements.

* 1 Captain, 1 Assistant-Surgeon, 6 Havildars, 4 Naicks, 55 Sepoys, 2 Classics.

2. I am also directed to annex copy of the reply sent by the Chief of the Staff, by his Excellency's order, to Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton.

I am to add that no report of his previous action adverted to by Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton has been received at head-quarters.

Inclosure 36 in No. 1.

Lieutenant Colonel Seaton, Commanding Moveable Column, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Puttecalla, December 19, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to acquaint you, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that I arrived here the day before yesterday, and found the insurgents posted in front of this town, I engaged and routed them, pursued them for seven miles, captured twelve guns, six of them English manufacture, and killed over 700 of the enemy, who are now totally dispersed. My loss was one killed, and four wounded; total, five.

I should have marched this morning in the direction of the Grand Trunk Road, via Khasgunge, but a body of insurgents has crossed the river two miles south of Oolaye, and I intend to attack them to-morrow morning. The above is the second engagement I have had with the insurgents, and I have captured in all fifteen guns, nine of them of English manufacture and all in excellent order. I left a large convoy at Allyghur, containing tents for four regiments, and servants for six regiments, including 2,000 doolie bearers, and grain and supplies of all sorts. As soon as I have disposed of the above insurgents, I shall go across to the Grand Trunk Road, send the captured guns to Allyghur, and if I hear of his Excellency's advance in the direction of Futtehghur or Mynpoorie, bring down the convoy, or act as I receive instructions, or in the absence of instructions, as may seem most advisable. After clearing this district of insurgents, my duty clearly is to bring down the convoy so much wanted by the troops with his Excellency.

May I beg, if this reaches you, you will be so good as to reply to me at Allyghur, from whence letters can be forwarded to my camp.

P.S. I suppose you are aware that is the second engagement I have had with the insurgents in this district. News just come in that the insurgents who had crossed the river have gone off in hot haste, and re-crossed the river. The Nawab of Furruckabad threatens to attack me—nonsense. It is a mere ruse to cover some other design, perhaps flight from Furruckabad.

I have, &c.

T. SEATON.

Inclosure 37 in No. 1.

The Chief of the Staff to Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton.

Sir,

Camp, Pooteah, December 26, 1857.

I THIS day received your cossid despatch of the 19th December, and hasten to send the Commander-in-chief's hearty congratulations on the brilliant success which has attended your march.

His Excellency approves your suggestions to return to Allyghur for your convoy. Brigadier Walpole in command of the 6th Brigade of the army, with guns and Cavalry, is moving by Etawah towards Mynpoorie, which he will reach about [sic in orig.].

When returning with your convoy, it will be expedient for you to ascertain if Mynpoorie be occupied by our troops, as otherwise it would not be safe to approach it too closely. We are this day about thirty miles from Cawnpore, and after razing Kuttla to the ground, his Excellency proposes to proceed by the ordinary marches to some place opposite Furruckabad on Grand Trunk Road—from whence he will operate after having re-established his communication with Brigadier Walpole.

After arrival at Mynpoorie, communicate and halt for orders.

Will you have the goodness to forward a copy of this letter to Colonel Fraser?

I have, &c.

Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Etah, December 24, 1857.

I HAVE had the honor recently to address to you three letters, but as I fear none of them have reached you, I will briefly recapitulate for the information of the Commander-in-Chief. I left Delhi on the 6th December with a force detailed below, escorting a convoy for the camp of the Commander-in-Chief, agreeably to instructions. I lodged the convoy under the guns of the Fort of Allyghur on the 11th December. I then proceeded into the district to attack the insurgents who had taken possession of Khasgunge, Gungeeree, and Puteealla. I engaged the enemy at Gungeeree on the 14th, and at Puteealla on the 17th, utterly routing them on both occasions, capturing in the first affair 3 guns, and in the second 12; 15 in all, (of which 9 are of our own manufacture, splendid serviceable guns), and killing of the enemy about 1100 men. I had 48 killed and wounded in the first action, including 3 officers of the Carabiniers; in the second action only 5 killed and wounded. The district having been cleared of insurgents, I have now come down to Etah to escort the convoy, which I have directed to march from Allyghur on the 26th, and join me at Mynpoorie, which place I propose to take possession of as soon as I have turned out the Rajah Tej Sing. I hear he is at Sukeet, within 10 miles of me, I have sent to reconnoitre, and if I find it to be true, I shall march so as to be with him by daybreak to-morrow. The convoy consists of 3,288 hackeries, laden with gram, salt, Soojee biscuits, wheat, sugar, dhall, ghee, ottah, rum, 2483 gallons; quilts, 2740; blankets, 4558; cotton carpets, 2018; tents (privates') 166; Staff-Sergeants' ditto, 3; sepoy's tents of 2 pauls each 6½; establishments (barrack) 1229 men; doolee bearers, 2000; hospital establishment, 294. From Agra have been dispatched 100 doolies and 600 bearers; cotton carpet (sutrunjees) 2000. Lieutenant Graham has hired at Allyghur 251 more hackeries, and thus the carts or hackeries, in single file, will stretch over 20 miles.

There are 1419 camels, and about 60 spare elephants, the latter are with me:—

Inclosure 40 in No. 1.

Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp Malawn, December 25, 1857.

I HAD the honor yesterday, and again this morning, to forward to your address a dispatch, giving for the information of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, a brief summary of my proceedings since I left Delhi in command of this column. I have now the honor to acquaint you that I shall be at Mynpoorie on the 27th, where I hope to meet with and destroy the forces of Rajah Tej Sing. In concurrence with the opinion I expressed to the Chief Commissioner, Colonel H. Fraser, he advises me to leave behind at Allyghur all the grain and flour, &c., except a portion of the grain my convoy contains. I therefore propose to bring on the spare camels and elephants, the tents, quilts, blankets, doolies, dooly bearers, barrack and hospital establishments, and all such things as are required by European troops, recently arrived in the country, and when marching, I propose, and have ordered the grain, flour, &c. to be stored at Allyghur, but in the carts ready to be sent on whenever necessary. The hackeries are, in number, 3,288; and, it seems to me an absurdity to encumber the march of the army by such a tail as this, which, in single file, would stretch nineteen miles; of these carts, 694 are unladen; if, therefore, any empty carts are required for his Excellency's camp, I beg to be favored with your instructions. I hope the convoy will start from Allyghur on the 27th, and join me at Mynpoorie on the 2nd January. If I hear of his Excellency's approach to Futtehghur, I shall bring the convoy on direct, or otherwise, as I may receive instructions. I hear that Tej Sing is sending his baggage beyond the Jumna. He may, possibly, make a stand at Mynpoorie; if he does, I shall endeavour, before engaging him, to stop the bridges over the canal, and do my best to catch him; but I shall gain more correct information to-morrow, at Kurrowlie.

Kurrowlie, December 26, 1857.—The Rajah Tej Sing is still at Mynpoorie, and will, probably, make a stand; but I hear he has sent off all his baggage and valuables across the Jumna to his wife's relations. The zemindar of this place, Lutchnun Sing, is most friendly to the British Government, and has behaved throughout this insurrection remarkably well.

I have, &c.

T. SEATON.

P.S.—I may as well mention, that I have sent to Agra for a small engineer's park, ladders, intrenching tools, sand-bags, &c., in case they may be required.

Inclosure 41 in No. 1.

The Chief of the Staff to Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton.

Sir,

Merum-Ka-Serai, December 29, 1857.

YOUR dispatch of the 24th is just come to hand. We understand from native reports, that you are this day in occupation of Mynpoorie, after an engagement. It does not appear that the convoy can have left Allyghur. If so, his Excellency desires you will make your own arrangements for bringing it down to Mynpoorie.

His Excellency will advance to Goorsahai Gunje the day after to-morrow; and, after repairing the bridge over the Kallee Muddee at Koda Gunje, advance on Furruckabad, which, it is said, has been evacuated by the Nawab.

I shall hope to be in regular communication with you by the 2nd proximo, and to be able to impart his Excellency's definite instructions to you.

I have, &c.

Sir,

Camp Merum-Ka-Serai, December 29, 1857.

HIS Excellency desires me to acknowledge your letters dated 25th and 26th December, and to inform you that he quite approves of what you have done.

The letter dispatched to you a few hours ago, directing you to collect your convoy at Mynpoorie, was written under the impression that the convoy must already have left Allyghur.

You will, of course, halt at Mynpoorie for definite orders; and I hope you will suggest to the Civil Officers, who accompany you, to make the best use of the halt of your column for the purpose of re-establishing Police and Civil Government in the neighbourhood.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Officer Commanding, that in consequence of information received last evening, I left my camp at this place at 9 P.M., and marched for Phoolbaree Ghaut, the Police having reported that the mutineers were crossing the Teesta at that place. However, we could see or hear nothing of them; in fact, there was not a living soul at the Ghaut. I consequently marched back again, and arrived at my camp at 3 A.M. I shall remain here until I receive further information.

I HAVE the honor to report my return to this place yesterday afternoon. The mutineers, or, at least, part of them, are between Chara Ghaut and this, on the left bank of the river. I fear there is no road between the two places; but my information leads me to believe that the river is not fordable, and very difficult, if not impossible to cross.

I HAVE the honor to forward for the information of the Major-General Commanding the Division, the annexed letter from Captain Curzon, Commanding Field Force in pursuit of the Dacca rebels.—Sixty Goorkha recruits were embodied in the regiment under my command last evening. Inclosure 47 in No. 1.

Captain Curzon, Commanding Field Force, to the Station Staff.

Sir,

Phoolbaree, December 27, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Officer Commanding, that, in consequence of information received through the Magistrate, I left my camp at this place yesterday at noon, with the whole of my force, to intercept, if possible, that portion of the Dacca mutineers at Chara Ghaut who, it was reported, were to move during the night down the left bank of the River Teesta, to join others below this place. I crossed the river on elephants, between this and Chara, and took a position close to the road they would have to pass; but, I regret to say, nothing was seen or heard of them. On re-crossing the river this morning, we were informed that they had succeeded in getting over into our territory, on a raft, during the night. I determined, therefore, to give my men a halt for a few hours, and then march direct for Jelpigoree, with the view of co-operating with Mr. Yule's party, and preventing their crossing the Jelpigoree and Punbrobaree road. At 1 P.M., just as I was about to start, a letter was received by Mr. Gordon, the Magistrate, from Mr. Yule, stating that he was on the point of leaving his camp (5 A.M.) to attack the mutineers at Chara Ghaut. I therefore, remain here until I receive further information. There is no road between this and Chara Ghaut, except for elephants, and I have barely enough of them to carry my camp equipage. Mr. Yule has over eighty, and can consequently move when and where he likes—it is, in fact, next to an impossibility to move in this jungly country without them.

I have, &c.

ERNEST G. CURZON.

Camp Phoolbaree, December 28, 10 A.M.

P.S.—Mr. Yule's party must have been at Chara Ghaut by this time yesterday, yet not one word of information have we received, either of his proceedings, or those of the mutineers. The distance is about eight miles, and we have two sepoys of the Sebundy Sappers, besides Police, watching them.

THE Commissioner of Benares states that Hamilton reports that the Goruckpore mutineers were attacked on the 27th by Rowcroft and the Bys Force at Solimpore, and, after an hour's cannonading, were driven back to Mughowlee, losing three of their four guns, with their ammunition, camp, &c. They are said to be going back to Goruckpore. No officer on our side touched. The "Dinapore" has left Ghajeepore with nine lacs for Benares. The "Megna" and her flat have had all their cargo taken out, and are over the shoal. The "Madras" has passed down. The "Hoorungatta" is still high and dry.

THE Lieutenant-Governor will be glad if the "Benares" steamer may be taken up to send down Lucknow ladies and invalids. She is the most commodious of the boats, and the best managed, and passengers will be more comfortable in her than in any other vessel. The Commander is highly spoken of, and has behaved signally well recently at Ghazee-pore, when so many of the vessels were detained there. Brigadier Campbell quite approves of the "Benares" being employed, but has no authority to engage her. He has asked the Lieutenant-Governor to obtain permission for the "Benares" to be taken up for the purpose, on the same terms as the boats of the India General Company.

Inclosure 53 in No. 1.

Captain Hale to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Chyebassa, December 30, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that the detachment Sikh Volunteers, under my command, returned to this station last evening.

On the 26th, the day following the date of my last report, I moved on a village called Goopunanthpore, ten miles distant, and about twenty miles to the north-west of Chyebassa, where I halted during the whole of the 27th and 28th.

From all the information which we obtained, it was evident that the insurgents had dispersed, and entirely left that part of the country. A few prisoners were brought in, among them the head men of some disaffected villages. These are under trial by the Senior Assistant Commissioner.

On the evening of the 28th, information reached me that the insurgents were collecting in large bodies at Serungsurra, situated in a gorge in a low range of hills about twenty-five miles to the southward of Chyebassa, or nearly exactly on the opposite side to that on which we were, and threatening an advance on Chyebassa. Though I had no fear for the safety of the treasure and other public property here, for which I had left what I considered a sufficient guard, yet this intelligence determined me to return here at once.

I have placed at Chukadhurpore, distant eight miles to the westward of Goopunanthpore, a force of 300 men under the Rajah of Seraiketa; of these 150 are armed with matchlocks, and 12 with percussion carbines, furnished by Government. This force ought to, and I trust will, prevent the collection or incursion of any body of Coles in that direction. To-morrow, or as soon as the necessary information is received, I trust to give a satisfactory account of those at Serungsurra.

On our return-march yesterday, two wounded men were brought in from one of the villages, from which we had driven the insurgents on the 25th. These were immediately hanged by order of the Commissioner.

Before closing this report, I would beg to bring to the notice of his Excellency, that, although, in the opinion of Lieutenant Birch, the Senior Assistant-Commissioner, this is not a general rising among the Cole tribes, many of their head men having by his orders come in to him, bringing their followers with him, still he estimates the number of the insurgents to be about 5,000. To act against them, the numerical force at my disposal is extremely small. I can disperse them, of course, without difficulty, but cannot surround them, which is the only way to make a signal example of them. The losses of the Rajah of the Surrekella, and of the Thakoor of Kussowa, I have no dependence upon, though generally better armed than the Coles, they appear to have the most unaccountable fear of them. The Thakoor of Kussowa not having attended to my orders, was the cause of my failure on the 25th.

When next I move, I shall have with me a body of 600 friendly Coles.

I have, &c.,

EDWARD HALE, Captain,
Commanding Sikh Volunteers.

THE Magistrate of Azimghur reports that firing was heard from 10 A.M. till evening in the direction of Goruckpore on the 4th. Large numbers of rebels are said to have again assembled at Burhul, supposed to be desirous of escaping from Goruckpore into Behar. The rebels are committing excesses at Pulkulha in the Jaunpore district, about twenty miles from Jaunpore. They are in small parties. From Cawnpore it is reported that inroads have been made into that district from Calpee and from Oude. The Calpee rebels have been in the district for two or three days, not in large force.

WE have the honor to transmit herewith for your information, a continuation of the narrative forwarded with our separate letter, No. 5, of the 9th instant, taken from correspondence and messages by the electric telegraph, of what has occurred at different stations in this Presidency, in connection with the disturbed state of affairs.

Inclosure 1 in No. 2.

Narrative of Events, dated January 23, 1858.

[The narrative transmitted by the mail dispatched on the 9th instant, contained the news received up to that date.]

Fort William, January 23, 1858.

Agra.—ALL is quiet at Agra and its neighbourhood; many of the Government officials, merchants, and other European residents have returned to their former houses, and resumed their former occupations.

The Civil Governor of Agra has now come under the Lieutenant-Governor, and the extraordinary powers hitherto held by Lieutenant-Colonel Fraser, as Chief Commissioner, have ceased.

Allahabad.—The detailed report of Brigadier Campbell's attack on the insurgents on the 5th January, and noticed in the last narrative, accompanies the present one.

The remainder of the Lucknow fugitives, with the exception of six or eight who were sick, left Allahabad for Calcutta on the 11th January. They are proceeding by the river route, and will arrive in Calcutta in a few days. Brigadier Campbell, having sent a party of Sikhs from Allahabad across the river, and established a post at Phoolpore, which has been forthwith re-opened by the Civil Power; two squadrons of the 2nd Dragoon Guards and four Horse-Artillery guns, were to leave on the 22nd to reinforce General Franks' separate column, which has advanced to Secundra for the purpose of attacking the rebel Nazim at Suroon.

Allyghur.—Major Eld, commanding in this district, has moved out towards Atroulec, to check the rebels at Ramghat, where they are said to be collecting, and, having brought down guns, were firing across the river, though it is not considered likely that they will effect a lodgment on the right bank of the Ganges, still their attempts and repeated intentions have a harassing effect on the district, especially since the march downward of Grant's, Greathed's, and Seaton's columns, which has so greatly weakened the available force in this and the Meerut districts.

Azimghur.—The road between this station and Goruckpore has been re-opened and the dāk re-established. Brigades have been dispatched into the interior of the districts by Jung Bahadoor, to put down insurgent chiefs and support the Civil Administration.

Banda (Calpee).—The mutineers at Calpee muster, it is said, about 5000 men, having been joined by many fugitives from Futtehghur. They are also said to have two heavy guns, besides six field pieces.

The Rajah of Checkane has detached a force of 1600 men, with four guns, to attack a body of 500 of these mutineers, who have taken possession of Julapore, on the Betwa, near Calpee.

The brother and nephew of the Nana are said to be on the right bank of the Jumna. A considerable force, consisting, it is said, of seven regiments and fourteen guns, has gone from the Banda direction to Chilla Tora Ghat, on the Jumna, and was reported to be still in that vicinity on the 14th January.

Barrackpore (Fort William).—The following ships have arrived with troops since the departure of the last mail:—

Ship "Marlborough," from England, with 7 sergeants Royal Artillery, and military stores.

Steamer "Viscount Canning," from Gravesend, with Royal Artillery on board.
 Steamer "Australia," from Galle, with 474 men of Her Majesty's 80th Regiment.
 Steamer "Himalaya," from Cape of Good Hope, with 250 horses.
 Steamer "Sydney," from Galle, with 127 men of Her Majesty's 13th; 110 men of Her Majesty's 80th; and 119 men of Her Majesty's 6th Regiment.
 Steamer "Megera," from the Cape of Good Hope, with 8 officers and 251 men of Her Majesty's 13th Light Infantry.
 Steamer "Undaunted," from Sydney, with 170 horses.
 Transport "Belgravia," from Moulmein, with 62 elephants.
 Her Majesty's steam-frigates "Chesapeake" and "Sparrow Hawk," and gun-boat "Mohawk" have arrived.

Bareilly.—It is said that Meerza Koohek, the son of the King of Delhi, and also Walee Dad Khan, who were guests of the Nawab of Furrackabad, have, since the re-occupation of Futtehghur, joined Khan Bahadoor Khan, at Bareilly. ● ●

Benares.—All quiet in this district.

Bolundshur.—A letter from Bolundshur of the 12th January, states that a body of the Rohileund insurgents continue opposite Anoopshuhur, under the command of Goolgeer Alee, the rebel Synd of Amrohah, who has been appointed a General by Khan Bahadoor.

They had for some days remained inactive, but were closely watched by Colonel Farquhar, commanding in the district, and Mr. Sapte, the Magistrate.

Cawnpore.—This district is still disturbed by the mutineers from Calpee, who, after the murder of the Central Police Establishment at Secundra, threatened an attack on the Tahseeldar of Dehra Mahalpore, but it was withdrawn in time.

Brigadier Carthew is to move from Ghauturpore to Bhogneepore, opposite Calpee, and Colonel Kelly is to move on Akbarpore to support him.

A moveable column is being organized by Brigadier Inglis, at Cawnpore, for the purpose of marching about the district in aid of the civil power.

Chyebassa.—Captain Hale, Commanding the Sikh Volunteers, had an encounter with a large body of insurgent Coles, numbering about 5000 men, on the 14th January, about twenty-two miles from Chyebassa. He dispersed one body, which he dislodged from a village and burnt it; but, owing to the density of the jungle, and to having been misled by his guide, he was necessitated to return to his camp, from whence it was determined to return to Chyebassa, as it was feared his communication might be cut off. Mounting his wounded men on the spare elephants, the party returned to Chyebassa, being much annoyed on the road by the Coles, who were, however, kept in check by the rear-guard. Altogether two men were killed, and twenty-five wounded, including all the officers attached to the party, civil and military: but the Coles are estimated to have lost 150 killed and wounded.

● Dacca.—Vide Sylhet.

Delhi.—The Rajah of Bullubghur was hung on the 9th January. An extensive capture of rebels is said to have been made on the same date at Shadeera and Kudreim Sheereef.

Futtehghur.—The Commander-in-Chief is still at Futtehghur, making all the necessary arrangements for an eventual move. His Excellency has detached one battalion to Mynpoorie, and another to a post between Cawnpore and Futtehghur; a brigade has moved out into the district to inflict punishment. Large quantities of stores belonging to the gun-carriage and clothing agencies, have been found untouched, and arrangements are in progress for re-organizing both.

The Nawab set fire to his palace before leaving, and what remains is being blown up by our Engineers. One of the Nawab's family was given up by the townspeople, and has been hanged. A brigade was dispatched from Futtehghur on the 6th January, to visit the very mutinous villages in the district, Shumshabad and Mhow; and, having accomplished the object of the expedition, has returned to Futtehghur.

Ghazeepore.—A body of sepoy mutineers having endeavoured to cross the Gogra at Tulleah, and to pass through the Ghazeepore District, a light force was sent out from Ghazeepore to make a demonstration, which had the desired effect, the mutineers retiring from the Gogra inland. The Ghazeepore District is perfectly tranquil.

Goruckpore.—This place was re-occupied on the 6th January by the force under Jung Bahadoor. The resistance was feeble, and the enemy were driven across the Raptée with the loss of seven guns and 200 killed. The Goorkha loss was trifling, two killed and seven wounded. No British officers hit. The country is friendly and supplies abundant, and the Civil Administration being fast re-established. Brigades having been detached into the districts to put down insurgent chiefs, one of the chief leaders of the rebels, Mushruff Khan, is said to have been captured.

Gwalior.—No news.

Jaunpore.—The force on the frontier is composed, according to the best information obtainable, of men armed principally with matchlocks and swords and with a few muskets, in a military sense, a mere rabble, yet composed of men of the military classes accustomed to the use of arms, and capable of a certain resistance. Their artillery has been, in some instances, well served; but the guns are of an old and miscellaneous description, and chiefly of small calibre. The force under Brigadier Franks is considered ample, not only to keep the district of Azimghur and Jaunpore from aggression, but also to restore the Civil Government if made use of for that purpose. General Franks' left column went to Secundra on the 21st. It will be joined immediately by two squadrons of the 2nd Dragoon Guards and four Horse-Artillery guns, from Allahabad, and an attack will then be made on the rebel Nazim at Soraon. The rebels towards the Gogra seem to be increasing in number, being, doubtless, reinforced by fugitives from Goruckpore.

Jelpigoree.—Captain Curzon's party returned to Jelpigoree on the 1st January, having been unsuccessful in their attempt to meet the Dacca mutineers. He speaks highly of the good behaviour of his detachment, especially of the men of the 73rd Native Infantry, who performed, willingly, every duty assigned them; and, on more than one occasion, gave up, unasked, their supplies to the Europeans when theirs ran short.

One sepoy of the 73rd, by name Deoram Doobey, side by side with a Goorkha, cut down a mutineer on the only occasion on which the detachment came up with any of them.

Jubbulpore.—Nothing new.

Lahore.—All is reported quiet in the Punjab.

Lucknow.—Sir James Outram was attacked on the 16th by a large force led on by a Hindoo fanatic, Beduhed'as Hunnooman, who was severely wounded and taken prisoner. Our loss was trifling, that of the rebels severe. This is the second attack within three days.

The "Nana" is said to be at Lucknow; and it is reported that Sharafood Dowlah has been dismissed from his post of Prime Minister to the Begum, Munnoo Khan having taken his place.

Mhow.—The 1st Brigade of Sir Hugh Rose's column is at this station. It will march along the Agra road, and will co-operate with the 2nd Brigade at Goonah.

Nagpore.—All is quiet in this province. The Commissioner reports, on the 10th January, that he was starting off 6000 slaughter bullocks, and 2000 carriage bullocks to Allahabad, and hoped in a few days to dispatch 100 horses in the same direction. Major-General Whitlock reached Kamptec on the 10th January, with a portion of his column.

Nynee Tal.—Major Ramsay, the Commissioner of Kemoan, has 1000 Foot, 666 Goorkhas, 250 Nepal Goorkhas, and 150 new levies, but only 50 men fit for service, out of 300 newly-raised horse. He has a few light field guns, and some mountain guns, and two howitzers of the latter description mounted on elephants. He is about to commence operations for clearing the Serai, which would otherwise afford dangerous shelter for the fugitive rebels.

Captain Ramsay is about to commence barracks for a regiment at or near Nynee Tal.

Oude.—A force of 5000 matchlock men are reported to be at Roy Bareilly, in Oude, and to have sent two companies of sepoys on to Dalmon to collect supplies.—For all other news, see under Lucknow.

Patna.—All quiet.

Rohileund.—It is said that there is great disorder, and much dissension among the rebels in this province, especially since the re-occupation of Futtehghur. Many of the chiefs have left, some for Lucknow, and others for Central India, and others are in a great state of alarm and confusion. Bodies of insurgents are still collected, however, on some of the Ghauts on the Ganges, as reported under Allyghur and Bolundshuhur.

On the 1st January, a party of the Bareilly insurgents, 1000 strong, with two guns, attacked Huldwane, but were driven off with loss, by a party of 66 Goorkhas and Nepaul Goorkhas. A strong party of the insurgents is still posted on the road between Bareilly and Huldwane: reported to be about 4000, with two guns.

The object of this force seems to be less that of attack, than to prevent communication between Nynee Tal and the plains. Supplies from the plains have been stopped, and the latter post rendered uncertain. The Nawab of Rampore, who has proved himself a most faithful subject and ally, expresses no doubt but that he would subdue this force with his own troops, and is ready to order them out, if directed; but the expediency of his doing so is doubtful.

Saugor.—The Bundeelas from Bapyle having, on the 12th December, endeavoured to cut off the grass-cutters attached to the 3rd Irregular Cavalry, a small force was sent out to punish them. On arriving at the village, it was found occupied, and the rebels opened fire on the detachment, which was, however, soon put down, and the village carried and plundered.

As the insurgents were shortly reinforced in considerable numbers, our party returned to Saugor, having carried out the orders given, and any further operations appearing imprudent.

The loss of the rebels was estimated at 100 killed and wounded; ours was only eleven killed and wounded. Sir Hugh Rose was to be at Saugor on the 15th January with the 2nd brigade of his column, and was to move upon Jhansi.

Seharunpore.—The Begnora insurgents, who had been attempting incursion into the Scharunpore and Mozuffernuggur Districts, and who, on the 8th January, carried off a telegraphic signaller and two Native Christians, received a decisive check on or about the 10th January, at Mozapore, near the head of the Ganges Canal, in the Sarunpore District. Captain Boisragon, with 70 Sikhs and Goorkhas, and 10 Europeans, and two guns, fell in with 1000 of them and completely dispersed them; 100 were killed, and, the Mozapore dam having been opened to cut off their escape, many more were drowned. A man of rank, supposed to be the Nawab Alunee Doolla, was wounded, and his nephew killed by Captain Boisragon himself.

Sumbulpore.—This place has been relieved, and the road between that place and Raepore has been opened, and the whole of the Raepore District has been cleared of rebels.

The force engaged in this service consisted of a detachment of the Nagpore Irregular Cavalry, of the 3rd Nagpore Irregular Infantry, and two guns of the Horse Battery, the whole under the command of the Baron Von Myem; together with a detachment of the 40th Madras Native Infantry, from Cuttack. The troops behaved admirably. Several of the passes were carried, and the enemy suffered heavy loss, besides many prisoners and spies taken. Our own loss was most trifling. Our own zemindars, in the Raepore District, behaved most loyally.

Sylhet.—The Sylhet Light Infantry have continued to behave most admirably, following up the Chittagong mutineers who have been completely disorganized, the few left having hid in the jungles, and they will probably fall into the hands of the troops of the Muneepore Rajah. In consequence of the admirable conduct of the Sylhet Light Infantry, the Commissioners have dispensed with the services of the detachment of Her Majesty's 54th Regiment, which has returned to Dacca, and from thence is to be sent to Calcutta.

Futtehghur, January 6, 1858.

IT having been found necessary to establish a strong post at Meerum-Ka-Serai, half way between Cawnpore and Futtehghur, I would suggest to your Lordship the advisability of intrusting the Officer commanding the post, viz., Captain Stafford, 4th Native Infantry, with the powers of a Special Commissioner whilst he is so detached; indeed, it appears expedient that all Officers so employed, but out of immediate reach of Civil Authority, should be endowed with this power. I shall be obliged by your Lordship's instructions.

I SHALL be occupied for the next two or three days in changing carriage, and making other arrangements. A brigade moves into the district to-morrow to inflict punishment. I have detached one battalion to Mynpoorie; another forms a post half way to Cawnpore; a third will have to be stationed here. Thus, while gaining strength in Cavalry, the Infantry of the force is already diminished. I wait your Lordship's instructions. The report of my proceedings since leaving Cawnpore, goes by the post of to-morrow.

MAY the services of Lieutenant Carey, 37th Native Infantry, now at Benares, be made over to command the Allahabad Police levy? It is a low-caste levy. He is willing to give up his present Staff appointment to take the levy. We have a good many men partially drilled, but we cannot any longer get on without a military officer to command. Also, may the services of Lieutenant Cockerell, 4th Light Cavalry, be made over for command of a Cavalry Police Corps? He writes for the appointment. I have seventy-five horses ready here; a commandant is indispensable. I propose to report, officially, on Police Levies immediately.

GORUCKPORE was taken on the 6th, by the forces of Jung Bahadoor. Enemy opened fire first at a nullah, a few miles from Goruckpore; but their position was carried with great spirit by the Goorkhas, and they were pursued to Goruckpore, where they had entrenched themselves strongly. They offered, however, but a feeble resistance, and were speedily driven across the Raptée. Seven guns were taken. Two hundred of the enemy killed. Goorkha loss, two killed and seven wounded. No British Officers hit. Country very friendly, and supplies abundant. One message received from the Brigadier-Colonel Rowcroft, at Devrya.

Goruckpore, January 6, 1858.

THE Army under the command of Maharajah Jung Bahadoor, occupied the station and city of Goruckpore this day at 2 P.M. Our passage was at first disturbed at a nullah in the middle of the jungles in front of Goruckpore; and, secondly, at the entrance to the station. The rebels, however, made no real stand. After giving a few rounds on the advance of our parties they fled, and were pursued to the Raptée. In their endeavour to cross there some hundreds were killed, with trifling loss on our side. We have captured six guns and two zumbooraks. More by post to-morrow. This message received by the Commissioner of Patna, via Soan, at 7 A.M. the 11th. The account sent yesterday, was taken from a letter of Doctor Dickens which, by accident, outstripped the Brigadier's express.

I THINK it more advisable to take old soldiers from a well-drilled regiment in this country for the camel corps, belonging to Colonel McMurdo, than to send for young ones from England. This will insure immediate efficiency; whereas, those sent from England now could not be so good for twelve months, as they would have to learn the use of their rifles. I have a project arranged which I will explain by letter.

THE following was received from George Plowden, Esq., Commissioner, Nagpore, dated 10th January, 6.15 p.m., to be forwarded to you:—"Please to refer to my message dated the 19th ultimo. Sumbulpore has been relieved, and the road between that place and Raepore has been opened. Captain Wood, with a squadron of the Nagpore Irregular Cavalry, reached Sumbulpore from Nagpore; and on the 29th of December, having made out the march there sixty miles in eighteen days, the next morning at 3 a.m., he proceeded against a party of the rebels with a force consisting of 73 of Nagpore Irregular Cavalry, 150 of the 40th Madras Native Infantry, and 50 of the Ramghur Infantry. At daybreak, the Cavalry being in advance, surprised the rebels, 500 or 600 in number, encamped in a gorse land: immediately charged them, Captain Wood killing three men with his own hand. The Infantry coming up, the rebels were put to flight, fifty-three were killed and many more probably escaped into the jungles. A number of matchlocks and other weapons fell into our hands. On our side, Captain Wood was slightly wounded in the shoulder by an arrow, and nine others, including Doctor Wyndowe, were also wounded by arrows. Soonder Raj, who was said to be in the encampments, escaped; but three leaders of importance, including a brother of Soonder Raj, was killed. The Nagpore Cavalry acquitted themselves most beautifully. The reinforcement of the 40th Madras Native Infantry from Cuttack had not arrived. Sumbulpore was thus first relieved from hence, on the 30th of November. I heard of the interruption of the dāk communication on the 30th of December. Captain Wood, with Cavalry from Nagpore, attacked and defeated the rebels at Sumbulpore District, 360 from Nagpore, and 140 from beyond our frontier. In consequence of this promptitude, Soonder Raj's men are already disheartened. I will report by telegraph as soon as the dāk runners have been re-established."

He attacked the position of the rebels in the Singhore Pass, about sixty miles distant from Sumbulpore, and carried it. Colonel Bate, with the remainder of the 40th Native Infantry, and more guns, were daily expected at Sumbulpore. Lieutenant Rybot's detachment has been re-called to the Jond River, where Captain Shakespeare has established his headquarters with the remainder of the Irregular Cavalry. The force which is opening against the Ramgers and Shaporañ rebels of the Saugor and Nerbudda territories on the northern frontier of the Raepore District, consists of 400 of the 3rd Irregular Infantry, a troop of Irregular Cavalry, and 200 of the Horse Battery, commanded by Lieutenant Playfair, the whole under the command of Captain the Baron Von Meyern. On the 26th ultimo, the Baron forced the Bunnoo Pass and took possession of all the approaches, driving out a strong body of the rebels, with the loss of only one man on our side. The Bunnoo Pass is in the Raepore District, about 120 miles north of Sumbulpore; it was a formidable obstacle. A few days after, the Baron drove the rebels out of the Mombs Pass, about forty-five miles further north, leading into Rohogpore. The rebels had constructed two stockades on the difficult pass. Having been shelled out of this, they were also assaulted and put to flight by the Infantry and pursued by the Cavalry. Many were killed and wounded, and some prisoners and many spies were taken. Full particulars not yet received. The rebels have thus been driven out of this province, and the Baron will, I have no doubt, soon recover the Mundeallah district of Saugor and Nerbudda territories. Inclosure 31 in No. 2.

The Secretary to Government, Central Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Allahabad, January 6, 1858.

I AM directed by the Lieutenant-Governor, Central Provinces, to report for the information of the Governor-General in Council, the measures taken on the receipt of his Lordship's instructions regarding the force collected under Brigadier-General Franks, conveyed in your letter dated 9th December.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor lost no time in conveying to General Franks an assurance of his cordial co-operation in all things, and in furnishing him with a general view of the state of the frontier, the defence of which was the main object of the collection of this force. A copy of this communication is annexed.*

3. Orders were at the same time issued to the Magistrates of Jaunpore and Azinghur, to assist General Franks in every way, and to keep him constantly informed of all events of importance, and Colonel Wroughton was directed to hold himself at the disposal of the General also. Copies of these papers are also submitted.

4. Subsequently, on General Franks' suggestion, three Civil Officers with magisterial powers, have been specially posted to the three columns into which the force is now divided. Copies of the instructions they have received are annexed.

* Inclosure 32 in No. 2.

5. With reference to the inquiry made in the seventh paragraph of your letter before adverted to, as to the nature of the force of the enemy on the Oude frontier and its armament, I am directed to say, that from the best information available which the Lieutenant-Governor considers to be trustworthy, the mass of the force is composed of the retainers of the Talookdars on the frontiers, armed with matchlocks and swords. Some few may have flint firelocks and muskets. Although there has been some sort of effort to organize them into regiments, they can still, in a military sense, be called only a rabble; but yet a rabble, composed of men of the military classes who have been accustomed to the use of arms, and to be constantly fighting with one another, and with the former King's troops, from their earliest youth. The officers best able to judge are of opinion that one-fourth of their numbers may be looked upon as good fighting men, who, though undisciplined, are capable of offering a certain resistance, and that the rest need not be much regarded. Their artillery has, in some instances, been well and bravely served. The guns are a miscellaneous collection of old brass and iron pieces, chiefly of small calibre, but some have been taken carrying 12-pound shot, and others of larger size are reported to be in their possession.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor further desires me to remark, that from all the information he has obtained of the state of affairs in the part of Oude adjoining the Jaunpore and Azinghur Districts, and of the condition of our own districts on the border, there can be no doubt that the large force, now made available, under General Franks, is very ample and, perhaps, more even than will be found requisite to make the provinces behind it absolutely secure from aggression. And if it is used in support of the civil power in our old districts, but only if it is so used, it will also, without doubt, keep Azinghur and Jaunpore tranquil, and maintain Civil Government in full force therein, whilst it would also suffice to recover completely that part of the Allahabad District north of the Ganges, which the so-called Nazim has been allowed to usurp, and, till within the last twenty-four hours, to maintain, with impunity.

I have, &c.

R. STRACHEY, Lieutenant-Colonel.

Inclosure 32 in No. 2.

The Secretary to Government, Central Provinces, to Brigadier-General Franks, Benares.

Sir,

Benares, December 13, 1857.

THE Lieutenant-Governor, Central Provinces, has received from the Governor-General a copy of the instructions given to you by his Lordship, and he directs me to take the earliest opportunity of assuring you that you shall obtain from this Government the most perfect information, and the best assistance that it is in the power of the Lieutenant-Governor and of the Civil Department to afford.

2. I have had the honor, under the Lieutenant-Governor's instructions, since your arrival at Benares, of keeping you constantly informed of all the intelligence received from the exposed frontiers. I shall continue to report to you personally all matters of moment so long as the head-quarters of this Government, and you yourself, remain at Benares. After the departure of either one or other, the Magistrates and Mr. Carnegie, who has charge of the Oude Intelligence Department, will be directed to report events to you daily, or oftener, on the occurrence of any emergency, as they have hitherto been in the habit of reporting to this Government.

3. Lieutenant Colonel Wroughton, in charge of the Goorkha troops in the Jaunpore and Azinghur Districts, has been instructed to consider himself henceforth under your orders, as he has hitherto been under those of Lieutenant-Colonel Longden. You are aware that these troops are under the command of Colonel Puhlwan Sing, of the Nepaulese army, and are an independent, though allied body. Colonel Wroughton's functions are to form the medium of communication with the Goorkha Commander, to afford that officer his advice and support, and to look to the payment, the Commissariat arrangements, &c., of the Goorkha force while it is in British territory. In regard to matters relating to the internal economy of the Goorkha troops under Colonel Puhlwan Sing, Lieutenant-Colonel Wroughton will continue to correspond with me directly. In regard to all movements and operations in the field, he will communicate with you only.

4. The objects at present assigned by the Governor-General to the force to be collected under your command are as follows:—"To protect Benares against attack or insult ;” “to prevent the rebels from crossing the Ganges, near Benares, into Behar ;” “to drive them to a distance from Benares, and to recover any district which they may have occupied.” In making your arrangements to meet these objects, the Lieutenant-Governor thinks that you may find a brief description of the state of the frontier, and of the results of the experience of the last three-months, useful.

5. Beginning from the north, you will find the district of Goruckpore in the hands of Rebel Nazim, or governor, by name, Mahomed Hussein. With the exception of some isolated parties of Sepoys, the strength of which is variously reported, but which in all may be estimated to be between 1500 and 3000 men, the troops of this leader are an undisciplined body of matchlock men. He is in possession of several guns, probably ten or more. His entire force is called 12,000 or 15,000 men. Constant threats have been made of his intended invasion of the Azimghur District, which is flanked along its whole north-eastern border by Goruckpore, the Gogra running between them ; but no further overt act has taken place beyond the collection of boats ; and the inclination of his followers to risk an attack, which, in the case of defeat, would lead to their being driven into the Gogra, is rather doubtful.

6. Of the Sepoys in the Goruckpore District, that body which alone at present immediately threatens these provinces is collected in the vicinity of Buruj Ghat, near the junction of the Raptec and Gogra. The numbers of this body are very differently reported ; they may amount to from 600 to 2000 men, including certainly many wounded men. Of their objects nothing is certainly known, but it is believed that they purpose to cross into Shahabad, near Bhajpore. This they may do in a body, or they may attempt to cross or to drop down the Gogra in small parties. A nephew of Koor Sing is said to be of the party, and the men are represented to be men of Bhajpore and Arrah.

7. The prevention of the passage of these mutineers into Shahabad, more especially if the attempt is made in a body, is, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, an important object. The Lieutenant-Governor has already taken what precautions he can by means of police arrangements to prevent their passage across the Ganges.

8. In connection with this part of the frontier line, the fact of the presence of the disarmed 65th Regiment of Native Infantry at Ghazeepore will not escape your notice.

9. To advert next to the condition of the Oude frontier,—portions of three of the districts of the Central Provinces come into contact with Oude between the Ganges and Gogra, viz., Azimghur, Jaunpore, and Allahabad. The general character of the hostile levies is much the same along the whole line, though the activity of the rebels, and the numbers in which they collect are various, from one part of the border to another, and from one day to another. The apparent head of the Oude rebels on this frontier is Mehudee Hussun, the so-styled Nazim of Sultanpore. With very few exceptions, the whole of the chief landowners, or talookdars, are here in arms against us, each with a body of matchlock men, and the more important with their complement of light field artillery. Although these men are to a great extent properly designated as a rabble, still they are an Oude rabble, carrying arms, and accustomed to fighting amongst each other and against the king's troops from their earliest youth. There has been some effort made at organization into regiments ; and on one occasion a portion of those engaged fought well, and inflicted considerable loss on the Goorkhas. Of the 15,000 men lately assembled at Chanda, it is supposed by those best informed that about 5000 men will fight with more or less courage, and that the rest need not be much regarded. This force has now broken up into four subdivisions. Till now no definite body of Sepoys has made its appearance on this frontier, excepting on the north, on the Azimghur border, where a party of about 250 mutineers was recently engaged, with a more numerous body of the rebels, by the force under Colonel Longden.

10. In addition to the rebellious talookdars of Oude, two of the tribes occupying country on both sides of the border of the Jaunpore and Azimghur Districts are disposed to take advantage of any opportunity to rise and follow their natural propensity to plunder, viz., the Pulwars on the Azimghur border, and the Rajcoomars on the Jaunpore border. A principal chief of the Pulwars, Madhoo Pershad, a resident of the Azimghur District, is understood to be at the present time in Goruckpore, threatening an attack on Azimghur from that quarter. He appears to have distinctly joined the Oude rebels. The two leaders of the Rajcoomars, Oodres Sing and Chundres Sing, are in arms against us, with Mehudee Hussun, near Chanda.

11. There has been, it is well ascertained, a deliberately-formed design of the rebel Government of Oude, which it has been the task of the Nazim Mehudee Hussun, of Sultanpore, to try to carry out, to drive our officers from the Azimghur and Jaunpore Districts, and to set up a rebel Government on the part of the Court of Lucknow in their stead. The gatherings of talookdaree levies on the frontier, and their incursions across it, have been all apparently instigated by the Lucknow chiefs.

12. Hitherto, in the Jaunpore and Azimghur Districts all invasions have been speedily repelled and chastised, and no hold has been established by the Oude rebels upon any portion of these districts. It is true that inroads have been made, and are still made, on our villages and Police Stations; but the country has never been in their hands for any of the purposes of government since it was reoccupied by the Goorkhas at the commencement of September last. The outstanding balance of revenue has from that time been steadily in the course of collection.

13. It is far different, however, with respect to that portion of the Allahabad District lying between the Ganges and Jaunpore. A tract, extending from the Oude border nearly to the Grand Trunk Road on the south, of which Phoolpore is the centre, has been for months past, and still remains, in the undisputed power of the usurping Government, or of upstart individual rebels. The revenue has been collected by these persons, zemindars favourable to our Government have been plundered or otherwise maltreated, our officials have been murdered or imprisoned, all as yet with impunity. They have now carried their insolence so far as to establish a picket at the Papu-Mhow Ghat, five miles from the fort of Allahabad. The forces of the rebels in this tract are, it is confidently believed, little more than a rabble. Their cowardice and utter want of enterprise are evinced by their never having dared to disturb our posts on the Trunk Road, some of which have for months not exceeded 50 men. It is much to be regretted that the exigencies of the service elsewhere have been hitherto such as to have prevented the employment of troops in this quarter, whilst even the small number of police levies that would be requisite to clear this tract is not available. The Lieutenant-Governor sincerely trusts that this mark of weakness may now very shortly be effaced, and that these insults may be avenged with some signal chastisement.

I have, &c.

R. STRACHEY, Lieutenant-Colonel.

The Officer Commanding at Ghazee pore to the Officiating Assistant Adjutant-General of Her Majesty's Forces.

Sir,

Ghazee pore, December 26, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to forward for the information of the Commander of the Forces, the report of Colonel Milman, commanding the Light Field Force, which I ordered to proceed to Bulliah on the 12th instant, and to inform you that I made the demonstration on the representation of the Magistrate of this district, who informed me that a body of Sepoy mutineers were on the left bank of the Gogra, endeavouring to cross that river at Tutecha, and make their way across the eastern part of this district to the Ganges, and crossing to their homes in the Arrah District. The demonstration had the desired effect, and the mutineers retired from the bank of the Gogra and went inland.

The district up to this period has been perfectly tranquil.

Colonel Milman's force returned yesterday.

Inclosure 39 in No. 2.

Colonel Milman, Commanding Wing Her Majesty's 37th Regiment, to Colonel Dumes.

Sir,

Ghazee pore, December 25, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to acquaint you for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that in accordance with orders received, I marched with a Light Field Force, as per margin,* from Ghazee pore, on the 12th instant, and proceeded to Bulliah, where I encamped on the 15th. When at Bulliah, the District Magistrate, Mr. Brereton, communicated by letter with Lieutenant Gully, commanding Goorkhas at Ghosee, and I informed Brigadier Christie, commanding at Dinapore, of my presence. When at Burragong (Chit), I received a letter from Captain Sotheby, Royal Navy, commanding Naval Brigade with Colonel Rowcroft's force at Myrwa (nine miles from Sewun). I marched from Bulliah on the 19th, and encamped at Phipana on the Surjoo river. I made an advance in another direction (north-west) and encamped at Gurwar. The whole country we passed through was perfectly tranquil; and from the information received from Mr. Brereton, who accompanied my force, movements in these two directions prevented the mutineers from crossing the Gogra river. From intelligence received, it appeared that on my arrival at Bulliah, the rebels retired some distance inland from the left bank of the Gogra. My orders were "not to move out of this district." It was difficult to obtain information that could be relied upon. Having performed this duty, I arrived this morning at Ghazee pore. The men marched well, and I only brought in one private sick.

Inclosure 40 in No. 2.

Extract of a Letter from the Magistrate of Ghazepore, dated Bulliah, December 23, 1857.

I SHALL feel much obliged if you will convey to your officers and men my best thanks for the exemplary manner in which the latter have conducted themselves in my district. I have not had a single complaint of any kind during the march of the troops, and the best possible feeling has been raised amongst the inhabitants towards the Europeans.

Inclosure 41 in No. 2.

The Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Agra, January 6, 1858.

COLONEL FRASER has, I think, already reported the attempted descent on Bolundshuhur by the Rohilcund rebels, on receiving telegraphic information of the same. We have now received Mr. Sapte's letter; it is dated the 4th. He says, that on the previous day, the rebels attempted to cross at Anoopshuhur, but were driven back. "We move out towards Anoopshuhur to-night. I hear they are also collecting opposite Ram Ghat," which is some miles farther down the river. Mr. Sapte accordingly requested Major Eld, if possible, to move out from Allyghur towards Atroulic, in order to check the rebels at the latter Ghat. He adds that the enemy had brought down guns to the Ghat, and were firing across.

Major Eld, writing from his camp in the interior of the Allyghur District, in a letter dated yesterday, expresses his intention of starting for Allyghur this day, and of being at Atroulic to-morrow.

I do not know exactly how many men either Colonel Farquhar (commanding in the Bolundshuhur District), or Major Eld can bring into the field, not more, however, I think, than 500 or 600 at the outside. The march eastward of the two columns (Grant's and Seaton's) has, of course, greatly weakened the available forces in the Meerut Division, and any incursion from the opposite bank would have a most agitating effect upon the Doab. It is in the last degree improbable that the pusillanimous and ill-furnished troops of Rohilcund could effect a lodgment on this bank, but their attempts, and their reported intentions, have a very harassing effect.

In addition to the military reasons for the early occupation of the western portion of Rohilcund, which must be under the consideration of the Commander-in-Chief, there is one to which Lieutenant-Colonel Baird Smith has just called my attention in a letter dated Roorkee, the 4th instant. He says, that unless something is soon done for the re-occupation of Western Rohilcund, he believes our capacity to give cover to the troops will be seriously affected, for it "essentially depends on the re-opening of the Putlee Doon forests," to the north of Bignore. "We can get no timber fit for barracks anywhere else." Colonel Baird Smith, as Director of the Ganges Canal and Controller of the Roorkee workshops, has the charge of the forests in these parts, and is the highest authority on the subject.

Major Ramsay, Commissioner of Kumaon, is ready to commence operations for clearing the Terai, which would otherwise, no doubt, afford dangerous shelter to the fugitive troops. He has 1000 Foot, viz., 600 of the 66th, 250 Nepaul Goorkhas, and 150 of his own levies. He speaks well of the whole. He is badly off for Cavalry. There are 300 newly-raised horse, but as yet only 50 are fit for use. He has a few 6-pounders and some mountain guns. Two of the mountain howitzers are on elephants.

Captain Ramsay is about to commence barracks for a regiment at, or near, Nynce Tall.

I believe that I need not apologize for writing at such length, as I am expected to keep the Head-Quarters informed of any general intelligence which is received at Agra bearing upon his Excellency's operations.

It afforded us great satisfaction to hear of his Excellency's success at the Khodugunge bridge, preliminary, as we do not doubt, to the entire dislodgment, long before this, of the rebels from Furruckabad.

Mr. Raikes writes from Umballa, that he intended to start on the 4th, and hoped soon to join the Commander-in-Chief.

Inclosure 42 in No. 2.

Brigadier Sage, Commanding Saugor Force, to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Head-Quarters, Fort Saugor, December 16, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Government of India, that the Bundeelās from Bapyle having, on Saturday the 12th instant, attempted to surprise and cut off the grass-cutters and their ponies attached to the 3rd Irregular Cavalry, it was considered prudent to punish them, and a force, as per margin,* was detached on the morning of the 14th to effect this, and to return to Saugor.

2. This caution is necessary, in consequence of the numbers of the rebel Bundeelas occupying the whole country, with the exception of a circle of about three miles round the cantonments and city, and a large body always stationed at Nurrecoulee.

3. I inclose a copy of the report of the officer commanding the detachment. The object of the expedition was well carried out, and the Sepoys are entitled to much credit for the steadiness they evinced in carrying the village; and the practice of the artillery was excellent.

4. I regret much to report that, by following the enemy too far, and waiting for permission to burn the village, instead of returning immediately to Saugor, time was allowed for the enemy to rally behind a breastwork, and obtain reinforcements far outnumbering the small detachment which had taken the village, and about a mile of the road near the village of Bapyle, being flanked by a hill covered with thick jungle, the detachment retired so precipitately to clear the jungle, that the killed were left on the ground; and I am afraid it must be allowed that the victory was considered secure before it was really won, and the detachment was taken somewhat by surprise.

5. The artilleryman, strange to say, was not missed until the detachment returned to the fort, and the reports regarding his fate are contradictory. The man, no doubt, left his comrades and went into the village; and one account states that he was cut down, and another that he was shot while bringing out three prisoners. It is very much to be regretted that his body was not brought away.

6. The village was completely plundered by the townspeople and troops; and I forward a copy of the order I thought it right to issue on the occasion. The loss of the detachment is stated in Captain Finch's report, and also that of the enemy. The natives say the Bundeelas lost 250 men, but I should think the number reported to be much nearer the truth.

I have, &c.

WM. SAGE, Brigadier,
Commanding Saugor District Force.

Inclosure 43 in No. 2.

Garrison Morning Orders by Brigadier Sage.

Fort Saugor, December 15, 1857.

THE officers commanding the 31st, 42nd, and Detachments will cause all cattle and plunder of every description, taken from Bapyle yesterday, to be made over to the civil power.

Lieutenant Ellis, in charge of the Sudder Bazaar, will order a strict search to be made, and deliver over all plunder to the civil authority; and in future he will cause every person who leaves the Sudder Bazaar, when a detachment goes out, for the purpose of following the troops and plundering, to be flogged.

Commanding officers of corps and detachments will explain to their men, that nothing is more disgraceful to a soldier than to leave his ranks and plunder. Yesterday,

* 1ST COMPANY 3RD BATTALION ARTILLERY:—2 9-pounder guns, 1 24-pounder howitzer; 1 Captain, 1 Second Lieutenant, 2 Serjeants, 2 Corporals, 1 Bugler, 22 Gunners.

31ST REGIMENT NATIVE INFANTRY:—1 Captain, 5 Subadars, 5 Jemadars, 21 Havildars, 18 Naicks, 3 Buglers, 130 Sepoys.

the good conduct and steadiness of the men in taking Bapyle was sullied by the soldiers dropping off, until their numbers were so reduced that a sufficient force was not left in the ranks to finish the work they had so well begun.

The Brigadier warns the soldiers against such practices; the penalty is death, or such other punishment as a court-martial may award, and the penalty will be exacted.

Inclosure 44 in No. 2.

Captain Finch to the Station Staff of Brigadier Sage.

Sir,

Saugor Fort, December 15, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of Brigadier W. Sage, Commanding the Saugor District, that agreeably to orders I marched yesterday morning from the fort at a quarter past 4, A.M. (with detachment as per margin),* and proceeded to Bhopail, distance 8 miles from the Saugor cantonment.

We arrived in sight of the village of Bhopail at daylight, and instead of surprising the Bundeclahs as we expected, we found them ready to receive us, and they were the first to commence the firing.

The village of Bhopail is situated at the foot of a precipitous hill of about three-quarters of a mile in length, and consists principally of large stone loop-holed houses, which were filled with matchlock men, who kept up a heavy fire on our troops.

I put the three guns (under Captain Marshall) in a commanding position, and fired round shot, shell, and shrapnel, with the most admirable effect, for upwards of two hours, when the enemy's fire decreased. I then detached a party of 80 men to crown the height commanding the village. The enemy, who were wavering, seeing that they were about to be out-flanked, made for the hills. As soon as I perceived this, I advanced about 50 men straight into the village, and we carried it with very little loss on our side. In the meantime, the 80 men carried the heights most gallantly under a very heavy fire, and followed the enemy up about half-a-mile along the top of the hill, until the Bundeclahs again took refuge in a stronghold.

The Bhopail force I estimate at 2000 matchlock men, and every praise is due to all parties for the gallant way in which they behaved.

I now blew the recall, and took a gun to cover the retreat, as I heard that large bodies of men were seen coming from the Neriowlee direction, and I was afraid our detached party might be outnumbered and cut off; very fortunate it was I did so: for no sooner had my men returned, than the Neriowlee Bundeclah force, consisting of 2000 or 3000 men (in addition to the Bhopail force), poured in on three sides, covered the adjacent hills, and entered the village.

As I had strictly carried out the Brigadier's orders, and severely punished the Bhopail people, and as we were now exposed to a very heavy fire from three sides, I considered it prudent to return to Saugor.

I estimate the enemy's loss at upwards of 100 killed; and our loss is one European gunner, and one jemadar, one havildar, and four Sepoys killed, and four Sepoys wounded, all of the 31st Regiment, Native Infantry.†

We returned to the Saugor cantonment about half-past 2 o'clock, P.M., also having taken three prisoners.

A list of killed and wounded is herewith inclosed.

Captain Curzon to the Adjutant-General of the Army, Calcutta.

Sir,

Seligoree, December 4, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report my arrival at this place this afternoon. I moved in consequence of a letter from Dr. Campbell, Superintendent of Darjeeling, informing me that the Dacca mutineers were marching on Jelpigoree, and that Colonel Sherer had gone out to fight them; I considered that I should be of more service here, or at Titalyah, than at Pankahbaree, in case of any accident to Colonel Sherer. At this moment I have received a letter from the Magistrate of Jelpigoree, requesting me to move on Jelpigoree without delay.

I start at 2 o'clock A.M. to-morrow morning, and shall not lose a moment on the way.

I have, &c.

E. G. CURZON, Captain,
Commanding Field Force.

Inclosure 47 in No. 2.

Colonel Sherer to the Assistant Adjutant-General, Barrackpore.

Sir,

Jelpigoree, December 4, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of the Major-General Commanding the Division, that I heard yesterday from the Collector of Rungpore, to the effect that the mutineers had not crossed the Berhampoota.

2. He was unable to acquaint me with the direction they had taken.

3. The Commissioner at Purneah will send a party of Europeans, with 2 guns, to Kishengunge (60 miles from this), and the Superintendent of Darjeeling has marched the Europeans of that depôt, as also the Goorkha Sappers, to Pankabaree (one long march from us); ere this reaches, too, I hope the sailors, now en route to Rungpore, will have reached that station, when the district may be considered safe.

4. The troops at Jelpigoree are behaving admirably.

5. I am expecting a reinforcement of Goorkhas.

I have, &c.

G. M. SHERER, Colonel,
Commanding 73rd Regiment, Native Infantry.

P.S.—An express just arrived, to the effect that the rebels have not crossed the Berhampoota, but are reported as marching their way towards the Carribaree Hills. Sailors expected at Rungpore very soon.

Captain Curzon to the Station Staff, Jelpigoree

Sir,

Seligoree, December 29, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report my arrival at this place this afternoon. I shall move to-morrow morning towards Jelpigoree. Mr. Yule and his party left this place this morning, in the hopes of catching the mutineers on the borders of Nepaul.

Last night (at Phoolbaree), hearing that some ten or twelve of the mutineers, who were still remaining in Bootan, were about to attempt crossing the Teesta, I sent Mr. Murray, Commanding the Goorkhas, with a few of his own men and of the 73rd Regiment, Native Infantry, to intercept them if possible.

I regret to say, they only succeeded in killing one scoundrel; the rest, I believe, swam across to the Bootan side of the river, and got safe off.

I have, &c.

E. G. CURZON, Captain,
Commanding Field Force.

Inclosure 50 in No. 2.

Captain Curzon to the Station Staff, Jelpigoree.

Sir,

Jelpigoree, January 1, 1858.

IN reporting my return to the Station after an unsuccessful expedition, extending over 12 days, in pursuit of the Daeca mutineers, I think it only a duty to myself to state that my firm opinion is, had Mr. Yule remained in his position in the Seligoree and Pankabaree Road, or, at any rate, not moved towards Chuna Ghât without informing me, so as to obtain my co-operation, the destruction of these scoundrels would have been an accomplished fact. If he had only communicated with me after his arrival at Chuna, and when he found he was unable to attack them, he should have had the co-operation of my force, and with it I have not a doubt as to the result; as it is, I much fear they will escape.

The officer commanding may imagine the bitter feeling of regret one and all of us feel at so unfortunate a termination of no ordinary exertions, and I can only assure Colonel Sheier that no labour has been spared on our part, and every effort for their destruction has been made by me that prudence would dictate. We have had great difficulties to contend with, the nature of the country is such that, without elephants, it is almost impossible to move European troops, certainly with anything like celerity; great difficulty in procuring information, and the almost certainty that, unless actually caught in the act of crossing the river, the result of an attack would not be commensurate to the probable loss on our part.

I would wish to bring to the notice of the officer commanding the excellent behaviour of all the men under my command, and particularly to mention that of the detachment, 73rd Native Infantry, under Lieutenant Fortescue; they have performed every duty I have asked of them admirably and willingly, and on more than one occasion have, unasked, given up their own supplies to the Europeans when they ran short; they also, on another occasion, gave them all their tobacco. One Sepoy, Deoram Doobee by name, side by side with a Goorkha, cut down a mutineer on the only occasion we came across any of them. As far as I can judge no men could have behaved better, and I consider them quite as trustworthy as any of my force.

I have, &c.

E. G. CURZON, Captain,
Commanding Field Force.

Inclosure 52 in No. 2.

The Officer commanding Sumbulpore Field Force to the Station Staff Officer, Cuttack.

Sir,

Kullesbugah, November 15, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to state for the information of the officer commanding Cuttack that from reports brought in by the Senior Assistant-Commissioner's spies and my own, I felt confident that the rebels were collecting in the direction of Kheenda and Kolaberah, and that a large body of them, under Kuma Ghuroteea, of Kolaberah, had taken possession of the Thur Ghatty Pass. I, therefore, determined to order out a detachment for the purpose of dispersing them.

2. Lieutenant Hadow of the Artillery, having joined me with two mountain train howitzers yesterday, and the Senior Assistant-Commissioner having placed under my command a jemadar and thirty men of the Ramghur battalion, and thirty seebundies, a detachment, strength as per margin,* marched from Sumbulpore under my command this morning.

3. We proceeded in the direction of Thur Ghatty, the jungle on either side of the road, particularly as we approached the pass, was so dense that it was with difficulty our flanking parties could force their way through it, at the same time I considered it necessary to proceed with every precaution.

* 2 Mountain train howitzers, Second Lieutenant Hadow; 2 companies 40th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry, with Lieutenant and Acting Adjutant Hart and Ensign Nepean; 1 Jemadar and 80 men Ramghur Battalion, and 30 seebundies.

4. On arriving at Sansan, we learnt that no news of our coming had preceded us, consequently we advanced with the utmost despatch towards Thur Ghatty, our object being to reach that place before the rebels should gain information of our approach; in this we were entirely successful.

5. About half-a-mile from the pass, the road wound round under a hill to our right. Advancing along this road, for about 100 yards, we came to a large swamp with high thickly-wooded hills to our left, the pass itself being directly in our front.

6. As soon as we arrived under the hill first mentioned, a tomtom from that quarter was loudly beaten by the rebels, and some firearms were discharged at us, but no one was visible from my position at the head of the two companies of the 40th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry.

7. At the same time Lieutenant Hadow, who had ridden on a short distance in advance, came up to me and reported that he could see about a dozen men under the trees at the foot of the hill to the left. As we continued advancing, he laid his guns and gave them two rounds of shell, we halting in the meantime. We again advanced and I threw out skirmishers, when, just at this moment, the men of the Rainghur Battalion getting excited, commenced firing from our right, without order; and, the firing becoming general, I was forced to recall the skirmishers, and, seeing people making off up the hill alluded to, to our left, and about 700 yards off, I directed Lieutenant Hadow to give them four rounds, which he did.

8. In the meantime, the firing having increased, I directed Lieutenant Hart to take a subdivision and scour the hill to the right; Ensign Nepean to take the same number of men and act in a like manner to the left, whilst I advanced along the swamp in the direction of the pass with the main body, to support either party should it appear necessary.

9. About a quarter of an hour elapsed, and hearing no more firing, I took a party of the 40th and proceeded to scour the hill in my front, accompanied by Lieutenant Hadow.

10. All three parties returned in the course of half-an-hour, without having met with any of the enemy. Lieutenant Hart and Ensign Nepean came upon several of the encampments, in many of which the rice was still boiling; and the latter discovered what was evidently a depôt of supplies, consisting of rice and other grain, to the amount, he states, of eighteen elephants. This he destroyed as far as he was able.

11. We halted in the swamp for about three hours, and then advanced up the pass to Kutterbyah, as I did not consider Thur Ghatty, although, for the present, quite cleared of the rebels, a safe spot to encamp in.

12. We heard nothing more of the rebels, and arrived here about sunset.

13. Our loss in the engagement was one Sepoy of the 40th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry, wounded mortally; and another man of the same corps, slightly. Names and companies mentioned in the margin.*

14. The strength and loss of the enemy it is impossible to ascertain, owing to the density of the jungle in which they were concealed. All reports, however, go to prove that they were in great force, and we have reason to believe that from five to twelve of the rebels were killed, amongst whom was a near relation of the Ghurootea of Kolaberah.

Inclosure 53 in No. 2.

The Officer commanding Sumbulpore Field Force to the Station Staff Officer, Cuttack.

November 9, 1857.

IN continuation of my letter from Kutterbugah, dated the 5th November, 1857, I have the honor to report that the field force under my command, on the 6th instant, passed Samasingah.

2. On the 7th to Kurreapollic, passing through Kolaberah, which appeared totally deserted by the villagers. On arriving in front of the Ghurootea's house, I found it to be loopholed for firearms, and the gates closed. I, therefore, detached a party of skirmishers from the companies of the 40th, under Ensign Nepean, to examine it. The gate was fastened from the inside, and an entrance was gained by one of the men climbing over the wall and opening it from the rear. There was no one in the house or grounds round it, but the walls were perforated for firing through in all directions. I, therefore, directed Lieutenant Hadow to fire the building, and we marched on to our halting ground.

3. Private Narrainsawmy, whom I reported as mortally wounded on the 5th instant, expired to-day.

4. On the 8th, we marched to Salar, taking the town of Kunda on our route, and finding that, although the house of Somdersain and Coduntsain was deserted, preparations had been made for defending it. I followed the same course with regard to burning it as mentioned in paragraph 2.

5. Near Salar is a ghaut which was, on the 5th instant, in the possession of the rebels, deserted by them on hearing the firing of our guns at Thurghatty. We passed by several of their deserted encampments.

6. We returned to Sumbulpore this day, and I have every reason to believe that the rebels are totally dispersed. The villagers, some of whom had been cruelly tortured by the rebels, crowded round as we passed, and loudly expressed their gratitude and joy.

7. It is my pleasing duty to report, that all ranks composing the field force under my command, performed their duties both at Thurghatty on the 5th instant, and during our subsequent harassing marches, to my entire satisfaction.

8. At Thurghatty, parties composed of the men of the 40th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry, sent to scour the hills, dashed into the jungle with the greatest alacrity and spirit, and the loss of their comrade, who fell at an early period of the day, aroused within them a creditable desire to avenge his death.

9. In conclusion, I beg to bring especially to the notice of the Commanding Officer the conduct of Privates No. 1959, Shaik Cawder, Grenadier Company, and No. 1870, Shaik Moolah, Light Company, 40th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry, whom I employed as spies, first in the direction of Kundah, and subsequently in that of Thurghatty; and upon whose information I was mainly led in selecting the latter place as the point of attack.

I HAVE the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to transmit a copy of a report, dated the 8th instant, from Brigadier W. Campbell, commanding at Allahabad, of a successful attack made by him, on the 5th instant, on insurgents who had collected within a few miles of the station; and in submitting it to the Government in Council, I am to request you will have the goodness to express His Excellency's entire satisfaction with the manner in which the affair was conducted throughout, and with the behaviour of the troops engaged.

I have, &c.

H. W. NORMAN, Major.

Inclosure 56 in No. 2.

Brigadier Campbell, Commanding at Allahabad, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

January 8, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that, having received intelligence from Mr. Mayne, the Magistrate at Hunnoomagunge, of a large body of rebels having assembled at Munseata, about twelve miles from this, on the other side of the Ganges towards Secundra, and knowing that the Lieutenant-Governor wished them to be dispersed, I proceeded from this at 2 A.M. on the morning of the 5th January, in command of the force named in the margin.*

I arrived at Munseata at daylight, and there found the rebels about 700 strong, in position on a hill, with three guns, on the opposite side of a ravine. They immediately opened fire without effect. I ordered a company of the Rifle Brigade, under command of Captain Lindsay, and two companies of the 79th Highlanders, under Lieutenant-Colonel Taylor, to advance in skirmishing order, the former on the enemy's left, and the latter on their right: this was done with precision and great quickness. The guns were ordered into action; but, in consequence of the slowness of the bullocks, and the celerity with which the enemy retreated as soon as the Infantry commenced their firing, Colonel Gordon, Royal Artillery, was only able to fire one round.

The skirmishers advanced in pursuit, Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas following in support, with the guns and main body of the 79th. A good many of the enemy were shot, and the force passed through Munseata in the above order to Syrepore, about three miles, where many had posted themselves in a strong-built large house, and in other buildings of the village. I regret I failed in taking the enemy's guns, which must have been hid by them, as no one saw them carried off at Syrepore. At Syrepore, I ordered the guns to come into action. A few rounds drove the rebels out of the village, and several of them were shot by the Rifles and 79th, who I had sent round each flank of the town, in order to cut off their retreat.

The village was then searched. A Jhissah Thakoor and two Brahmins were found, and hanged, one being a pensioned sepoy of the 71st Native Infantry. Many matchlocks and tulwars were found. At the request of Mr. Mayne, the Magistrate, the village was destroyed.

Immediately after this, Captain Matheson's troop of Irregular Cavalry joined my force. At the suggestion of Mr. Mayne, who knows the country, and showed great zeal and gallantry during the whole of the day, I ordered this troop to leave Hoonoomagunge in order to endeavour to cut off the retreat of the rebels. This was exceedingly well executed. The troop attacked the rebels with great gallantry, and destroyed forty or fifty of them. I collected the troops in a grove of trees, and halted to refresh them at 10 A.M.

At 10.30 A.M., Major Anderson, Royal Horse Artillery, joined our column with the mounted detachments of his troop, which was on the march from Benares to Allahabad. I, after consulting Colonel Wood, C.B., had sent an order to Major Anderson when I left the fort, to obtain a guide to Hunnoomagunge, and join me at Munseata, and act as Cavalry.

At 11 A.M. firing was heard in our rear, and it was reported that the Naib Nizam, with 2,000 men, was coming to attack us. I waited a short time under the trees, then reformed, Royal Horse Artillery on the left, 79th in the centre, guns on the right, and Rifles in the rear, as I then intended to send the last-named to destroy Paphamow, a small rebel village.

On leaving the wood, I found the enemy, I think about 1200 strong, within a mile and a-half. I ordered the 79th out to skirmish, and Colonel Gordon to come into action as soon as he could; at the same time, I ordered the Royal Horse Artillery to cut off the retreat of the enemy to our left. This was done with great quickness, and effectually, about 150 being killed, and many of the others driven back on the Infantry and guns, where many were killed, the 79th and Rifles making some capital shots at long distances.

At this time Mr. Mayne reported he had seen the Nizam. I ordered Major Anderson, Royal Horse Artillery, with half of his troop, to follow him a short distance. He did not overtake him, but killed 100 more of the enemy, some, I am told, men of consequence in the rebel force. Colonel Wood took command of the remainder, and prevented the rebels, (in the neighbouring villages which were burnt,) from retreating to our left.

At Munseata I halted the force for a short time, and then marched to Allahabad, arriving at 7.30 p.m. All reported present, with the exception of a few men who came up with the guard that was left in our rear to bring up some carts that arrived at 9 p.m., when all were present.

The enemy's loss cannot be calculated at less than 400. I have since heard that about that number were seen making their way to Secundra, wounded.

I am thankful to say that our loss was only one man of Benares Horse, killed, and six wounded; the Royal Horse Artillery, two horses killed and five wounded; the Benares Horse, nine horses wounded.

I am much obliged to Lieutenant-Colonel Wood, C.B., Royal Horse-Artillery, for his assistance during the day; and also to Lieutenant-Colonel McDonald, Rifle Brigade, who volunteered his service to accompany the force. And I beg further to state, that I was much satisfied with the manner in which Lieutenant-Colonel Douglas, 79th, commanded the Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Taylor the companies with which he was detached; Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon the Foot Artillery; Major Anderson detachments of his troop Royal Horse Artillery; Captain Landsay the Rifles; and Captain Matheson, the Benares Horse. This, I am told, is a newly-raised corps, and the service they rendered on the 5th, and their workmanlike appearance, I beg respectfully to say, did them great credit. I sent them home before the Nizam's advance, as they had several wounded men and horses, and did not expect their services would be required.

Brigade-Major Campbell, and Captain Maxwell, Officiating Deputy Quartermaster-General, were with the force, and performed their duties to my entire satisfaction; and Lieutenant-Colonel Gordon reports that Captain Thurburn afforded him great assistance during the day. I am much obliged to Captain Frazer, 7th Hussars, who kindly acted as my aide-de-camp, and carried orders correctly and very quickly.

In conclusion, I beg to state that I am very much indebted to Mr. Court and Mr. Mayne, Magistrates; the former accompanied me during the day, and the latter attached himself to the Cavalry, when he did good service with his sword, and was most useful to the commanding officers.

I beg to add, that all the officers and men did a long day's work zealously and cheerfully.

I have the honor to forward a list of casualties.*

P.S.—I have the honor to add for the information of his Excellency, that, since the above was written, Mr. Mayne has sent me one of the enemy's guns, found by his men at Munseata, concealed in the ground; and, also, he reports to me that the enemy calculated their loss at 500 killed and 300 wounded.

WITH reference to his Excellency's arrangements for the march of the force under his immediate command in the Doab, he reports particulars of the operations of the brigades detached under Brigadier the Honorable A. Hope, to Bithoor, and under Brigadier Walpole, to make a detour by Akbārpore through Etawah to Mynpoorie, rejoining his Excellency in the Grand Trunk Road, in consequence of which movement, there has been a complete sweep of the rebels from the southern part of the Doab, states that Brigadier Walpole joined him yesterday (4th), at Futtyghur; and offers observations in regard to his Excellency's protracted stay at Cawnpore, and the principle which has regulated his movements. He reports also the destruction of the fort at Futteah, the protection of the iron suspension bridge over the Kallee Nuddee, the dispersion of the rebels, and the destruction of the palace of the Nawab of Futteghur, which is in progress, and adds, that the communication being fairly established between Calcutta and Agra, his Excellency awaits the Governor-General's further instructions. The Second Assistant Adjutant-General of the Army to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Futtegghur, January 15, 1858.

BY direction of the Commander-in-Chief I have the honor to transmit, for submission to the Governor-General in Council, the annexed copies of despatches from Brigadier A. Hope, regarding his expedition to Shumshabad and Mhow.

I have, &c.

D. M. STEWART, Colonel.

Inclosure 59 in No. 2.

Brigadier Hope to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp, Shumshabad, January 7, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that the force detached under my command, after halting for the night at Umlya, arrived here this day at 8 A.M.

We found the town almost entirely deserted by its inhabitants. Captain Hodson's Horse, which I had sent round to the rear of the place, took a few prisoners, who were handed over to the Magistrate.

Mr. Bradford has pointed out a few houses the property of Pathans, which I have directed to be destroyed. There are, however, in the town many large and strong loopholed houses, which I should think it most desirable, for military reasons, to destroy if possible. Mr. Bradford has represented that these are the property of persons friendly to Government, and is desirous they should be spared.*

Looking to his Excellency's instructions I have had some doubt on the subject, but I have consented to spare them for the present, and on our return they can be destroyed should the Commander-in-Chief so direct.

In this case I think it would be necessary to send two additional days' rations, and more blasting powder, to meet us here. Lieutenant Pritchard writes on this subject to the Chief Engineer.

I propose to move towards Mhow early to-morrow, detaching for the day a body of Irregular Cavalry to endeavour to destroy the boats at the ghauts near this place.

We hear that yesterday about 150 Sowars, under a chief named Murad Ali Khan, came here from Mhow; twelve of this party rode on towards Umlya, near which village they were seen by Mr. Bradford.

On hearing of our approach the whole party went off, and it is believed they have quitted Mhow. This is the only force of which I have heard.

A country-born British subject, a Mr. Garstin, who states himself to have been a Superintendent in the Customs Department at Futtegghur, has come in here to-day with two children, having been concealed in a neighbouring village. He seems in a very weak state, mentally and bodily, and unable to give any information.

Inclosure 60 in No. 2.

Brigadier Hope to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp, Mhow, January 8, 1858.

I BEG to report, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that the column under my orders encamped here to-day at 8 A.M., half-a-mile in advance of the village, which we found to be deserted!

Mhow consists of a large straggling bazaar, with many strong detached houses and gardens. Mr. Bradford has pointed out those belonging to the Pathans, the strongest of which the engineers will destroy as far as their blasting powder goes. The remainder we shall burn and ruin as much as possible.

Mr. Bradford proceeds this afternoon with a strong party of Irregular Cavalry to Rypoor, three miles in advance, to endeavour to punish the Pathans there.

I did not detach the party to destroy the boats at the ghauts this morning, thinking it possible it might be intended to send them to Futtighur. I can send to-morrow to burn them, if I receive no orders to the contrary.

If the work can be done here before noon to-morrow, I propose to fall back to Shumshabad the same evening.

The Magistrate has issued orders to collect all the boats at Bhurtpore Ghaut.

Inclosure 61 in No. 2.

Brigadier Flope to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp, Mhow, January 10, 1858.

I BEG to acknowledge the Commander-in-Chief's orders of yesterday's date, conveyed to me through Captam Bruce, and will carefully adhere to his instructions relative to the destruction of houses, &c.

Yesterday one of our Cavalry parties burnt eleven boats at the ghauts above Bhurtpore, which had not been sent there according to the Magistrate's order. •

The officer also visited Bhurtpore Ghaut, where he found sixteen boats already collected, and more coming in. I intend to send a party of eighty men of the 2nd Punjab Regiment this afternoon to take charge of them to Futtighur.

Another party, accompanied by the Magistrate, overtook and brought in twelve or fourteen Sowars, who, with their families, were moving off some miles from this place. The women were released, but Mr. Bradford has detained the men.

In or near the town sixty or seventy Pathan houses were yesterday destroyed by parties of Sikh Infantry, and the Engineers completed the destruction of the defences of two strong buildings.

The additional supplies forwarded from Head-Quarters enable me to halt here to-day, which I do at the request of the Civil Commissioners. I hope to join the camp at Futtighur early on the 12th instant.

Inclosure 62 in No. 2.

Major-General Penny to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Delhi, November 14, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, that I dispatched a column as per margin,* on the 9th instant, towards Rewaree, for the purpose of intercepting and destroying the mutinous Joudpore Legion, which had advanced through Sheekawatee, and according to the latest information had taken up a position at Narnoul, a considerable town about fifteen miles south of Kanoond, the chief fortress of Jhujjur.

The Joudpore Legion had been joined by Toola Ram, the rebel chief of Rewaree, and by Abdool Sumund Khan, the father-in-law of the Nawab of Jhujjur, and a portion of their followers, the whole amounting to between 4000 and 5000 men, with 12 guns.

Lieutenant-Colonel Gerrard, who commands the column, has been reinforced by the 23rd Regiment Punjab Infantry, the Towanna Horse, 300 strong, and 4 guns, all of which formed a portion of the Hurrianah force under General Van Cortlandt.

I take this opportunity of informing you that Brigadier Showers' column returned to Delhi on the 8th instant, and was broken up.

* 3 troops, 1st Brigade Horse Artillery, squadron 6th Dragoon Guards, 1st European Bengal Fusiliers, wing 7th Punjab Infantry, Guide Cavalry, 2 companies Punjab Sappers, 1 company Sikh Artillery with 3 heavy guns.

The long and fatiguing marches this column had made had completely knocked up the artillery and dragoon horses; but it was mainly owing to the activity of their movements that the chiefs of Jhujjur, Furruck Nugger, and Bullubghur were captured. These men, together with the Nawab of Dadree and other notorious rebels, are now awaiting their trial.

As soon as Colonel Gerrard's column returns from the duty on which it is now engaged, it is my intention to send it down the country in charge of carriage cattle and servants, now being collected in those districts by the Commissariat Department, for the use of the European troops arriving in India.

Inclosure 63 in No. 2.

The Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Fort William, January 13, 1858.

THE Lieutenant-Governor considers it proper that the following occurrences should be brought to the notice of the Governor-General in Council.

2. The Dacca mutineers, as is no doubt known to his Lordship in Council, succeeded some time ago in finding their way into Bootan. A force composed of Europeans from Darjeeling, a detachment of the 73rd Native Infantry, and some Goorkha Sebundees, under Captain Curzon, went out with a view to intercept them as they crossed through our territory westward from Bootan into the Nepaul dominions, which it was conjectured they would endeavour to do. This party was accompanied by Mr. Gordon, the Joint Magistrate at Jelpigoree.

3. The nature of the country, a dense jungle, greatly favoured the fugitives, and they managed to get past Captain Curzon's party with the loss of only one man killed and one taken prisoner, who was immediately hanged.

4. They were equally fortunate from the same cause in escaping from a second party, consisting of a detachment of the 5th Fusiliers and some European seamen, with which Mr. Yule, the Commissioner of Bhaugulpore, had been watching their movements. This last party came upon their track, but were not able to do more than kill one straggler.

5. There is every reason to suppose the mutineers were protected by the Bootan Soubahs; and one man in particular, named Huruk Singh, but commonly called the "Hathee Rajah," from his having for many years farmed the right to catch elephants in Bootan, was known to have openly received and entertained them, and after rendering them every assistance, to have furnished them with guides to conduct them on their journey.

6. Intimation of this appears to have reached Colonel Sherer, Commanding 73rd Native Infantry, during the absence of Mr. Gordon from Jelpigoree, and under his orders a party of 50 Sepoys, under an European officer, was dispatched on the 30th ultimo to arrest Huruk Singh, whose residence, although only a short distance from the British territory, is within the jurisdiction of the Bootan authorities.

7. On arriving at Huruk Singh's house the party immediately attacked it, and fired upon some people whom they saw making their escape, but were unsuccessful in effecting the capture of the person they had been sent to arrest, and eventually returned after burning down his house and some godowns, in which paddy was stored.

8. It is unfortunate that this attack should have been made on property in the Bootan territories. The Joint Magistrate has applied for guards to be replaced at the points on the frontier from which they had been removed on the approach of the Dacca mutineers.

I have, &c.

Cawnpore, December 11, 1857.

EVERY day I find the want of Native troops more and more. Shall I make a commencement of raising small corps without any particular denomination, to be diverted to police or military objects hereafter at your Lordship's pleasure. The experiment only to be made at stations where there are European troops. The rates of pay to be allowed being the same as those of the Punjab Battalions, and the men to be of low caste.

BY all means raise as many men as you can obtain upon the Punjab rate of pay. They will be made into police or irregulars hereafter.

I heard from Lord Harris to-day that we are likely to be disappointed of two more Native Regiments, which I hoped to procure from Madras.

ORDERS were sent, on the 20th of November, to Agra, respecting the accommodation required for European troops at Agra, Muttra, Meerut, and Roorkee.

No report has been received.

I shall be obliged to you if you will call for information from the Agra Government as to what has been done upon those orders.

It will be desirable not to station a European regiment at Delhi, and to place only Punjaub troops there, unless the necessity of a European regiment should be shown.

NOW that the communications with Agra are fairly opened, I would submit to your Lordship, that the extraordinary military power invested in Colonel Fraser should cease. It is found to be very inconvenient, in respect to the General of Division, and instead of unity, a divided command has been found to exist. Agra, no longer being in a state of isolation, the cause for Colonel Fraser's extraordinary power would seem to have vanished.

Sir,

Camp Mynpoorie, January 7, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report that I was applied to yesterday by Mr. Cocks, for assistance to reduce a refractory zemindar, who resides about sixteen miles from this place. I sent Lieutenant Chichester, with 30 Sowars of Wales' Horse, and 30 Sowars of the Commissioners' escort, to aid Mr. Cocks. The party marched from camp at 1 A.M., that it might arrive by day-break at the Ghurree. On arrival there, the man sought for, and his people, had fled. The place was being prepared for defence; a ditch being dug, and two bastion towers being in progress of construction. The place was destroyed.

Another Ghurree, belonging also to a refractory subject, was visited; and, as the people had decamped, it was also destroyed.

The detachment returned early in the afternoon to camp.

The Commissioner speaks highly of the zeal with which the service was performed, and says that he considers it will give much support in re-establishing order in the district.

A large convoy from Agra, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell, came here this morning, and remains awaiting orders.

The place is perfectly tranquil.

I HAVE fully explained my situation and position to Brigadier-General MacGregor, as to what I think the Maharajah should be restricted for the present. A copy of this communication goes to your Lordship by this post, which will, I trust, meet with your approval. I hope it is in the sense of your Lordship's policy. A careful instruction has also been sent to General Franks, to give the most favourable consideration to the suggestion of General MacGregor, and to preserve entire unity of action with the Goorkha force. I have ordered the 79th Highlanders, and the 7th Hussars, and one company of the Royal Horse Artillery, to advance to Futtehpore under the command of Brigadier Campbell, Colonel Bradford, of the Light Cavalry, having been ordered to Allahabad to take command of that station, as a temporary arrangement. Sir James Outram, in consequence of an urgent request, will be reinforced immediately by the 34th Regiment. Considerable alarm is felt in the Bolundshuhur District, on account of a threatened inroad from Rohilkund. From Futtehpore, it is reported there is a considerable gathering at Delamow in Roy Bareilly, which threatens to cross the river into that district.

Captain Hale to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Chyebassa, January 15, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, the following particulars of an encounter I had, yesterday, with a large body of insurgent Coles and Boohyeas, a short distance from Kootchra, about twenty-two miles due south of Chyebassa.

I had arrived at Kootchra two days previously, on the 12th. Just before arriving at my encamping ground, I was attacked on both flanks by bodies of men, consisting of 200 or 300 men each. These were easily dispersed; and, scouring the jungle for some distance, I encamped without further molestation. On the evening of the 13th, I heard that the rebels were assembling in some force on two villages, each about a mile distant from my camp; from there I determined to attempt to dislodge them on the following morning.

At 6 o'clock A.M. of the 14th, I marched with the force named in the margin,* leaving one havildar and sixteen men for the protection of the camp. I soon discovered the insurgents posted in a very thick jungle in front of the village. Through this I advanced in skirmishing order, driving them before me until we came to the edge of a sandy dry nullah, with a high sloping bank covered with thick jungle on the opposite side. Here they appeared to be inclined to make a stand; but, keeping up a heavy fire for a few minutes, I crossed the nullah and ascended the opposite bank, with the loss of only two men slightly wounded. On the top of the edge of an extensive open plain was the village, which I immediately set fire to. So far, all had gone well; and I proceeded to carry out the remaining object of my expedition, by advancing on to another village about a quarter of a mile distant, and round which were a large body of insurgents, I should say about 2000 in number, my intention being to burn it and to return by a road which, I had been informed, led direct from it to my camp. But a man, who had been hitherto guiding us, a Government chuprassee, and upon whose information I had thus far proceeded, now, upon my again questioning him, replied, that he knew nothing at all about the country, either the extent of the jungle near the village, or whether there was a road leading from it to our camp. This determined me to return, and at once, by the road I had come, for the country was now alive with the Coles, and I had four more men wounded, one mortally. On re-entering the jungle to gain the nullah, I advanced as before, with skirmishers on both flanks, and reached it, I believe, without having a man wounded; but, under the projecting bank, and in holes, lay a number of the enemy, so well concealed, that some of my skirmishers had gone beyond them without discovering them. When the main body were within two or three paces of them, they poured into us a volley of arrows; the Sikhs were, for a moment, staggered and confused, but quickly responded to the call of their officers, by which term I would include Mr. Lushington, Lieutenant Birch, and Dr. Hayes, all of whom were wounded; and as quickly dislodged the enemy. Having gained the opposite bank, I opened a fire which checked the pursuit; but I regret to have to report that the regimental dooley with a box of surgical instruments, having been abandoned by its bearer, fell into the hands of the enemy. One of the Sowars also here fell mortally wounded. The enemy followed us to the borders of the jungles, but were easily kept in check by my rear guard.

Our loss has been heavy; but that inflicted upon the enemy I cannot estimate at less than 150 killed and wounded. Their numbers must have amounted to 5000 men.

On arriving in camp, I was compelled to relinquish active command of the detachment, being very weak from wounds received; but I entirely agreed with Mr. Lushington and Lieutenant Birch in the determination they came to, which was to abandon some of our tents,* place the wounded upon the spare elephants, and march at once towards Chyebassa. My reasons were as follows, and I trust his Excellency will consider them sufficient to justify me in having abandoned Government property.

I could not, without elephants, have carried my wounded men. Our coolies were then running away, any, whom we might compel to remain would, I feel sure, run away the moment we were seriously attacked. On the line of march, moreover, many of my men were only slightly wounded; and, though unable to walk, would be in a great measure efficient on elephants' backs, an important consideration with my small force.

I could not remain where I then was, for I could have got no provisions; my communications with Chyebassa, whence I had all my supplies, would have been cut off that night; and I trust his Excellency will not accuse me of rashness in having proceeded so far without having taken measures to keep it open. With my small force, I could not do it.

We marched at 12 o'clock, noon, for nine miles. Wherever the road led through jungle, they never ceased to annoy us, but were steadily met by the rear guard under Havildar Pier Bux, whose conduct, as reported to me, was deserving of the highest praise. Crossing the Surrae Surra Ghat, finding the enemy were pressing rather hard upon him, he hid himself and his men in a ravine. Seven of the enemy were left dead on the road. They followed us no further. We, however, continued our march on to Chyebassa, and arrived here, twenty-two miles from our late encamping ground, at 9 o'clock p.m., without any further casualties.

I must express the great regret I feel at the result of yesterday's proceedings; a result, however, in no way attributable to any misconduct on the part of the men, every one of whom did his duty; nor can I blame myself for not having adopted every due precaution. Having once determined to attack them, their numbers were certainly far greater than we supposed they could have been, and I was misled by my guide.

To Mr. Lushington, Commissioner of Singh Choom, I am very much indebted for his great assistance from first to last, and for his cordially expressed approval of the conduct of my men during three hours of very trying work. Lieutenant Birch, with his left arm pinioned to his side by an arrow, cheered on the men when, for a moment, they wavered. Dr. Hayes' conduct during the action, was such as to elicit my warmest thanks; and, after it, those not only of myself, but of every wounded man of the party. Though wounded himself, his attentions were unremitting. I beg to append a return of killed and wounded; and should here add, that one musket and about 100 rounds of ammunition were in the dooley when captured by the enemy, the former belonging to the Sepoy killed, the latter to another who had been badly wounded.

* 1 Sepoy's tent; 4 pauls; 1 single pole tent (Mr. Lushington's); 1 ditto ditto (Lieutenant Birch's.)

I have, &c.

Inclosure 75 in No. 2.

The Officiating Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces, to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Agra Fort, December 30, 1857.

IN continuation of my letter dated 25th ultimo, I am desirous to forward for the information of the Commander-in-Chief, the accompanying copy of a letter from the Commissioner of Rohilkund, dated 8th instant, reporting on the hostile attitude assumed by the rebels of Bareilly, on the Nynec Tal road.

Inclosure 76 in No. 2.

Mr. Alexander to the Officiating Secretary to the Government, North-Western Provinces.

Sir,

Nynec Tal, December 8, 1857.

IN continuation of my letter of the 21st ultimo, I have the honor to report, for the information of the Chief Commissioner, that a large body of Khan Bahadoor's troops now occupy a position at Bundiah and its vicinity, on the high road from Bareilly to Haldwanee.

2. It has not yet been practicable to ascertain, with any degree of accuracy, the exact number of the main body. They have been reported to me as 4000 with two guns, and as 8000 to 10,000. I do not think it likely that they number more than 4000 or 5000 men with two guns.

3. The object of the force would seem to be less that of attack than of interruption of our communication with the plains. Communication with Bareilly direct is, of course, cut off by the mere presence of the main body on the road; but, besides this stoppage, the tactics of the body have been to detach a sufficiently strong mounted party to patrol and infest the road to Rampore and Moradabad, between Kalla Doonghi and the Moondea and Bazpore Thannahs, by which means, supplies coming from Rampore and Moradabad, were first intercepted, and have now been quite stopped, and the post has been intercepted and made uncertain as to time of arrival, &c.

4. Only yesterday, a party of these Sowars managed to surprise the Kaladoonghi Thannah at daybreak, and to murder the Thannahdar and nine other persons, including two of my cavalry videttes, who had not the opportunity of escaping to the hills.

5. This state of things is, I believe, as much a cause of personal vexation to the Nawab of Rampore, as it is of detriment and inconvenience to the refugees at this place.

6. I have strong doubts, from what I hear from third parties, of the Nawab's troops fighting for him on our side if led out against this army. The Nawab himself writes, that he does not apprehend difficulty in subduing this particular force, and that he will order his troops out against them, if so directed by me; but that, as a matter of policy, he considers it would be precarious and imprudent, because it would be open defiance of Khan Bahadoor, whose army is much stronger than his, and who would thus have the excuse he has wished for to attack Rampore as the country of an enemy. In short, he writes that, unsupported by troops of our Government, he should not be able to hold his own against Khan Bahadoor Khan, and that the service he might be held to have hitherto rendered by a temporizing policy, necessarily imposed upon him, would be undone by his defeat.

7. I give the Nawab credit for much sagacity, and I do not attribute to him, or to the few about him, want of heart and courage; but, if I admit the reasonableness of his policy, it is not possible to say how long the inconvenience resulting to us may last.

8. I cannot but believe that relief to us under the altered state of things, brought about by the fall of Lucknow, might be feasible at no risk, with a comparatively small force, to hold what we may call our own, and to support the Nawab, if the larger brigade, which is to reconquer the entire province, cannot be soon sent into it.

9. I do not know what force might be spared from Delhi, Umballa, and Meerut, but I believe that with 300 Europeans, 500 Sikhs, and a battery of European Artillery, we might make head-quarters at Moradabad, and administer the affairs of that district, and near the Pergunnahs of Budaon and Bijnour, if not the whole of the latter district, with safety and satisfaction, while the security and convenience of all who remained at Nynce Tal, would be, at the same time, ensured.

10. We have had sufficient proof of the courage of Khan Bahadoor's army, to feel secure against attack if concentrated at Moradabad, in the force I have specified, and who should then form a rallying point for the Hindoos, who dare not now avow their desire for us, and yet who could bring strength to our side by their open desertion of that of the rebels.

11. If the Chief Commissioner would acknowledge the feasibility of what I propose, I could assure him, that the move of the troops from the Ghaut to Moradabad, might be made without risk, or show of opposition; and arrangements should be made beforehand for timely supplies.

12. I have not hinted of this proposition to the Nawab; but it has been lately forced on my consideration by the stress which the Nawab has laid in his letters on the necessity for support. Before, however, it could be executed, if favorably entertained by the Chief Commissioner, it would be, of course, necessary to make secret preliminary arrangements with the Nawab, as much would depend on the assurance he should give us to peaceful entry into, and occupation of, Moradabad. His cautious character would prevent his concealing any difficulties which might offer themselves to his mind in the execution of the project.

13. I am well aware that the Chief Commissioner's time must be fully and anxiously occupied, and should not needlessly be taxed by ill-timed or undigested projects; but I have made that contained in this letter, in the conscientious discharge of the duty which lies on me, of suggesting what, after deliberate consideration, I may believe to be the earliest and most practicable mode of commencing the re-occupation of a part of the province in which I hold the chief executive appointment.

14. I am, of course, writing under the impression that no accession of strength could be permitted to the rebel force now in Bareilly from Oude, or the Doab, and that the crossing of a fugitive force into it, would be the signal of pursuit by a conquering army. I have only desired to state my views that, if a brigade of sufficient strength cannot, for some time, be spared to enter the province, a much smaller force would be found sufficient to hold, with advantage, that part which the circumstances of the Nawab's conduct, and its position, have made exceptional to relieve the European population of Nynsee Tal, to form a nucleus and a rendezvous for the numerous well-affected of the Hindoos, and would reduce to a narrow limit the field of actual war operations, which, I may presume, would be considered a desirable consummation.

Inclosure 77 in No. 2.

The Secretary to Government, Central Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Allahabad, January 22, 1858.

GENERAL FRANKS' left column went to Secundra yesterday; it will be joined by two squadrons of the Bays and four Horse Artillery guns from this place to-day, and an attack will then be made on the rebel Nazim at Soraon towards the Gogra. The rebels seem to be increasing in number, reinforced, no doubt, by fugitives from Goruckpore. Calpee men have re-crossed the Jumna on the approach of troops from Cawnpore.

Inclosure 78 in No. 2.

The Secretary to the Government of Bengal to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Sir,

Fort William, December 28, 1857.

I AM directed to forward for the information of the Governor-General in Council, the accompanying copy of a letter from Mr. Allen, Officiating Member of the Board of Revenue, on Deputation at Sylhet, giving an account of the operations of the Sylhet Light Infantry against the mutineers of the 34th Native Infantry, and of an engagement on the 18th instant, in which the latter were driven back into the jungles with a loss of twenty-six killed, besides several wounded.

2. From subsequent accounts received, the Lieutenant-Governor has learnt that the mutineers, after the action, became thoroughly disorganized, and have dispersed in small parties, and in different directions.

3. The excellent conduct of the men of the Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion on this occasion, is exceedingly gratifying, and entirely dispels all doubt which may have existed as to their fidelity, and any possible suspicion of their having entertained sympathy with the mutineers.

4. Among the casualties on our side, which were comparatively few, it is with regret the Lieutenant-Governor has to report the death of Major the Honorable Robert Byng, who commanded the regiment.

5. To Lieutenant Sherer, on whom the command devolved on the death of Major Byng, much of the credit of the successful issue of the encounter is due; and Mr. Dodd, a civil engineer and executive officer of the district, who was wounded, well merits the acknowledgments of Government for his useful services in procuring intelligence of the movements of the mutineers, and for his gallantry in the action, which Mr. Allen brings to notice.

6. To Mr. Allen himself, however, the success of the operations is mainly attributable; for it was his judgment which foresaw that the force sent in pursuit from Calcutta could not succeed in its object, and his promptitude in ordering out the Sylhet Battalion, which insured the destruction of this body of mutineers.

I have, &c.

A. R. YOUNG.

Inclosure 79 in No. 2.

Mr. Allen to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Sir,

Sylhet, December 18, 1857.

WITH reference to my letter dated the 14th instant, I have the honor to report that the head-quarters of the Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion, under the command of Major the Honorable Robert Byng, left Sylhet on the morning of the 15th instant, and having made two very long marches, reached Pertaubghur the next day between 9 and 10 o'clock P.M.

2. Major Byng took up a position on the right bank of the Lungye River, close to Pertaubghur; and, on the morning of the 17th instant, Mr. Dodd rode towards Hingajeah, to reconnoitre and procure intelligence regarding the movements of the mutineers of the 34th Regiment of Native Infantry.

3. Mr. Dodd returned the same day about 5 P.M. to the camp of the battalion. After having obtained trustworthy information that the mutineers, who had plundered Hingajeah and several other villages, were marching in a north-easterly direction towards Latoo, with the view of escaping to Munneepore.

4. On the receipt of this intelligence, Major Byng made a forced march back to Latoo during the night of the 17th, and reached that place soon after dawn on the 18th idem.

5. The battalion had not been in the Latoo Bazaar for more than five minutes, when the mutineers were observed approaching in two columns; as soon as they attempted to enter the bazaar, the battalion gave them a volley and immediately charged them with the bayonet. The mutineers fired into the battalion, but did not wait to receive its charge; they broke, and fled in great confusion into the dense jungle close to the bazaar. The battalion pursued, following them from hillock to hillock through a most difficult country, till they were lost sight of in the thick jungles. Our men, being worn out by the very long march of the previous night, were unable, at that time, to continue the pursuit any farther.

6. It is with the deepest regret I have to report that Major the Honorable Robert Byng was killed on the field whilst gallantly leading on the battalion against the mutineers. He received a gunshot wound in the groin, and expired almost immediately.

7. Major Byng was very much beloved by his regiment, and most deservedly so. He was a most gallant and daring soldier, and has maintained the discipline, and preserved the honor and loyalty of his corps unimpaired throughout the whole of these very trying times, with much ability and sound judgment. He has fallen gloriously in the service of his country; and I now venture, most respectfully, to commend his memory to the protection of the Government he has served so well.

8. Lieutenant Sherer and Mr. Dodd have behaved with the most determined gallantry, and have done what Englishmen will always do to uphold the reputation of their country. Much commendation is due to Lieutenant Sherer for having conducted the operations to a very successful issue after the death of his commanding officer.

9. Mr. Dodd has been slightly wounded; and Lieutenant Sherer has informed me, that every man of the battalion has behaved "right nobly, one and all, without distinction."

10. The casualties on our side are five killed, besides the commanding officer, and one very severely wounded. The mutineers left twenty-six men dead on the field, but many others must have been wounded, and probably not a few have died in the dense jungles in which they concealed themselves.

11. About 4000 or 5000 rupees, in cash, sixteen or eighteen stands of arms and accoutrements, two ponies, and a quantity of miscellaneous property were taken from the mutineers.

12. A havildar of the 34th Regiment, Native Infantry, who was taken prisoner in the jungles after the action, was tried by a drum-head court-martial, and shot to death by musketry on the spot.

13. The mutineers are supposed to have fled through the jungles, in the direction of Pertaubghur, with the view of reaching Munneepore, through the southern jungles of Cachar. An express has been sent off to the Superintendent of Cachar, directing him to endeavour to intercept them; and instructions have been dispatched to Lieutenant Sherer to follow them up as much as possible, which, no doubt, will be done with energy and skill.

14. This afternoon, before I knew what had occurred at Latoo, I sent Lieutenant Buist with a detachment of about sixty men of the battalion to reinforce its headquarters at Latoo; and a detachment of Her Majesty's 54th Foot, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Michel, will march from Sylhet towards Latoo, to-morrow morning.

15. I have not yet received any official report from Lieutenant Sherer. The above very imperfect narrative of a very well conducted and gallant affair, has been prepared from a few rough pencil-notes very kindly sent to me by Lieutenant Sherer and Mr. Dodd. As soon as I receive Lieutenant Sherer's official report, I shall do myself the honor of addressing you again.

I have, &c.

W. J. ALLEN.

The Secretary to the Government of India to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Sir,

January 15, 1858.

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your despatch dated the 28th ultimo, forwarding Mr. Allen's account of the operations of the Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion against the mutineers of the 34th Native Infantry, ending with the engagement of the 18th December, in which the mutineers were driven into the jungles with heavy loss, and dispersed.

2. The Governor-General in Council, has received this proof of the fidelity of the battalion with lively satisfaction. The conduct of the officers and men will be more particularly noticed in the Military Department, when the detailed report of the action of the 18th is received; but His Lordship in Council takes this opportunity of commending the judgment and foresight of Mr. Allen, in calling out the battalion, and the useful services rendered by the Civil Engineer, Mr. Dodd, and desires that the thanks of the Government of India may be conveyed to those gentlemen for their conduct on the occasion.

I have, &c.

Inclosure 81 in No. 2.

Colonel Sherer to the Major-General Commanding the Division.

Sir,

Jelapigoree, January 3, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of the Major-General commanding the division, that, having received intelligence to the effect that Hurrah Singh, a zemindar, living on the Bootan frontier, but a native of Bhojapore, had assisted the Dacca rebels, by furnishing them with food, elephants, and guides, I detached a party of the 73rd Regiment, Native Infantry for the purpose of apprehending him.

2. Detail of the expedition is attached.

3. The havildar and two sepoys therein-mentioned, were blown away from guns last evening.

4. It has been ascertained that two of the three had relations living with Hurrah Singh. The fact of their having had communication with the enemy was not proved, but they were found guilty of having left their detachment whilst on active service without leave, and of having failed to give their assistance in the pursuit.

5. At the requisition of the Assistant-Magistrate, I have strengthened the guards of the 73rd Regiment Native Infantry at Choorabimdee, and, also, at Barhalee; that officer thinking it probable the Bootan people might retaliate and plunder those places.

The Sebundy Sappers returned to Darjeeling last afternoon.

I have, &c.

G. M. SHERER, Colonel,

Commanding 73rd Regiment, Native Infantry.

Inclosure 82 in No. 2.

Lieutenant Wilcox to the Adjutant, 73rd Native Infantry.

Sir,

Jelpigoree, January 1, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of Colonel Sherer, commanding the regiment, that, agreeably to orders received, I started at 4 P.M. on Wednesday, the 30th ultimo, with a detachment of the marginal strength,* with the object of apprehending and bringing in Hurrah Singh, a soobah, or zemindar, in Bootan, who had been aiding the Dacca rebels during their stay in his part of the country.

I arrived at a village called Choorabundee, about four-and-twenty miles from the station, at or about midnight of that day. Choorabundee is about two miles from Hurrah Singh's house, with a rather broad river intervening, with about a quarter of a mile of sandbank on the rear, or Choorabundee side. We were obliged to halt at this village to rest the men, and wait the arrival of a man who had been sent for, to identify Hurrah Singh—a whole hour elapsed here, so that it was about 1 A.M. on the 31st when we left. Previous to loading, I inquired if all the men were present; and was told that Havildar Sohun Singh, and Bunda Singh, Sepoy, were absent. Happening to recollect that Sohun Singh was not present at a village en route, about five miles from Choorabundee, I immediately suspected treachery, and started off at once, advancing as rapidly as the river and sandbank would permit, and arrived on the opposite bank just in time to see Hurrah Singh with his followers, scattered over the country and in full flight, the tall grass and high cultivation round about, together with the adjacent jungle, favored their escape, and enabled them to deceive us considerably, by permitting of their running on their hands and knees, and starting up in a totally different direction to the line of country they had originally taken. After a pursuit of about a quarter of an hour, I was forced to give it up, having succeeded in taking two of Hurrah Singh's dependants. We then returned and searched his residence, and, finding nothing of value, burnt it, together with the adjoining buildings and out-houses and a granary, to the ground. Close by his house were picketted three elephants. I was forced to leave these behind, owing to my having no men who could undertake to manage or bring them away. Mr. Wodschow had succeeded in putting a pad on the back of one of them, with the intention of driving it himself, but was obliged to give it up eventually, and the whole three broke their ropes and escaped into the jungle.

The object for which the expedition started having failed, I prepared to return, and on my way back, saw Sohun Singh, havildar, Bunda Singh and Ramsahaie Detchit, Sepoys, standing with their arms under a tree on Hurrah Singh's side of the river. This is the place where we crossed, and is about 600 paces from Hurrah Singh's house. I asked them where they had been? and was told that Sohun Singh had had an attack of fever, and the other two men had stopped behind to help him on. Sohun Singh was quite well at the time I speak of, and was so three hours before the occurrence. The three men had apparently been standing there some time, and kept aloof from the pursuit altogether. I put them under confinement on arrival at Choorabundee, and feel convinced that the expedition failed entirely only on account of these men having acted treacherously. The detachment rejoined head-quarters at about 8 A.M. to-day. I beg to submit a rough plan of the route, to show the commanding officer how possible it was for a man, who had been on guard there a short time before, and acquainted with the country, to have given the information to the enemy, and rejoined me within the time they did. Further evidence will be produced against them at their trial. I have, also, to acquaint the commanding officer that, from information received, I have reason to believe that some few of the Dacca rebels are still with Hurrah Singh.

I have, &c.

E. R. WILCOX, Lieutenant,
73rd Native Regiment.

* Ensign Morton, 1 Subadar, 5 Havildars, 5 Naicks, 44 Sepoys, Mr. Wodschow, volunteer.

No. 3.

The President of the Council of India to the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

Fort William, February 9, 1858.

WE have the honor to transmit herewith, for your information, a continuation of the narrative forwarded with our separate letter, of the 23rd ultimo, taken from correspondence and messages by the electric telegraph, of what has occurred at different stations in this Presidency, in connection with the disturbed state of affairs.

Inclosure 1 in No. 3.

Narrative of Events dated February 9, 1858.

[The Narrative dispatched on the 23rd ultimo contained the news received up to that date.]

Agra.—The Agra Mounted Police (350 sabres), have been placed temporarily at the disposal of Brigadier Seaton, commanding in the Futtyghur district. A siege train left on the 22nd to join the Commander-in-chief. The reports from the North-Western Provinces are highly satisfactory.

Allahabad.—The Governor-General arrived at Allahabad on the morning of the 4th, and is in camp within the fort.

The Commander-in-chief had come down on a visit to Lord Canning, and left again for Cawnpore on the evening of the 8th of February.

Allyghur.—Nothing of importance. Orders have been given for a native corps to be raised at this station.

Azimghur.—Nothing new.

Banda.—The political agent in Bundelcund reports having issued rewards for the apprehension of Mortando Rao Tanda, the supposed nephew of the Nana, and some others now associated with him. He had been issuing orders to the Jagheerdars, calling for supplies of money and men for the Nana's troops collecting at Calpee.

Barrackpore (Fort William).—Her Majesty's 35th Foot is under orders for Dinapore, and marches up immediately, on being relieved by Her Majesty's 19th Regiment, from Fort William, which will be replaced by Her Majesty's 54th Regiment.

The following vessels with troops, horses, &c., have arrived since the departure of the last mail:—

Screw steamer "Clarendon," from Mauritius, with the Head-Quarters of Her Majesty's 54th Regiment, consisting of thirteen officers, forty-six non-commissioned, and 304 rank and file.

Mail steamer "Nubia," with seventeen gunners, two serjeants, and five dressers, from Madras.

Ship "Tubal Cain," from Rangoon, with thirty-four elephants and thirty-four mahouts.

Ship "Judith," from the Cape, with 144 horses; and steamer "Sydney," from Galle, with six officers and 196 rank and file of Her Majesty's 80th Regiment from the Cape.

The Governor-General, accompanied by the Secretaries in the Foreign and Military Departments, and his personal staff, left Calcutta for the North-Western Provinces on the 28th January.

Bareilly.—No news.

Benares.—Nothing new.

Bhopaul.—

Cawnpore.—His Excellency the Commander-in-chief arrived at Cawnpore on the 3rd. Active operations have been making for the advance on Lucknow. A second bridge has been constructed for the easier passage of the siege train across the Ganges, without a halt. A portion of troops crossed into Oude on the 4th.

Chyebassa.—Colonel Forster has arrived with the Shekhawattee Battalion in this district, and is arranging to put down the insurgent Coles, and restore order.

Delhi.—In consequence of the indisposition of the King, his examination before the Military Commissioners had to be postponed; it is now believed to be going on. The Nawab of Furrucknuggur was convicted and executed on the*. Major-General Penny has been directed to remove his Head-Quarters to Meerut, and Her Majesty's 69th Rifles has also left Delhi for Meerut, in order to form part of a moveable column.

Futtyghur.—Brigadier the Honourable A. Hope was sent out by the Commander-in-chief on the night of the 26th, to attack a large body of the Rohilcund rebels, which had congregated and taken up a position near the Shumshabad, in the Futtyghur district. He came upon them on the morning of the 27th, and completely dispersed them, after a short though sharp resistance. They abandoned their guns and entrenchments in confusion, with the loss of about 300 men killed and wounded, with several chiefs. We captured four guns and a considerable quantity of ammunition. Our own loss comparatively trifling—one officer and three men killed; five officers and thirty-four men wounded; and three missing. The arrangement for the protection of the Futtyghur district having been completed by the Commander-in-chief, his Excellency left for Cawnpore on the 1st. Brigadier Seaton commands in the Futtyghur district, and has Her Majesty's 8th and 82nd Regiments, and one battery of Royal Artillery. Orders have been given to raise a native corps at Futtyghur. It is hoped that the punishment inflicted at Shumshabad, with the appearance of strength left in these districts, will be sufficient for the safety of the communication till the reinforcements sent by Sir J. Lawrence to Major-General Penny, with a view to active operations in Rohilcund, may reach that officer.

Gorruckpore.—It has been arranged that his Excellency Jung Bahadoor's force shall advance into Oude at the same time with the troops under General Franks. These columns will act in concert with the force under his Excellency the Commander-in-chief. All is settling down in the Gorruckpore district.

Gwalior.—No news.

Jaunpore.—The left column of Brigadier-General Franks' force (the Jaunpore field force), went out from Secundra on the 23rd, and attacked the rebel Nazim, at Nurselpore, to which place he had moved from Sosawun, and joined the Talookdar of Nurselpore. This stronghold was taken possession of and destroyed, and the enemy driven out with the loss of about 500 killed and wounded, with the whole of his camp equipage and ammunition and three guns. The enemy's force consisted of about 8,000 men with fourteen guns. In consequence of the density of the jungle, and the difficult nature of the ground, the action of our Cavalry was much impeded, and the rebels were enabled to withdraw most of the guns. They have now retreated across the frontier, and Sosawun has been occupied by the civil power. In this engagement our loss was trifling. General Franks speaks highly of the steadiness of the troops, and of the intelligence of the Goorkha Commander. General Franks' force is to move on to Sultanpore in Oude, in order to co-operate with his Excellency Jung Bahadoor.

Jelpigorce.—Upon the withdrawal of the European convalescent detachment from Jelpigoree, their place will be supplied by the detachment of European seamen from Rungpore.

Jubbulpore.—Nothing new.

Lahore.—All is quiet in the Punjaub.

Lucknow.—Active preparations are making for the reduction of this place. The first portion of the Commander-in-chief's force crossed the Ganges, from Cawnpore, on the 4th February. Report says that great dissension prevails amongst the rebels in the city, and that many are leaving.

Malwa.—The fort of Rutghur was evacuated, and occupied by us on the 28th January. Fazel Mahomed Khan was taken prisoner trying to escape, and was to be hanged over the gateway. Major Orr, with a portion of the Hyderabad Contingent, reached Goona on the 22nd January; the country was quiet and the road open.

Meerut.—Major-General Penny's Head-Quarters are again to be formed at Meerut, where a force will be collected and organized for operations in Rohilcund. Her Majesty's 64th Regiment have been placed at Major-General Penny's disposal, and are to hold Bolundshuhur, with a wing of the Belooch Battalion and the Affghan Horse. After providing for the safety of Delhi and Meerut, Major-General Penny will be able, irrespectively of the troops now employed in the Mozuffernuggur district, to form a moveable column for service in any direction, consisting of twelve field guns, two heavy howitzers, two squadrons of Dragoons, the Towanna Horse, 300 men Her Majesty's 60th Rifles, 200 of the Sirmoor Battalion, and one regiment Punjaub Infantry, 600 strong.

Mynpoorie.—Her Majesty's 38th Regiment, now at Mynpoorie, are escorting the siege train (from Agra) to Cawnpore, having been replaced by a portion of Her Majesty's 8th Foot. A native corps is about to be raised either at this station or at Etawah.

Nagpore.—A detachment of about fourteen men of the Irregular Horse Battery, which had arrived at Raepore from Nagpore, mutined on the 18th January, cutting down the Serjeant-Major (who died shortly after of his wounds), and seized the two post guns. They endeavoured to incite the men of the 3rd Nagpore Irregular Cavalry at Raepore, about 200 in number, to join; but, failing this, gave themselves up, and were immediately to be tried. The murderer of the Serjeant-Major was a magazine Lascar, who has escaped for the present, but a reward has been offered for his apprehension. It is hoped that this affair is at an end, though some anxiety is felt regarding the other detachments in the district. All precautions have been taken that were possible, and General Whitlock has been requested to send such aid from his division to Raepore as he may consider required under the circumstances.

Oude.—A post has been formed at Onao, and Bunnee has been much strengthened by the Commander-in-chief in anticipation of the advance upon Lucknow.

Patna.—Nothing new.

Rajpootana.—The fort of Aliwa, in Rajpootana, has been evacuated and occupied by us.

Saugor.—Sir H. Rose must have arrived at Saugor about the end of January, though no direct intelligence has reached of his having done so.

Trunk Road (Sasseram).—Lieutenant-Colonel Michel has been appointed to the command of the force in this place, consisting of a detachment of Her Majesty's 54th Foot, a portion of the Bengal Police Battalion, and some Royal and Madras Artillery, and which will be employed in clearing the southern portion of the Shahabad district. Lieutenant-Colonel Michel has been empowered to increase the reward already offered for Ummer Sing to any sum not exceeding 5,000 rupees, at any time at which it may be thought expedient to do so. •

Inclosure 9 in No. 3.

Brigadier Stewart, Commanding Malwa Field Force, to the Adjutant-General of the Bombay Army.

Sir,

Camp, Mundesore, November 27, 1857.

WITH reference to my telegrams of the 25th and 26th instant, I have now the honor to forward the reports and to communicate for the information of his Excellency the Commander-in-chief, full particulars of the successful operations in which the Malwa field force and the field force, Hyderabad Contingent, under command of Major Orr, were engaged on the 21st, 22nd, 23rd, and 24th instant, against the rebel enemy in the vicinity of Mundesore.

2. On the morning of the 21st November, the force, accompanied by the field force, Hyderabad Contingent, which, as I have already reported, is co-operating with me under command of Major Orr, arrived within three miles and a-half of Mundesore about 9 A.M.; and as I had no good information as to the roads or the country in the immediate vicinity of the town, neither as to the fords of the river Sowna, which it was necessary to cross before reaching the town, I determined upon encamping until a good reconnaissance had been effected. The rebel enemy at Mundesore, hearing of our approach, had posted pickets entirely covering the country over which we were advancing, and, observing our pickets thrown out, they mustered in some force outside the walls of the town, and appeared inclined to attack. I, however, contented myself with reinforcing the pickets, and, leaving the whole charge of the front to Major Robertson, 25th Regiment Native Infantry, the field officer of the day, returned to camp. About 3 o'clock P.M. I received intimation from him that the enemy were advancing in force, and threatening both our flanks and centre at the same time. I accordingly moved out to meet them: they advanced steadily, with banners flying, and appeared in great numbers. On approaching our right front, however, they were most gallantly charged by Lieutenant Dew, Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, who, with some of his men, occupied that ground as a picket. Major Orr, commanding 3rd Regiment Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, supported Lieutenant Dew, and the enemy were driven back with great loss, and before our guns, which had quickly moved up, could open upon them, the attack on our centre was repulsed by a few rounds of our Artillery, whilst that on the left was successfully met by the field force under Major Orr. The enemy having been thus driven back at all points, were pursued for some distance, in fact, until they nearly reached the walls of the town, and nothing further occurred that day.

3. Having received intelligence from the Governor-General's Agent that the portion of the rebel army before Neemuch, amounting to about 5,000, would probably raise the siege of that place, and endeavour to effect a junction with their head-quarters at Mundesore, I determined to frustrate this by intercepting them. Accordingly, early on the morning of the 22nd instant, I moved forward my force in order of battle; our advance was unopposed, and on my left flank reaching the village of Kulgipore, I made a flank movement to the left, as previously determined on, leaving the advance guard to cover it, and to reinforce the rear guard, as we crossed the Bakri ford of the river Sowna, about 1,400 yards to the south-west of the town of Mundesore. Thus secured, the movement was safely effected, opposed only by a slight and ineffective fire from a gun on one of the south-west bastions of the town. I then encamped facing the west of the town, my flanks well protected by the two branches of the river, and my line running at right angles to the right of Sir Thomas Hislop's camp in 1817. Just previous to the camp being marked out, it was reported that Cavalry were seen on the left, and Major Orr taking the 1st Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, under Captain Abbott, and 4th Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, under Captain Murray, saw about 300 Horse, supposed to be under Heera Sing, endeavouring to draw them off in a north-westerly direction, but keeping at too great a distance to allow of being attacked. Reinforcements of Cavalry were sent for, and whilst the left wing, Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, under Captain Gall, and 3rd Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, under Lieutenant Clerk, were moving up, intelligence was brought to Major Orr that Heera Sing's baggage had just left the village of Goraria, on the Neemuch road, the object of Heera Sing's party, to draw our Cavalry away from his baggage, thus being apparent. Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, the 1st Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, and the 4th Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, galloped off in pursuit, the 3rd Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, remaining as a reserve. They caught up the enemy about two miles south of Peeplia, and, after cutting up about 200 of them, halted at a nullah a mile to the south of that village. On perceiving it strongly occupied by the enemy's infantry, who showed many standards, they then returned to camp.

4. Feeling assured that the infantry seen in Peeplia formed the advance guard of the enemy, I moved at 8 o'clock A.M. on the 23rd instant by my left, and crossed the northern branch of the river Sowna. I then halted my column, and collected all my baggage on the reverse flank, then moving on to my proposed camp on the Neemuch and Mundesore Road, ready to oppose the enemy either from one or the other direction. On coming on to the ground, the enemy appeared in great force to the north; so, ordering my baggage to be collected on a strong mound, I strongly reinforced my rear-guard, and proceeded to meet them. After a short advance, I formed line to my front, facing northward, and found the enemy occupying a very strong position, with their right in and beyond the village of Goraria, their right centre covered by a date nullah and lines of date trees, their battery of six guns on a rising ground, with a large mud hut protecting their gunners, and their left stretched along the ridge running east from the village. My line advanced, covered by skirmishers; the enemy's infantry, with banners flying (many of them green), moved down to meet us through the intermediate fields of high jowarry, and their guns opened fire. I immediately halted my line, and replied to the fire with Captains Hungerford's and Woolcombe's batteries, at a range of about 900 yards. After a few rounds I again advanced the line, and permitted Captain Hungerford to move his half battery to a position on our right front, from which he could enfilade the enemy. After an advance of about 300 yards, our line was again halted and firing resumed, that from both batteries being very effective. A most gallant charge was then made on the enemy's guns by the escort of Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, attached to Captain Hungerford, under Lieutenant Martin, who, found, however, that the position was still very strongly held by the enemy's infantry, and was compelled to retire, he himself being very severely wounded. Captain Hungerford's half battery was again advanced to within 100 yards, and after a round or two of grape, the guns were at once again charged and captured, the enemy flying in great numbers into the village to their right. The 3rd Regiment of Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, under Major S. Orr, was just at this moment rapidly advanced to our right front, and having been wheeled to the left, it swept down upon them in their retreat, and killed great numbers. Our line then changed front about the eighth of a circle, right thrown forward, and moved steadily on the village, which evidently held great numbers of the enemy. Their skirmishers disputed our advance, but were soon driven back. Having halted within about 300 yards of the village, our Artillery opened upon it with shot and shell, after which I directed the Infantry to advance and carry it.

The men of the 86th and 25th Regiments dashed forward in the most gallant manner, and, having entered the village, commenced to drive all before them. They soon met, however, with very warm opposition, the enemy having taken possession in great force of many houses, from which a most harassing fire was kept upon our men. Under these circumstances, and as, moreover, I could get no satisfactory accounts of what was passing in my rear which I knew from the firing I heard, as also from the pressing applications I had received for reinforcements, had been warmly engaged, I recalled the Infantry, and posted strong pickets all round the village, and moved the remainder of the men a short distance off to where the baggage had been passed up from the rear. I then learnt that, during the afternoon, when we were hotly engaged in the front, a strong body of the enemy from Mundesore attacked our rear, and endeavoured to carry off the siege train, baggage, &c. They were, however, most gallantly repulsed on every occasion. In one of these attacks, I regret to say that Lieutenant Redmayne, Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, was killed, whilst most bravely leading his men against the enemy, notwithstanding the many attempts made by the enemy to press upon and harass our rear. It gives me great satisfaction to be able to state that not a particle of baggage was lost, nor a follower injured, on this occasion. Lieutenant Leith, commanding a squadron 14th Light Dragoons, appears to have done good service, as also Lieutenant Fenwick, 25th Regiment, Native Infantry, in charge of the baggage, gunner Maitland of the Bengal Artillery, and gunner Thomson of the Bombay Artillery, also distinguished themselves by assisting to work the heavy guns most effectively against the enemy.

5. On the 24th instant I arranged with Captain Hungerford, Commandant of Artillery, that the village of Goraria in which the rebels had taken refuge, should be well shelled and again assaulted by the Infantry. Accordingly, I moved up to it about noon, and found that the enemy were, as I had left them the preceding evening, excepting that a few had attempted to escape, nearly all of whom were killed. After a heavy fire of three hours' duration, the detachment of Her Majesty's 86th Regiment, under command of Major Keane, and the 25th Regiment, Native Infantry, under Major Robertson, again stormed the village and carried it, killing great numbers of the enemy; they themselves also suffering severely. At sunset I withdrew the troops, intending to move against the fort of Mundesore the next day. Early, however, on the morning of the 25th instant, intelligence reached me that the enemy had, during the night, completely evacuated Mundesore, and were scattered in flight throughout the country, in various directions, having lost, it is computed, about 1,500 of their number during our operations against them. I accordingly removed my camp to Mundesore, and am now engaged in dismantling the forts, destroying the guns, &c., before leaving this neighbourhood.

6. By the successful operations of the Malwa field force and field force, Hyderabad Contingent, in the vicinity of Mundesore, the Ncemuch garrison has been relieved from the assault with which it was threatened. The insurgent rebels have been dispersed from their stronghold in which, for months past, they have been daily collecting all those disaffected to our rule; and peace and order will now, it is to be hoped, be re-established in these districts.

7. I must now, in conclusion, place on record my grateful acknowledgments to Colonel Durand, officiating agent to the Governor-General for Central India, for his cordial assistance to me on all occasions. He was present in the field throughout the operations, and gave me the benefit of his advice, which proved of great service to me. Major Orr, commanding field force, Hyderabad Contingent, most ably co-operated with me on all occasions, and to him and all under his command I am very much indebted; to Major Boileau, Field Engineer, and his assistants, Lieutenants Prendergast (severely wounded), and Gordon; to Captain Mayne, Intelligence Department, to Captain Coley, Major of Brigade, to Lieutenant Macdonald, Deputy-Assistant Quartermaster-General, to Lieutenant Thain, Sub-Assistant Commissary-General, and to Surgeon Mackenzie, Staff Surgeon, my warmest thanks are due. The assistance rendered me by these officers left me nothing to wish for. A perusal of the report made by Captain Gall, commanding left wing of Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, will convey to his Excellency the Commander-in-chief some idea of the good service performed by all ranks under his command. I most fully concur in Captain Gall's report, and beg to commend to the consideration of his Excellency all the officers and men mentioned by him. Of Captain Gall himself, I must in justice add that a more able, zealous, and hard-working officer I have never met with, nor one more worthy of distinction. Of Major Orr, 3rd Regiment Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, and the officers and men under his command, I have already had reason to send the most favourable report to the Resident at Hyderabad. On this last occasion, nothing could surpass the bravery shown by all ranks of this Regiment; Major Orr himself is, I consider, a first-rate cavalry officer; his daring courage is admired by all, and in every affair in which he is engaged his personal combats are most prominent features. To Captain Hungerford, Commandant of Artillery, Malwa field force, and to Captain Woolcombe, commanding No. 4, light field battery, and the officers and men under their command, my best thanks are due. I do not think Artillery practice could have been better, and there can be but little doubt that the successful issue of operations is much to be attributed to their assistance. Of the conduct of Captain Brown, and the officers and men of the B Company, Madras Sappers and Miners, I have much pleasure in speaking in the highest terms; whether as Sappers or as Infantry, they have distinguished themselves on every occasion; they have undergone an incredible amount of hard labour, during our late march with a siege train over a country without roads, nor must I omit to mention that they accompanied the storming parties into the village of Goraria, and proved of the greatest service. My best thanks are also due to Major Keane and the officers and men of the detachment Her Majesty's 86th Regiment. The gallantry of all ranks was most conspicuous, and on both occasions that the village was assaulted, the coolness and daring of the officers and men, at whose head Major Keane placed himself, elicited the praise of all. My despatch from Dhar will have made his Excellency the Commander-in-chief aware of the very high opinion I held of Major Robertson and the officers and men of the 25th Regiment, Native Infantry. During the late operations nothing could have been finer than the behaviour of all in this regiment. Major Robertson distinguished himself on the 21st instant as field officer of the day, in the disposition of the pickets, which duty I entirely confided to him, and by the skilful manner in which he met the attack made upon him in force on the afternoon of that day. During the succeeding days, Major Robertson rendered me the greatest assistance; the manner in which he led his regiment on two occasions to storm the village of Goraria is beyond all praise, and I consider that the admirable conduct of the 25th Regiment of Native Infantry fully attests the worth of this officer, who will, I hope, meet with some mark of distinction. In the praise conveyed to Captain Little, 25th Regiment, Native

Infantry, by his commanding officer, I quite concur, and trust that his Excellency may be able to grant some mark of favour to this deserving officer. In the two attacks on the village of Goraria, I could see no difference between the conduct of the men of the 25th Regiment, Native Infantry, and their comrades of Her Majesty's 86th Regiment—the same daring and gallantry characterised both. Their list of casualties will show how warmly they were engaged, and I trust his Excellency will recognise the merits of this Regiment. Before closing this despatch, I beg to report on the admirable conduct of Assistant-Surgeon Butler, of the Artillery, who, during the engagement, of the 23rd instant, though suffering severely from sickness, left his doolie, and was engaged in the most active manner during the whole day in assisting to administer comfort to the wounded. The conduct of this officer has been brought to my notice by the staff-surgeon of the force, and will, I trust, meet with some reward.

Inclosure to the No. 2.

Major Orr to the Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General.

Sir,

Camp near Mundesore, November 25, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to forward, for submission to the Brigadier commanding Malwa field force, a report of the part taken by the field force, Hyderabad Contingent, under my command, during the operations near Mundesore, commencing from the 21st instant.

2. On the forenoon of that date, after making arrangements for the safety of my camp, I directed a village on the extreme left to be occupied and held by a party of cavalry and infantry, as its possession appeared of importance. About 2 o'clock, P.M. it was reported that the village was threatened. On reaching the spot I found a strong body of the enemy, Horse and Foot, moving out into the open country, and advancing with much boldness. I directed reinforcements and guns to be brought up at once; but before these could arrive the enemy had succeeded in forcing back the picket and occupying the village. On being joined by the guns and infantry, with the 1st and 4th regiments of Cavalry, Hyderabad Contingent, the Artillery, assisted by two guns of the Bombay (Captain Woolcombe's) battery, under command of Lieutenant Strutt, opened a very well-directed and effective fire, which cleared the village and forced back the insurgents. It was again occupied by our troops, the enemy retiring slowly and in considerable force towards Mundesore. My orders being explicit on the subject of not forcing a general engagement, I contented myself with retaining possession of the village.

3. On the morning of the 22nd, the force, by a flank movement, crossed the river, encamped on the west side of the town of Mundesore. Whilst making a reconnaissance with Captain MacDonald, Deputy Assistant Quartermaster-General, two bodies of the enemy were observed moving away. These consisted principally of horsemen. One got away too rapidly for pursuit, but the other was followed by the troops, as per margin,* and, after a hard gallop of some five or six miles, overtaken and severely punished, a great many being cut down by Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons and Contingent Cavalry. The pursuit was stayed by our finding a large body of the enemy drawn up in our front, in a strong position, in a village, against which cavalry could not act.

4. On the enemy being observed in strength to the left of the village of Goraria, whilst the column was en route, on the morning of the 23rd, I received the directions of the Brigadier commanding to deploy with my force to support the general attack, and to conform my movements to those of the column. These directions were implicitly carried out; the cavalry was held ready wherever it might be necessary to act, and to prevent any attempt on the left flank, a detachment of two companies of the 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, under command of Captain Sinclair, with two guns of the 1st Company, Artillery, was ordered to reinforce the rear-guard; the remainder of the infantry and two guns of the 4th Company, Artillery, under Captain J. de C. Sinclair, assisted by two guns of Captain Woolcombe's battery, under command of Lieutenant Keating, Bombay Artillery, advanced in line with the column, and aided in the general operations. The fire of the guns was most effective and good, throwing shot and shell with much precision into the enemy's ranks. On the capture of the guns and the advance of the cavalry on the right, I brought forward the cavalry on the left flank also, which was completely cleared of flying parties of the insurgents. Having received orders further to reinforce the rear-guard by two more guns, I considered I should be best carrying out the views of the Brigadier, and conducing to the success of the day's operations if I moved down the whole cavalry to the rear, which had been reported to be hard pressed. This was rapidly effected; I found the enemy had advanced to a position about 800 yards distant from the rear-guard, that they were in force, and that it was necessary they should be dislodged as soon as possible, their number and boldness increasing. I accordingly directed the line to move forward, and, after a short advance, the guns opened and drove back the enemy, they answering our fire from matchlocks. After a second advance I ordered the cavalry, as per margin,* to charge and clear the front. They rapidly advanced upon a large body of retreating footmen; but, unfortunately, the nature of the ground being broken, and full of large gravel-pits, from which a close and sharp matchlock fire was opened, prevented the attack being as effective as otherwise it would have been. A good many insurgents, however, were cut up, and those in the pits were afterwards shot down on the infantry coming up.

5. I deeply regret to have to report that in this charge fell Lieutenant Redmayne, Her Majesty's 14th Light Dragoons, whilst gallantly leading on his men; he was mortally wounded. His gallantry and daring courage were conspicuous to all, and I trust I may be permitted to say that in him Her Majesty's service has lost an officer of high promise.

6. In the operations against the village of Goraria, on the 24th instant, this force also took part, and a detachment of Infantry under Captain Sinclair, 3rd Regiment, joined the stormers, and shared in the assault upon the village.

7. I beg to bring to the favourable notice of the Brigadier commanding the Malwa field force, the conduct of the entire force under my command. My best thanks are due to Lieutenant Hastings Fraser, 4th Cavalry, my staff officer, for his zealous exertions in the performance of the numerous duties which devolved upon him, as well as for his prompt and ready aid at all times; to Captain Abbott, commanding 1st Cavalry; Captain Murray, commanding 4th Cavalry; Captain Sinclair, commanding left wing, 3rd Infantry; Captain J. de C. Sinclair, commanding Artillery; and Lieutenant Johnson, Adjutant, 1st Cavalry; to Surgeon Orr, 4th Cavalry, and Senior Surgeon, field force, Hyderabad Contingent, my best acknowledgments are due for the assistance he afforded me in the field during the entire operations for his care and attention, to the wounded, and the arrangements made by him for their comfort.

8. I beg to forward a nominal return of the killed and wounded during the four days' operations.†

I have, &c.

Commanding Field Force, Hyderabad Contingent.

Captain Stevens to the Secretary to the Government of India.

Camp Bunia-Kandy, 14 miles east of Cachar, January 13, 1858.

Sir,

I DO myself the honor to report, for the information of the Governor-General of India, that the 34th Native Infantry mutineers were attacked and dispersed by the force under my command yesterday, the 12th instant, with a loss of seventeen killed, several wounded, and three shot by drum-head court-martial. I would beg to state that the head-quarters of the battalion, under my command, was separated into three commands, respectively, under command of myself, Lieutenant Ross, and Lieutenant Buist, doing duty with the battalion. I was encamped at Luckipore, on the north bank of the river Barak; Lieutenant Ross had, with his detachment, just returned from Jeeree, after a long and tedious night march, when I immediately ordered him over to the south side of the river. Lieutenant Buist had previously left (proceeding along the north bank), with fifty men to strengthen the detachment at Cachar, and after proceeding a little distance, his rear-guard was fired on from across the river; intimation had then reached me of the position of the mutineers, who were posted in several villages on the south side of the river, numbering 100 strong, and who had been joined by several Munnipoorie princes with their followers, intending to cross over to Luckipore, plunder that place, be joined by several others, and march on to Munnipore,—such was their intention, but I am glad to say their object was most signally defeated. Lieutenant Ross's detachment, immediately on crossing, marched up to where they were in position. Crossing myself, with my men, almost opposite to them, Lieutenant Ross commenced attacking them in a spirited manner; shortly the whole were engaged, and were driven out of their position after an action of about an hour and a-half, and dispersing, took refuge in the neighbouring jungles. I immediately ordered a pursuit in different directions, but such was the nature of the ground and jungles, we did not come across any portion of them. This affair seems to have had the most signal effect; it has been the means of completely dispiriting the Munnipoories, who, I am told, have deserted the mutineers, and left them to their fate. Whether the latter will concentrate again remains to be seen.

I would especially bring to the notice of Government the conduct of Lieutenants Ross and Buist; to the former officer especially, who was first engaged with the mutineers, and who, on two other occasions, has defeated them.

It also affords me much pleasure in stating the conduct of all ranks under my command was all I could wish, for a noble spirit pervades the whole body.

I am also much indebted to Assistant-Surgeon Shireore attached to head-quarters of the battalion, and head of the Intelligence Department, in this affair, I received much assistance from that officer.

I have, &c.

J. H. STEVENS, Captain.

Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

Lieutenant-Colonel Seaton to the Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, Delhi Field Force.

Sir,

Camp, Mynpoorie, December 28, 1857.

I HAVE the honor to report for the information of Major-General N. Penny, C.B., Commanding at Delhi, that I marched yesterday morning from Kurrowlee, for the purpose of attacking Rajah Tej Sing, who had collected a large body of armed men and six guns, at Mynpoorie.

From information brought by my spies, I learned that the insurgents had erected a field work, and had taken post in some gardens outside the cantonments, where there was a Hindoo temple. Therefore, on reaching Kurreeem Gunge, I left the main road and struck into a cross one that would take me over the Ecsum nullah by an easy ford, and put me on the flank of the enemy. On reaching the enemy's position, they opened on my advanced parties from four guns, I sent the Light Artillery forward, supported by Cavalry, to engage the enemy, whilst I brought up the Infantry and heavy guns; but a few discharges from Captain Bishop's guns broke the insurgents, and they fled in every direction, pursued by the Cavalry. They had expected me to advance along the metalled road, down which they had pointed one 8-inch howitzer, so that when I came upon them from a different direction they were, like all irregular troops, completely bewildered, were thrown into confusion on the guns opening on them, and at once broke and fled. I sent the Cavalry in pursuit, and they destroyed about 250 of the fugitives.

Six guns were captured, as per return annexed. I had not a man killed, and am happy to say but few wounded. As soon as the enemy fled, I marched direct upon the Rajah's palace with the heavy guns and Infantry; there was not a soul in it, and I took possession at once.

My thanks are due to the troops for the great zeal and alacrity they showed on this, as, indeed, on every occasion, and to my Staff I am particularly indebted for their untiring endeavours to aid me. The only troops under fire were the Artillery and Cavalry, and I consider that the very utmost was done that the enemy's precipitate flight permitted.

Captain Hodson, who made a circuit of some fifteen miles, and got ahead of all the fugitives, assures me that none escaped in a body.

M

Lieutenant Hennessy, who accompanies my camp with some fifty Jat Horse, also pursued the enemy, and did excellent service.

I have, &c.

T. SEATON, Lieutenant-Colonel,
Commanding Moveable Column.

The Commissioner of Nagpore to the Secretary to the Government of Madras.

(Telegraphic.)

Nagpore, January 20, 1858.

PLEASE transmit the following message to the Military Secretary to the Government of India by telegraph as quick as possible:—

“A detachment of some fourteen men of the Irregular Horse Field Battery, who had lately arrived from Nagpore, mutined at Rajpore at 8 P.M., on the night of the 18th instant. They cut down the Serjeant-Major of the 3rd Irregular Infantry, seized the two post guns, and endeavoured to incite the men of the 3rd Infantry, then at Rajpore, about 150 or 200 in number, to join them; failing in this, they gave themselves up, and were immediately to be tried; the Serjeant-Major died in a few hours of the wounds he received. His murderer, a magazine Lascar, by name Hummunt Sing, has escaped for the present. A reward of 500 rupees has been offered, and all other means have been taken for his apprehension. I have hopes that the affair is at an end, but some anxiety is, of course, felt concerning the detachment with Captain Shakespear at Singhora, about 120 miles east of Rajpore and sixty west of Sumbulpore, on the high road, and the detachment with Captain Baron Von Meyern, at Sohogtore, in the Mundilah district of the Saugor and Nerbudda territories. Expresses were immediately dispatched to both. The post guns at Rajpore have been spiked, as no troops can be spared from Kamptee. Applied to General Whitlock, now at Kamptee, to send such aid to Rajpore from his division as he may consider to be required under the circumstances communicated to him. The force I have suggested, with reference to the strength of the Irregulars at Rajpore and Singhora is, one company European Infantry, one company Native Infantry, one troop 12th Lancers, one troop Madras Cavalry, 200; horse artillery guns at Seetabuldee. The whole number of Irregular troops amount to only about 200 Infantry.”

Camp, Secundra, January 26, 1858.

ON the afternoon of the 21st instant the left column of the field force, under my command, and numbering 1,400 effective men and six guns, reached Secundra. The Nizam Fagel Azeem, with 8,000 men and fourteen guns, was then at Sarch, seven miles distant, but having probably heard of the approach of a reinforcement of two squadrons of the 1st and four horse artillery guns from Allahabad, and dreading to wait in the more open neighbourhood of Sarch, he moved, during the night of the 21st and morning of the 22nd, to Nussetpore, where he joined Bani Bahadoor Sing, the Talookdar of that place. The position of Nussetpore is one of the strongest and most difficult of approach imaginable. I will enter more into detail on this hereafter. During the whole of the 22nd I was momentarily expecting the Cavalry and guns, which, however, from some delay at Allahabad, did not reach me till 8 P.M. on that day. On the morning of the 23rd, my baggage having been secured in a fortified enclosure on the previous day, I moved out to attack the enemy. I need not further remark on the conduct of the troops than to state, that the enemy was driven out of this very strong position with the loss of about 500 men killed and wounded, while the whole of his camp equipage, much ammunition, and three guns, fell into our hands. Our loss was only six men slightly wounded, and three horses killed and wounded. The stronghold of Bani Bahadoor Sing was taken possession of and destroyed. The density of the surrounding jungle, and difficult nature of the ground, intercepted by ravines, impeded the action of Cavalry, thus the enemy was enabled to withdraw nearly all his guns. But he has retired across the frontier, and those districts are now entirely cleared of rebels. Yesterday I moved to Sarch, which was found to be completely deserted, and has been occupied by the civil power. I have requested that it may be reinforced by Seikhs from Allahabad. The perfect steadiness under fire, and great intelligence of the Nepaulese Colonel, Jadro Sing, excited my warmest admiration. The rapid retreat of the enemy deprived them of an opportunity of closing with them. The enemy's camp was burnt with the exception of the Nazim's tent, which was sent into Allahabad.

Sir,

Futtyghur, January 23, 1858.

BY direction of His Excellency the Commander-in-chief, I have the honor to enclose, for the information of the Governor-General in Council, the accompanying copy of a report from Captain H. Boisragon, detailing the particulars of a very successful attack made upon certain insurgents at Kunkul, in the Taharunpore district.

Inclosure 20 in No. 3.

Captain Boisragon to Lieutenant-Colonel Baird Smith.

Sir,

Camp, Myapore, January 11, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to acquaint you that from 2 to 7 P.M. on the 8th instant, reports came into Roorkee from all parts of the district, that a large force (headed by the Nawab of Nujjeebabad) of the enemy had crossed the river Ganges, fallen upon the town of Kunkul, Jawalapore, and Hurdwar, destroyed the government property at Myapore, seized upon the horses of the cavalry picket, taken prisoner and carried off Mr. Dubross, the telegraph signaller, proclaimed these districts as having been conquered by the aforesaid Nawab, and the last petition from the Thanadar of Jawalapore to the Thesaldar of Roorkie was to the effect that the advance guard of the enemy had got as far as Bhudurabad, and that they were about to march on Roorkee; I was, therefore, directed by Captain Reed, commanding at Roorkie, to request Lieutenant T. Boisragon, commanding at Munglour, to proceed immediately with a portion of his detachment (as per margin)* towards Myapore; this order he received at about half-past 8 P.M., on 8th instant, and at 9 A.M. the next morning his detachment had reached Myapore, a distance of twenty-four miles across, to say the least, a very indifferent roadway for guns; this proves what can be done by good and willing soldiers, and I am certain that the above circumstance will afford you satisfaction.

Immediately on my arrival here at 8 A.M., on the 9th instant, I proceeded (accompanied by Captain H. Drummond, Engineers, Lieutenant Thomason, Engineers, and Mr. Melville, of the Civil Service, with three or four sowars,) in quest of the position of the enemy. After patrolling down the bank for two or three miles, we suddenly came upon their encampment, pitched within a few feet of the water, opposite to the ford of Unjinie, (a distance of about three miles in direct line from Kunkul); but, owing to the nature of the country, we could not see more than a few yards from the bank. I perceived, however, that they were in considerable force (I should say about 500 men), and from the fact of their having fired a 3 or 6-pounder at us we ascertained their being in possession of guns. Having all the necessary information, we leisurely retired under a very slight discharge of musketry. The only damage done at this place (but nowhere else), is the destruction of the Government bungalow (built by Sir P. Cautley), and the chowkee of the cavalry picket, by fire, and the carrying off of the aforesaid signaller, Moolla Melustie, of the Canal Works, five sowars, with their horses, and a dozen bildars; the telegraph wire was also cut, and a portion of it carried away; but this was immediately rectified by establishing an office at Jawalapore.

Yesterday, about 2 P.M., information was brought me by Shewpersad, native agent belonging to the Canal Department (who I beg to recommend very favourably to you, as he was the only man who brought any intimation), that the enemy were crossing in a very large force with guns, and that a great number of them had established themselves on the south of Kunkul, which they were about to enter; I immediately made the following preparations:—A guard (strength as per margin)* was left for the protection of the camp, under Mr. Phillips, of the Canal Department, whom I instructed also to watch the ford and dam opposite the Myapore bridge, and give me, immediately, information, if the enemy endeavoured to turn my left; and with the rest of the detachment I marched straight through the main street of Kunkul, and arrived at its south side just in time to prevent their effecting an entrance into it. The following was the disposition of the detachment:—the Nusseree Battalion and Seikhs under Lieutenant T. Boisragon, (with the latter men Mr. Melville, of the Civil Service, kindly volunteered his services,) the guns under Lieutenant St. George of the Artillery; Lieutenant Thomason, Engineers, at my requisition, very kindly took charge of the Cavalry; Captain H. Drummond, Engineers, was watching the movements of the enemy from the dam, which, at my request, he opened at a most opportune moment, effectually cutting off their retreat, but which at the same time prevented our following them up. Before the firing commenced, Captain Drummond joined and continued with me during the whole of the affair, and I am much indebted to him for his excellent advice.

Before the affair commenced, I was compelled to detach Cavalry and Infantry in several quarters, to prevent the enemy from getting to my right, left, or rear; besides, I had to advance very cautiously, as, from very good information, I learnt that the towns of Hurdwar, Kunkul, and Jawalapore were in collusion with the rebels, I therefore commenced the fight with the number as per margin.† I forward a plan of the ground, drawn out by Captain Drummond, which will give you an idea of what was done. It was, evidently, the object of the enemy to reach Jawalapore, I therefore threw myself between it and Kunkul; the guns were posted between that town and a large native building. Lieutenant T. Boisragon charged with his Ghoorkas, took them in flank, and drove them into the river, whilst the Seikhs charged in front into their position amidst the tombstones, which was carried in a few seconds, whilst the guns on our left flank poured grape into the enemy as they retreated across the river; several of the officers killed men with their own weapons, and the nephew, I believe, of the Nawab was shot dead by Lieutenant T. Boisragon, and I am given to understand that the Nawab himself was wounded by some one of our party. The affair lasted about half-an-hour; the Cavalry, led by Lieutenant Thomason and Mr. Melville, cut up the enemy, who took down our right bank. I should say the enemy were 1,000 strong (they also had two guns) of which killed, wounded, and drowned, they must have lost certainly 100. We obtained a quantity of swords, muskets, and other native weapons, also some ammunition. Our guns capitally served under the superintendence of Lieutenant St. George, of Artillery, glad to report that we had not a single man wounded.

Where every officer and man, European and Native, performed his duty well and cheerfully it would be invidious, nay, impossible to particularize; I am indebted to one and all, and I trust you will be pleased, and express your approbation of their conduct.

I forgot to state before that, at Roorkee, Lieutenant T. Boisragon's party was increased by ten Europeans from the Thomason College, and there was a further increase of twenty men of the 1st Punjaub Cavalry at Kunkul.

We have also taken fifteen horses.

H. BOISRAGON.

* 8 Europeans, 8 Seikhs, and 5 Sowars, of 1st Punjaub Cavalry.

Colonel Rowcroft to the Chief of the Staff.Camp, Sehunpore, West Bank of the Chota Gunduk, December 30, 1857.

Sir,

I HAVE the honor to forward the following extract of field force orders, dated Camp, Majhoulee, 28th December, 1857, for the information of his Excellency the Commander-in-chief:—

“Colonel Rowcroft, commanding the field force, has great pleasure in notifying, in orders, the complete success attending the movement of the troops on the 26th instant. To attack the large force of the rebels at Sahunpore, their strength reported to be about 1,200 Sepoys and 4,000 or 5,000 other armed rebels, and about 100 Sowars. The force* moved from the entrenched camp, at Myrwa, without delay, on the arrival of the 2nd Nepaul Regiment from Segowlie, at 7:30 A.M. of the 26th instant, came into action at Sohunpore, seven miles distant, about 10 o'clock, when the large rebel force was completely beaten, and, by 1:30 P.M., driven out and through the heavy woods and village of Sohunpore, and, without halting, followed up six miles further to Majhowlee, out of which place they were rapidly driven, and over the river Gunduk, at 4 P.M. One large iron gun, and limber complete, and two tumbrils full of ammunition, were captured in the river, and a few carts. The force bivouacked near the river that night. This day's work and constant marching, was not to be effected without much fatigue, and some privation, which was most cheerfully and willingly borne by all the officers and men of the Naval Brigade, the officers attached to the force, and by the Nepaulese troops of the Ramdul and Gorucknath Regiments, and the detachment of the Bengal Police Battalion. The detachment of the Royal Marines under Lieutenant Pym, R.M., with their Minié rifles, and the Artillery of the Naval Brigade, under Lieutenant Turner, R.N., especially did good service, and mainly contributed to the success of the day. Captain Sotheby, R.N., commanding the Naval Brigade, was ever present and active, superintending the working of the Artillery. Lieutenant Grant, R.N., in charge of the skirmishing party of the Naval Brigade, was forward and active in co-operating with the Marines. Captains Weston and Brooks in military charge of the Nepaulese regiments, were indefatigable in their exertions, with those regiments, and in any duties required of them in the field, Lieutenant Burlton in charge of the detachment of fifty Sikhs, afterwards reinforced by two companies of the Ramdul Goorka Regiment, gallantly and steadily held a village on the left flank, which was boldly attacked by the rebels. Captain Morgan, Field Force Staff; the Honourable Mr. Montague, Naval Brigade, Acting Aide-de-Camp; Mr. Lynch, Deputy Magistrate; Mr. Nicholson, Opium Department, also Acting Aide-de-Camp, all afforded Colonel Rowcroft every assistance; and Mr. Kenneth Nicholson, in charge of the rear-guard, baggage, and camp-followers, did most useful service. Assistant-Surgeons Shone and Dickinson, of the Naval Brigade, and Helson of the Ramdul Regiment, were all present in the field, ready and active in their departments. The Rev. Mr. Williams, Chaplain of the Naval Brigade, was also present in the field. The conduct of Major-Captain Sree Bhuggut Khanka, commanding the Ramdul Regiment, and Captain Koolpursaud Sing Bushriat, commanding the Gorucknath, deserves the highest commendation, and will be brought to the notice of the Resident at Nepaul, for communication to His Excellency, Maharajah Jung Bahadoor. It has afforded much pleasure to Colonel Rowcroft to bring the above to the favourable notice of the Governor-General; and he begs to offer his best thanks to all concerned in the successful action of the 26th, which has completely cleared the district of a horde of plundering rebels. The above order will be read and explained to regiments and detachments, as a record ordered for the purpose, by officers commanding and in military charge respectively.

I beg respectfully to recommend all the above to the favourable notice of the Commander-in-Chief.

Two companies of Nepaulese troops, and fifty matchlockmen for the protection of the entrenched camp, and to watch and hold the narrow causeway bridge over the river, which is about half-a-mile, in front of our position, about half-a-mile from the enemy's position. I formed line, and took ground to the right, to turn their left flank, where it was reported they were strongly posted, with three of their four guns, in a wood and tank, north of and close to Sohunpore. During this movement, they opened fire on us from their guns, and from a number of skirmishers pushed forward, and posted in the woods and heavy cultivation in all directions. Our guns and skirmishers soon replied, and with the best effect. The rebels, with their guns and Sowars, shortly moved rapidly to their right, where I suspect they had previously posted a party with one gun, to bear on our left. Their aim appeared to be to surround us by their numbers. I was obliged to conform our front accordingly. The enemy, though they made a show of advancing, kept at a respectful distance. I was obliged to order the Marines to protect our right flank, and the two companies in reserve our right rear, where the rebel's skirmishers were in great numbers. After our line had advanced a short way, and three or four shells had been beautifully pitched in the midst of the rebels, at 900 or 1,000 yards, they made off to their left to gain their old position in the woods and village. We changed front and advanced on them, our skirmishers and Artillery firing; on entering the first wood, the rebels had cleared out, but left three tents standing, and a large quantity of grain belonging to Koor Singh's nephew, Hurkishen Singh, which I ordered immediately to be burnt, to prevent delay from plundering, and proceeded, without delay, to Mejhowlee. We had, fortunately, little baggage with us, and only a few hackeries with the spare ammunition. I ordered all tents and heavy baggage to be left in camp. All the troops went through the constant movement and marching, in the heat of the day, with the greatest alacrity and cheerfulness; and it was not to be done without considerable fatigue, for I myself mounted at seven in the morning, and was upwards of ten hours in the saddle. It was difficult, in the heavy cultivation and woods, and from our quick advance towards Mejhowlee, to ascertain the number of the rebels killed. All reports make it 120 or 150, and many wounded. A few were killed at the deep ford of the river (six in one boat); and the large iron gun and limber, the two tumbrils and ammunition, were taken in the river. I am happy to inform you very few casualties occurred on our side, none among the officers and European troops. We were so constantly on the move, that the enemy's round shot passed over or by us, or fell short, as did their musketry, and they never got a good range. A doolie bearer was killed by a round shot in our rear, also a villager. The Naib Nazim, Mushruf Khan of Goruckpore, was present in the action, commanding his own force.

At 11 o'clock the next morning I marched with a detachment of the Naval Brigade, two guns, and eight companies of Goorkhas, four hundred men, crossed the river, and moved some two miles beyond Selimpore, to destroy the places of two noted marauders. They were blown up, burnt, and destroyed; the villages were not injured. We returned to Mejhowlee at 4:30 P.M., and found our camp and baggage safely brought up by Lieutenant Hamilton, 8th Madras Native Infantry, attached to the Naval Brigade. I had ordered it up the night before. During the 27th a few prisoners were brought in. On the evening of the 28th a parade was ordered, when a Sepoy of the 10th Regiment Native Infantry was blown away from a gun, and seven other rebels hung.

During two days every exertion has been made to throw a bridge of boats over the river. It was quite completed this morning, and at 11 A.M. I caused the field force to cross over to our present position.

If I receive no instructions from Brigadier-General MacGregor with Maharajah Jung Bahadoor's force now at Tumookoe, about ten miles west of the Big Ganduk, or from Government, I shall probably advance and act on the Gogra.

I have, &c.

H. ROWCROFT, Colonel,
Commanding Sarun Field Force.

General Order by the Governor-General of India in Council.Fort William, January 12, 1858.

THE Governor-General of India in Council has much satisfaction in publishing the following report of a successful attack made by the troops under Colonel Rowcroft, on a body of marauding rebels in the neighbourhood of his camp, on the 26th of December last.

To Colonel Rowcroft, to Captain Sotheby, R.N., commanding the Naval Brigade, and to the officers and men under his command; to the detachment of Royal Marines under Lieutenant Pym, and that of the Bengal Police Battalion under Lieutenant Burlton, as well as to the officers, civil and military, honorably mentioned by Colonel Rowcroft, the Governor-General in Council desires to offer his thanks for their services on this occasion.

The Governor-General in Council has much satisfaction in acknowledging the good services rendered upon this occasion by the Nepaulese troops acting under Colonel Rowcroft's command. To the officers and soldiers of that force generally, but especially to Major-Captain Sree Bhuggut Khanka, commanding the Ramdul Regiment; to Captain Dercedas Opudiah, of the same corps; and to Captain Koolpurshaud Sing Bushriat, commanding the Gorucknath Regiment, his Lordship in Council desires to tender the thanks of Government for the great zeal and gallantry which they have displayed.

Colonel Rowcroft to the Secretary to the Government of India.Camp Mejhowlee on the River Chota Gundah, December 28, 1857.

Sir,

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of the Governor-General, that the field force under my command received a reinforcement of the Gorucknath Regiment of Goorkhas, 500 strong, on the morning of the 25th December, sent up to join me by forced marches from Segowlee, by his Excellency Maharajah Jung Bahadoor and Mr. Samuells, the Commissioner. It was represented to me strongly that they were too fatigued, footsore, and hungry to march again that day, and that they had been without sleep for two nights. I therefore postponed for the day, though reluctantly, my arrangements to move and attack the rebels at Sohunpore, seven miles distant, and about midway between my entrenched camp at Myrwa and Mejhowlee. About 7.30 on the morning of the 26th December, I marched from camp with the force noted in the margin,* leaving two companies, 100 men of Goorkhas, and 50 matchlockmen of the Hutwa Rajah's for the protection of the camp, and of these half a company and twenty matchlockmen to watch and secure the narrow causeway bridge over the river Jurhall, less than half-a-mile in front of my camp. It was reported to me that the rebels were posted in the village of Sohunpore, and in two or three large topes (woods) close to it on either side of the Mejhowlee Road, with a tank with high banks close in front of the village on the north, in which most of the Sepoys and three of their four guns were posted. On arriving within little more than half-a-mile of the position of the rebels, I formed line and took the right to turn their left flank and act more easily on the tank. During this movement the enemy pushed forward numerous skirmishers into the topes and cultivation, and opened fire of guns and musketry on our line. Our skirmishers, consisting of the Marines, part of the Naval Brigade, and Seikhs, soon returned their fire, doing much execution among the enemy, especially the Marines with the Minié rifles. We also opened fire with our guns, and a few shells, well thrown in two or three directions, checked the rebels for a time. I advanced the line a short distance, when the main body of the enemy rapidly moved to their right, to join a force previously in position, I strongly suspect on our left, their aim apparently being to surround us with their numbers. I changed our front immediately to our left. During this time a village on our left was steadily and gallantly held by Lieutenant Burlton, 40th Regiment, Native Infantry, with the fifty Seikhs, and I sent two companies of the Ramdul Regiment of Goorkhas to reinforce him in holding that post, and, if possible, to capture a gun firing on our left. Lieutenant Burlton reports that Soobadar Himkumal Bashnia, 9th Company, Ramdul Goorkhas, behaved very gallantly, constantly encouraging his men, and, in riding at one of the rebels who was attacking Lieutenant Burlton, inflicting fortunately only a cut through his turban and helmet, the Soobadar was very severely wounded by a tulwar cut round the left hip, a Seikh then rushing up, cutting down and killing the rebel. After changing ground to the left I advanced the line towards the enemy, now and then allowing our guns to throw a shell or two. The enemy made a show of advancing a short distance with about fifty Sowars in their front. After advancing the line a short distance two or three shells were beautifully pitched into the midst of this large body of foot and horsemen, at 900 or 1000 yards distance, scattering them in all directions. I am sorry there was no opportunity to allow of the Goorkhas joining in a charge. The main body then moved rapidly to their left, as if to gain their old position in the topes and village. Our line was changed to the right. During the former advance and this movement the rebel skirmishers were firing from heavy cover on us from our right and right rear. I ordered the Marines to skirmish and cover our right, and two companies of the Gorucknath Regiment, who were placed in reserve, to cover our right rear. The line and skirmishers advanced, firing a few rounds from our guns into the topes, and in the direction of the tank. The rebels seem to have had only a rear-guard at this time left at Sehunpore. The skirmishers rapidly advanced into the topes, which we found quite clear of the enemy. Three tents of Baboo Koer Sing's nephew, Hurkishen Sing were here found all pitched, and a quantity of grain, &c. I ordered the tents to be burned at once. We then moved to the right to get on the Mejhowlee Road, and continued our advance without further delay to Mejhowlee, some six miles distant. Within about two miles of Mejhowlee we saw the rear of the rebels entering the place, and on nearing it I ordered the Marines and part of the Naval Brigade, and four companies of the Gorucknath Regiment to push on rapidly after the Seikhs composing the advance-guard, in the hopes of capturing their guns crossing the deep ford of the Gunduk. I am happy to say one large iron 6-pounder gun and limber complete, full of ammunition, was taken in the river. The Seikhs and some men of the Gorucknath Regiment with Captain Koolpurshaud Sing Bushriat were among the first down at the river in capturing the gun. The cultivation was so heavy, and we advanced on so quickly, it was difficult to ascertain the number of the rebels killed. Two other tumbrils—one full of ammunition, the other of powder—and two or three carts were also taken. The rebels, by all reports and appearances, were 1,100 or 1,200 Sepoys, and between 4,000 and 5,000 other armed men. The Naib Nazim Mushuraff Khan was present in the action with his force, and also Ali Kurreem, Moulvie of Patna, who was first reported to have been killed in the action, but now said to have got away the evening before. The Governor-General will be pleased to learn that this one day's work has completely cleared the district of this horde of marauding rebels, relieving the many villages of their plundering and oppression. The Rajah of Mejhowlee and the people gladly welcomed us, as did other people on the road. I had promised the Rajah I would soon relieve him. The Rajah states the rebels made sure of surrounding and destroying us, as we were so few, and of being able to get into Chupra and plunder the district. The Rajah also states that with the Sepoys' matchlockmen, sword and spearmen, the rebels were more than 6,000 or 7,000 strong. I do not think the rebels had heard of the arrival of the second Goorkha Regiment on the 25th December. I learn from the Mejhowlee Rajah and other reports, that there must have been some 120 of the rebels killed by the number of bodies since seen in their positions in the field. Besides many wounded, a few rebels were killed at the ford, and six in one boat. I am happy to say we have had few casualties. The gun and musket firing of the rebels was too high, the round shot and matchlock balls mostly passing over our heads, the round shot killing a doolee bearer and a villager in our rear. A Goorkha private of the Gorucknath Regiment was wounded by a musket ball, and also one of magistrate's sowars. It is a marvel none in the line were hit, for numbers of the shot, &c., passed over or by us, tearing up the ground, and ricocheting, but hitting any one. The action commenced about 10 A.M., and by 1.30 P.M. we had driven the rebels through the topes and village of Sehunpore, and followed them up and driven them out of Mejhowlee, and over the river Gunduk by 4 P.M. The troops had a hard day's work, and went through their fatigue most cheerfully. I was myself in the saddle for ten hours, or would have written to you earlier, but I wrote and reported our advance and successful attack and complete operation to Brigadier-General

MacGregor, with Maharajah Jung Bahadoor, the same evening, express to Bettiah. We bivouacked for the night near the river, having marched without tents or baggage, except two or three tents for the men of the Naval Brigade, and a few hackeries for the ammunition and to carry the Goorkhas and Seikhs in case of accidents during the action.

I marched again yesterday morning, 27th December, with a detachment of the Naval Brigade, two guns, and eight companies of Goorkhas. Four hundred men and the Seikhs, crossed the river, and moved through Selimpore, and about two miles beyond, to the house of one Narian Dial Canangoe, formerly an assistant-collector, who had been forward in marauding and giving aid to the rebels. His house was blown up, burnt, and destroyed. We also moved to another village, to the house of one Sungram Lall, the nephew and Toomandar of the above, and destroyed his house, but neither of the villages were injured. We returned to camp at 4½ P.M.

I need hardly say, that the troops behaved as British marines and seamen ever do, most excellently and gallantly. Captain Sotheby,* ever ready and present with the guns, afforded me every assistance in the field. Captain Sotheby has paid great attention to the drill and training of the Naval Brigade for land service, and in quickly training the horses and ponies for the guns; horses for the large 12-pounder howitzer, and ponies for the three others, and the seamen to ride and act as gunners; and under Lieutenant Turner, R.N., in charge of the Artillery, they have had constant drill and training, and are now ready and steady for field service, and were in the action of the 26th December.

Lieutenant Grant, R.N., in charge of the naval skirmishers, Lieutenant Turner, R.N., in charge of the Artillery, Lieutenant Radcliffe, R.N., in charge of the naval column, and all the officers of the Naval Brigade, and those attached to the Goorkha Regiments, zealously exerted themselves and afforded me every assistance.

Lieutenant Pym, Commanding the Royal Marines, especially did good service with the Minie rifles, and the orders I sent him were at once understood and promptly acted on while skirmishing.

Captains Weston, 36th Regiment, Native Infantry, and Brooks, 1st Regiment, Light Cavalry respectively, in military charge of the Ramdul and Gorucknath Goorkha Regiments, afforded me every aid in the management of those regiments, and Lieutenant Burlton, 40th Regiment, Native Infantry, in charge of the Seikhs, and were ever ready for any duty and service ordered.

Captain Morgan, 22nd Regiment, Native Infantry, Field Force Staff, the Honourable Mr. Montague, Royal Navy, my Acting Aide-de-Camp, and Mr. Lynch, Deputy Magistrate of Sewan, as also Mr. Nicholson, who acted as my Aide-de-Camp, afforded me every assistance in the field and during the entire day.

Mr. Nicholson's son, Mr. Kenneth Nicholson, to whom I gave the charge of the rear-guard company, baggage, and camp followers, rendered me very useful service.

Major-Captain Sree Bhuggut Khanka, commanding Ramdul Regiment, Captain Dersedas Opudiah, Ramdul Regiment, Captain Koolpurshaud, Sing Bushriat, commanding Gorucknath Regiment, and all the officers of the two Goorkha Regiments, were anxious and ready to render good service; and the men of both regiments were steady and willing in the field, and kept well to the front with the European force.

I respectfully beg to recommend Captain Sotheby, R.N., of Her Majesty's steam frigate "Pearl," and all the civil, military, and naval officers, to the favourable notice of the Governor-General.

I have reports that the rebels left their gun, which played on our left, behind them, in some well or jungle at Selimpore, and also the two guns they are said to have crossed over the river, somewhere hidden beyond Selimpore. The rebels will feel the want of their guns and ordnance stores at Goruckpore, as they are said to be in want of ammunition.

On the evening of the 26th, I dispatched a message to Myrwa to move on the camp and baggage, which was carefully brought on to this place at 4 P.M. yesterday, under Lieutenant Hamilton, 8th Regiment, Native Infantry, doing duty with the Naval Brigade.

I have ordered a bridge of boats to be got ready to cross the river to-morrow, to facilitate the movement over of the numerous hackeries, the only carriage we have, to be ready to move and act according to reports brought in, and probable orders from Brigadier-General MacGregor, to co-operate with the Maharajah's Nepaulese Army.

A few Sepoys and rebels were brought in prisoners during yesterday. They will be duly and speedily disposed of. Proclamations have been sent out to the villagers to capture all rebels, and offering rewards. I have, &c.

Captain Stevens to the Assistant Adjutant-General, Barrackpore.

Sir,

Camp Biuna Kandy, 14 miles east of Cachar, January 23, 1858.

IN continuation of my letter of the 12th instant, I have to report, for the information of Major-General Sir J. Hearsey, K.C.B., commanding the Presidency Division, that I have, on an average, been trying, by drum-head court-martial, and shooting daily, a couple of mutineers (34th Native Infantry). After the action of the 11th instant, it appears they divided into two parties, numbering about forty each. Their Havildar-Major, who has been guiding them all along, with a Pundit and a Sepoy, had that day left them, putting themselves under the protection of a Mynpoorie Prince, who had promised to provide for their future safety and return to their homes. Of the two parties, one went in the direction of south from this, the other, south-east, of the latter I heard intimation of their whereabouts yesterday, and I moved out with a small detachment to attack them. I found they had taken possession of a steep hill, covered with wood jungle; at its foot a nullah ran, and surrounded with high grass jungle. I crept through this, came to the edge of the nullah, gave them a volley, and charged the hill. The surprise was perfect; they had not the slightest intimation of our approach, and they fled, leaving all their arms and accoutrements behind (cooking at the time), also their clothes, blankets, &c. Ten were killed, and many wounded; but for the dense jungle in their rear, not one man would have escaped. This party may be considered as totally destroyed, as my numerous scouts will bring them in. Of the other party, I have sent Lieutenant Ross in pursuit. I am given to understand they have further separated into small parties, but none will escape I feel confident.

I would again bring to the notice of the Major-General commanding the conduct of my men, not only on this occasion, but every time they have had the good fortune to come across these mutineers.

I have, &c.

H. B. STEVENS, Captain,
Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Infantry Battalion.

Major-General Sir J. B. Hearsey to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Barrackpore, January 25, 1858.

IN continuation of my letter to your address, dated the 6th instant, I have the honor to transmit, for submission to the Government of India, and the Commander-in-chief, a despatch in original, from the Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion, dated the 13th instant, reporting the particulars of an engagement he had fought on the preceding day with the remaining mutineers of the 34th Native Infantry, in which the latter would appear to have sustained considerable loss, and been driven into the heavy jungles.

2. Captain Stevens reports the spirited conduct of Lieutenants Ross and Buist, commanding separate detachments, as well as of the valuable assistance he received from Dr. Shircore, his medical officer, and superintending the Intelligence Department.

3. Captain Stevens likewise highly commends the behaviour of all the native commissioned, non-commissioned officers, and Sepoys, who composed the force under his command.

4. I beg leave to recommend the excellent conduct of all ranks to the favourable notice of Government and the Commander-in-chief.

I have, &c.

Inclosure 29 in No. 3.

Captain Stevens to the Assistant-Adjutant General, Barrackpore.

Sir,

*Camp Binna Kandy, Left Bank River Burak,

I DO myself the honor to report, for the information of Major-General Sir J. Hearsey, K.C.B., commanding the Presidency Division, that the 34th mutineers were attacked and dispersed by the force under my command, yesterday, 12th instant, with a loss of seventeen killed, three shot dead by drum-head court-martial, and several wounded, the loss on my side being two killed and one wounded. I would beg to state, at the commencement of the action the battalion under my command was separated into three detachments, respectively, under the command of myself, Lieutenant Ross, and Lieutenant Buist. I was encamped at Luckipore, on the north bank of the river Burrah. Lieutenant Ross had just returned, after a long and tedious night march, from detached duty at Tence, when I immediately ordered him to the south bank. Lieutenant Buist had previously left with fifty men, proceeding along the north bank, to strengthen the detachment at Cachar, and, after proceeding a little distance, his rear-guard was fired on from across the river. Intimation had thus reached me of the position of the mutineers, who were posted in several villages on the south side of the river, numbering 100 men, and who had been joined by several Munnepoorie Princes, with their followers, intending to cross over to Luckipore, plunder that place, be joined by several others, and march on to Munnepore. Such was their intention; but I am glad to say their object was most signally defeated. Lieutenant Ross's detachment, immediately on crossing, marched up to where they were in position, myself crossing with my men almost opposite them. Lieutenant Ross commenced attacking them in a most spirited manner. Shortly the whole force was engaged; and they were driven, after a spirited action of one hour and a-half, from their position and dispersing, took refuge in the jungles. I immediately ordered a pursuit in several directions; but such was the nature of the ground, &c., we did not come across any of them. This affair seems to have had a most signal effect. It has been the means of completely cowing the Munnepoorics, who have, I am told, left the mutineers to their fate. Whether the latter will again concentrate, remains to be seen.

2. I would beg especially to bring to the notice of the Major-General the conduct of Lieutenants Ross and Buist; to the former officer especially, who was first engaged with the mutineers.

3. It also affords me infinite pleasure in stating the conduct of all ranks was all I could wish; but one spirit pervades the whole body.

4. I am also much indebted to Assistant-Surgeon Shirecore, attached to my force as medical officer and Superintendent Intelligence Department. This officer was foremost in the action, and partly assisted me.

I have, &c.

H. B. STEVENS, Captain,
Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

I HAVE the honor to forward, for the information of the Governor-General in Council, copy of a letter from Major-General Sir J. B. Hearsey, K.C.B., commanding the Presidency Division, of the 6th instant, with its inclosures, reporting the particulars of an action fought at the village of Lotoo by a detachment of the Sylhet Light Infantry, under command of Lieutenant Sherer, the Adjutant, with the mutineers of the 34th Native Infantry, and to express the Commander-in-chief's approval of the conduct of all concerned in this spirited affair.

Major-General Sir J. B. Hearsey to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Barrackpore, January 6, 1858.

1 I HAVE the honor to forward herewith, for submission to the Government of India and the Commander-in-chief, the accompanying copy of an official despatch from Lieutenant Sherer, Adjutant, and commanding the head-quarters of the Sylhet Light Infantry in the field, dated the 19th ultimo, reporting the particulars of an engagement fought on the previous day by a detachment of that battalion, with the three companies of the 34th Regiment, Native Infantry, which mutinied at Chittagong on the 18th November last, and which action ended in the total defeat and rout of the rebels.

2. I beg leave to express my high satisfaction with the great exertions made by all ranks of this small detachment to come up with and attack these mutineers, also with their gallantry and good conduct during the combat, and I would particularly instance Jemadar Gomga Ram Bist as one who has greatly distinguished himself for zeal, courage, and fidelity to the State.

3. It likewise affords me much pleasure to bring under the favourable notice of Government the bold and spirited behaviour of Mr. Dodd, the Executive Engineer, who volunteered his valuable services in the Intelligence Department, and of Lieutenant Sherer, who succeeded to the command of the detachment on the lamented decease of Major the Honourable Robert Palmer Byng, who nobly fell in the gallant discharge of his public duty.

I have, &c.

J. B. HEARSEY.

Inclosure 32 in No. 3.

Lieutenant Sherer to Mr. Allen.

Sir,

Head-Quarters, Camp, Lotoo, December 19, 1857.

OWING to the lamented decease of Major the Honourable R. Byng, late Commandant of this regiment, the duty has devolved upon me of reporting to you, for the information of Government, the particulars of a very sharp and spirited action that took place here at 7 yesterday morning, between the detachment under my command and the three mutineer companies of the 34th Native Infantry, ending in the total defeat and rout of the rebels.

Before entering into details, I would take the liberty of giving a slight sketch of the movements of our detachment, from the time it quitted Sylhet on the morning of the 15th instant up to 7 A.M. of the 18th instant.

Satisfactory information having been received that the mutineers were proceeding in the direction of Pertaubgurh, the head-quarters of this regiment marched out for that place on the morning of the 15th instant, numbering 213 of all ranks and grades, under command of the late Major the Honourable R. Byng, and accompanied by G. N. Dodd, Esq., the Executive Engineer, who volunteered his valuable services in the Intelligence Department.

The distance of about eighty miles from Sylhet to Pertaubgurh was accomplished by forced marches within thirty-six hours.

Very early on the morning of the 17th instant, Mr. G. N. Dodd rode ahead in the direction of Hinzazes to ascertain the exact route of the rebels. About 3 P.M. he returned, stating that he had received authentic information that the mutineers had changed their direction, were skirting the western side of the hills, and expected to reach Lotoo either that night or the following morning.

Upon receipt of this intelligence, orders were issued for the detachment to be ready at 5.30 P.M. to make a forced march back upon Lotoo.

The distance was about twenty-eight miles, through a most rugged tract of country, consisting of hills, dense jungle, and swamps.

The men, already tired from their previous forced marches, hailed the order with delight.

The march was a long, tedious, and most fatiguing one, more particularly as it was made during the night. Owing to the darkness and the denseness of the jungle, the main body of the column unfortunately missed its road about 2.30 A.M., and did not succeed in rejoining the leading portion until 4.30 A.M. Mr. G. N. Dodd had, during the night, again ridden ahead to ascertain the exact movements of the rebels.

The morning of the 18th had but just dawned, when our advancing column met Mr. Dodd about half-a-mile from the village of Lotoo. He reported that the enemy had bivouacked the night before at a village about five miles distant, but were now en route to Lotoo, and might be expected there in another hour. We immediately pushed on, and had hardly time to enter and form up in line in the Lotoo Bazaar, when a Munnepoorie, who had remained behind, to watch the rebels, by Mr. Dodd's order, reported that they were close at hand.

Our men at once loaded, and prepared for action.

Owing to the Sepoys who had been left behind as rear guard, we did not at this time muster more than 155 men, of whom one-half were Hindostances, the remainder being a mixed class of Goorkhas, Munnepoories, and Assamees.

The enemy were now observed advancing about 250 yards off, in good marching order, and in column of sections, headed by their native officer on a pony.

Major the Honourable R. Byng directed me to advance with one company, consisting of twenty file of men; a second company was directed to support my movements, while the Major brought up the two reserve companies with the colours.

I immediately took up a position with my company about fifty yards outside the village, behind a belt of jungle close to the road, and out of view of the rebels.

When the enemy had advanced to within eighty yards, I drew my men to the front, and was received by a volley of musketry, which luckily did no harm. I immediately replied to the fire, and charged the rebels at once at the point of the bayonet, most ably supported by the second company, headed by Mr. G. N. Dodd.

The promptness of the charge staggered the rebels; they broke and fled in disorder into some dense jungle on our left. Upon this I changed my front, and drove them right through the jungle from hillock to hillock, again most ably supported by the second company, headed by Mr. Dodd. After advancing about fifty yards, as the jungle was getting more dense at each step, I halted, placing my men under cover, as I did not deem it advisable to proceed farther, the enemy having succeeded in taking up a very strong position on a hill about eighty yards to my front.

The above did not occupy above five minutes, nor had the rear column, under our respected and lamented commandant, been idle, but had kept up a very sharp and galling flanking fire on the rebels when they first became disordered.

I had but just taken up my advanced position in the jungle, when the Major came up with the colours and reserve. He stood in a most conspicuous spot, right in the line of fire of the enemy, cheering our gallant little band, when a shot struck him in the groin, and he died within the next five minutes.

The enemy must have seen him fall from their elevated commanding position, for they at once set up a shout of triumph, and their fire became much more brisk and galling.

They, also, now did their best to induce our men to swerve from their allegiance, calling on them by the ties of caste, brotherhood, and religion, to come over and join them, as it was a common cause; that the Government were going to force the Hindoos to eat beef, and the Mussulmans pork, and destroy their castes.

The above was repeated over and over again, but ineffectually: not a man stirred, but replied by a steady, continuous fire.

The conduct of all grades, and especially the Hindoostances, at this trying period, cannot be over-valued. They vied with each other in doing their utmost to show that there were still some good and loyal servants left, who would never basely and treacherously desert and abandon the colours they had sworn to protect.

After a continuous firing had been kept up for a good hour and a-half, we succeeded, I am proud to be able to add, in dislodging the rebels from their commanding position.

They retired in great confusion on the loss of their senior native officer, who was shot through the head, and, carrying off as many of their wounded as they could with them, made off towards the south, right through the dense jungle, as fast as they could. Owing to the worn out and fatigued state of my men, I was quite unable to follow up and pursue them.

We counted twenty-six of their bodies left dead on the field. I succeeded in capturing about 2,300 rupees in cash, eighteen stands of arms and accoutrements, besides a large quantity of brass cooking pots, &c.

During the afternoon, a rebel havildar, by name Ram Deen, was found concealed in the neighbouring jungle, and brought in; I immediately tried him by drum-head court-martial, and shot him on the spot. The Hindoostances of my detachment crowding round me, and on my asking them if that was the death a mutineer deserved, every man, with his hand on his heart, exclaimed, "yes; and may the same just fate await us if we ever betray our trust, and forsake our colours."

In the above lengthy, and I fear imperfect manner, I have hurriedly endeavoured to describe all particulars as they occurred; and, such as they are, I trust they will be graciously received. In conclusion I cannot but express my earnest, heart-felt gratification at the entire tone and bearing of one and all the men during the above action.

Under most trying and difficult circumstances, they nobly vied with each other in doing their duty, and the result will be marked by the effect this decisive blow will have on the remaining body of rebels, who, I hear, are sadly discomfited, having thrown away or lost all their baggage, are seeking safety in flight alone.

I would beg to take this opportunity of bringing the valuable services of Mr. G. N. Dodd to special and prominent notice.

It was entirely owing to the untiring energy, zeal, and unsurpassed activity shown by this gentleman that the Government are indebted for our good fortune in meeting the rebels as we did.

His services were equally marked throughout the action, his personal bravery and daring were the theme and admiration of all the men.

Assistant-Surgeon T. Dillon afforded all the aid and attention in his power to the sick and wounded, and was constantly exposed to the hottest parts of the fire.

I beg further to bring to notice the gallant conduct of Jemadar Gunga Ram Bist.

This native officer was conspicuous throughout the fight in directing the fire of our men to the points it would prove most effectual, pointing out positions to our men as they fired off his shoulder; he himself having the gratification subsequently of shooting the senior subadar of the rebels through the head, which tended in no little measure to hasten the result of the action; lastly, I would touch upon the sincere unalloyed sympathy depicted on the countenances of all the men when our respected and much oved Commandant received his death-wound. They felt, as they themselves told me, that in losing him they had not only lost a good, kind, though strict, commanding officer, but also their friend and protector, one who ever had a ready, willing ear to listen to all their wants and desires.

In truth, I feel I cannot do sufficient justice to these men for their noble conduct throughout, under peculiarly trying, harassing circumstances.

The Hindoostanee Sepoys crowded round me this morning, saying they hoped that any suspicion, however slight, we may have entertained in our minds, regarding the conduct they themselves would pursue in consequence of the dark foul deeds committed by their brethren in the north-west, would be now fully and effectually erased, after the indubitable proof they had given of their own loyalty and fealty to the State.

Trusting the facts here related will meet with the approbation of Government,

I have, &c.

Inclosure 1 in No. 4.

Brigadier Carthew to the Deputy Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Camp, Royapoora, Calpee Road, January 19, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to state that, in obedience to the orders of the Commander-in-chief, conveyed in telegram of 10th current, I marched from Futtehpore on the morning of the 12th, with the force, as per margin,* to Bindkee, and thence on the 13th to Janhanabad; at that station Mr. Probyn apprehended and inflicted capital punishment on two notorious criminals. I had proposed moving southwards from this place to Chandoura, but Mr. Probyn having ascertained that the village had been deserted by the whole of its inhabitants, who had fled southward and crossed the Jumna, I marched the following morning to Ghatumpoor. I was here joined by Mr. Willock and a party of Seikh Irregular Horse, under Lieutenant Mackenzie. I also received a despatch from Brigadier Inglis, requesting me to march on Bhogneepoor, and thence to Secundra; further informing me that Her Majesty's 34th Regiment would be sent to Akbarpore to join me if necessary.

Abandoning therefore the projected route into the Trunk Road by Sarh, I marched the next day to Moosanugger, at which place I received intelligence that Bhogneepoor was held by 300 of the enemy (horse and foot), who expected to be reinforced during the night. Communicating with Colonel Kelly, and directing him to move down the Calpee Road to co-operate with me, I moved on to Bhogneepoor† on the 16th. Early on that morning the enemy retreated across the Jumna; I therefore despatched a messenger countermanding the march of the 34th Regiment, and proceeded to Secundra on the 17th. An armed rabble, composed principally of Rajpoot adherents of Bhao Rajah, who had plundered the town, abandoned it on hearing of our approach, and dispersed.

Leaving Secundra I marched to Derapoor on the 18th, and arrived here this morning.

I shall take the force into Cawnpore to-morrow, where I purpose halting one day, leaving, with the horse artillery, guns, and Native Infantry, on the 22nd, on my return march to Futtehpoore, which station I hope to reach on the 24th current.

M. CARTHEW.

Captain Stevens to the Assistant Adjutant-General, Barrackpore.

Sir,

Camp, Cachar, January 21, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of Major-General Sir J. B. Hearsey, K.C.B., commanding the Presidency Division, that, with the concurrence of Mr. W. H. Allen, the Commissioner, I am returning to Cheera Poonjee with the headquarters of the battalion under my command, leaving Lieutenant Ross with a detachment of 100 men at Binna Candy. Previous to my departure on the 29th, I proceeded into the neighbouring jungles with a small detachment in pursuit of a party of ten mutineers, of these five were killed and two brought in and shot. On the 30th instant a party of six mutineers, including Subadars Sooka Singh and Naraen Singh, were seized, brought into camp, and shot. I am of opinion their numbers do not amount to more than twenty-five or thirty, all unarmed, wandering about in a miserable state of starvation and destitution.

2. In the extermination of these mutineers, the sole credit is due to the Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion, and I trust my proceedings, since I took command on the lamented death of Major the Honourable R. Byng, has met with the approbation of the Major-General commanding.

3. The men (I make no distinction) have performed their several duties most willingly and cheerfully, not having to make a single complaint against any individual, and I would again bring to the notice of the Major-General commanding the exemplary and loyal conduct of this corps.

4. It is my intention on return to submit a report of those who have specially distinguished themselves, with a view, if considered deserving, of their receiving either promotion or reward from Government.

I have, &c.

H. B. STEVENS, Captain,
Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

Horse Artillery guns, four companies Her Majesty's Rifle Brigade, 200 17th Regiment Madras Native Infantry.

† Three matchlockmen and a camel-hurkaru of the enemy were taken and hanged here.

Inclosure 3 in No. 4.

Captain Stevens to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Camp, Binna Kandy, 14 miles east of Cachar, January 13, 1858.

I DO myself the honor to report, for the information of the Commander-in-chief, that the 34th Native Infantry mutineers were attacked and dispersed by the force under my command yesterday, the 12th instant, with a loss of seventeen killed, three shot dead by drum-head court-martial, and several wounded. I would beg to state that the head-quarters of the battalion under my command was separated into three detachments respectively, under command of myself, Lieutenant Ross, and Lieutenant Buist, doing duty with the battalion. I was encamped at Luckipore, on the north bank of the River Barak. Lieutenant Ross had, with his detachment, just returned from Tence, after a long and tedious night march, when I immediately ordered him over to the south bank of the river. Lieutenant Buist had previously left (proceeding along the north bank) with fifty men to strengthen the detachment at Cachar, and after proceeding a little distance, his rear-guard was fired on from across the river. Intimation had then reached me of the position of the mutineers, who were strongly posted in several villages on the south side of the river, numbering 100 strong, and who had been joined by several Munnepoorie princes, with their followers, intending to cross over to Luckipore, plunder that place, and be joined by several others, then to march on Munnepore. Such was their intention; but I am glad to say their object was most signally defeated. Lieutenant Ross's detachment, immediately on crossing, marched up to where they were in position, crossing myself with my men almost opposite to them. Lieutenant Ross commenced attacking them in a most spirited manner, shortly the whole were engaged, and they were driven, after an action of about an hour and a-half, from their position, and, dispersing, took refuge in the neighbouring jungles. I immediately ordered a pursuit in several directions, but, such was the nature of the ground and high jungle, that I did not come across any of them. This affair seems to have had a most desirable effect. It has been the means of dispiriting the Munnepoories, who have, I am told, left the mutineers to their fate; whether the latter will again concentrate remains to be seen.

I would beg especially to bring to the notice of his Excellency the conduct of Lieutenants Ross and Buist, to the former officer especially, who was first engaged with the mutineers, and has on two other occasions defeated them. It also affords me much pleasure in stating the conduct of all ranks under my command was all I could wish, but one spirit pervades the whole body.

I am also much indebted to Assistant-Surgeon Shircore, and head of the Intelligence Department. This officer was foremost in the action, and greatly assisted me.

I have, &c.

H. B. STEVENS, Captain,
Officiating Commandant Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

Inclosure 4 in No. 4.

Captain Stevens to the Assistant Adjutant-General, Barrackpore.

Sir,

Camp, Binna Kandy, January 26, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of Major-General Sir J. B. Hearsey, K.C.B., commanding the Presidency Division, the result of a successful expedition this day against the remnants of the 34th Native Infantry mutineers. Intimation having yesterday reached me, through my scouts, that some seven or eight had collected together, supposed to be the few who escaped after my affair of the 22nd. I this morning ordered out a jemadar's party to dispose of them. On arriving at the spot they found it vacated, and no trace of them could be found, notwithstanding, they prosecuted further search with the utmost vigour, knowing full well they could not be far off; fortunately they were successful, and came across a party numbering some thirty-five, the second party, which Lieutenant Ross had the previous day been in search of, and who had evidently been joined by the above seven or eight. They were ensconced in very thick bamboo jungle, but, by the judicious arrangements of the Jemadar Bhuggut Beer, they were surrounded as far as could be, a volley delivered, and in they went. The surprise was again complete; thirteen were killed, and one severely wounded. Twelve muskets, with pouches, belts, coats, &c., were brought in.

2. Great credit is due to the Jemadar Bhuggut Beer, and to acting Havildar-Major Kurruk Sing, which latter non-commissioned officer I especially sent, for a braver Goorkha does not exist; and I would respectfully bring them to the notice of the Major-General commanding.

3. Of these mutineers very few now remain, and hardly a musket with them. I trust that my next report will inform the Major-General Commanding that not one is alive.

I have, &c.

H. B. STEVENS, Captain,
Officiating Commandant, Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

Barrackpore, February 5, 1858.

Forwarded to the Adjutant-General of the Army, for submission to the Government of India, and the Commander-in-chief, to whose protection I would beg to recommend the exemplary good conduct of Jemadar Bhuggut Beer and acting Havildar-Major Kurruk Sing, of the Sylhet Light Infantry Battalion.

Mr. Thornhill telegraphs from Agra on the 17th, that Major Ramsay had reported that morning that Colonel MacCausland, with 800 Infantry, 200 Cavalry, and two guns, defeated Kula Khalee on the 10th, near Buheree, capturing three guns and destroying another, although the enemy's force was about 4,000. Their loss upwards of 250 killed; our loss ten.

Military Department, Camp, Allahabad, February 18, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure in No. 5.

Narrative of Events dated February 18, 1858.

Agra.—Communication by telegraph re-established 30th January, 1858.

Allahabad.—The Governor-General arrived on the 4th February, 1858, and is in camp in the fort. The Commander-in-chief came in on the 8th instant, and returned to Cawnpore the same day.

Benares.—Thirty-one prisoners broke jail on the 9th instant, and cut down the Jemadar; twenty-six mutineers; eleven were shot, three died of wounds, thirteen caught and hanged, and four common prisoners are missing.

Cawnpore.—A fresh inroad of the rebels is reported in the district from Calpee. A troop of Royal Horse Artillery, 7th Hussars, and the 79th Highlanders crossed the Ganges on the 4th of February, 1858, under the command of Brigadier W. Campbell, and have been ordered to proceed to Busseerut Gunge, and there await further instruction. A force consisting of the 3rd Troop, 3rd Brigade Horse Artillery, 9th Lancers, and 1st Bengal Fusiliers also crossed the river on the 6th instant, and proceeded to Oonao. The heavy train has crossed the Ganges. 500 Infantry and about twenty Sowars crossed the Ganges between Bibouhar and Sewrajpore, and it is to be feared the Nana or his brother is with them. They have taken the direction of Sheolie and Secundra. In consequence of a gathering of rebels at the various ghats, Colonel Maxwell, with the 88th Regiment, has been moved from Akbarpore to Sheolie, and Brigadier Walpole back to Chowbeypore. The disposition of the force for arresting any movement across the river has been entrusted to the latter officer, he has three regiments of Infantry, 500 Sowars, and twelve guns under his command. The Commander-in-chief's plan for moving on Lucknow is as follows:—Six regiments of Infantry and two of Cavalry are echeloned along the road to Bunnee, for its safeguard; the leading portion will most likely arrive there on the 13th February, and his Excellency's camp will probably be formed on the 17th or 18th instant, at Buntara (four miles beyond Bunnee), on which the remaining regiments will close up: in the meantime Brigadier-General Grant, C.B., has been directed to beat up the village of Poorwa, to the eastward of the Bunnee Road, and other expeditions may have to be made for dispersing bodies of insurgents on both sides of the road. It was Rao Sahib, the Nana's nephew, who crossed the Ganges at Nana Mow Ghant (between Bellour and Sewrajpore), and it is reported that the Nana himself meditates a like attempt at the head of some 2,000 men. Maun Sing has given notice to Brigadier-General MacGregor that such an attempt is to be made by the Nana. On the 14th of February the effective force under the personal command of the Commander-in-chief was as follows:—

Naval Brigade	431
Artillery	1,745
Engineers	865
Cavalry (European and Native)	3,169
Infantry (European and Native)	12,498
Total			18,708

Some alarm, excited by the gathering of the insurgents at the various ghats of the Ganges between Puttyghur and Cawnpore, Brigadier Walpole has been ordered to retrace his steps some twenty miles up the Grand Trunk Road, and combine with Lieutenant-Colonel Maxwell, C.B., at Sheolie, for the purpose of intercepting any large body that might attempt to cross from Oude. Brigadier Seaton, C.B., had considered it necessary to stop the convoy of ladies and families which left Agra on the 11th February. The rebel leaders in Rohileund and Oude appear to wish to take advantage of the absence of the bulk of our forces at Lucknow to excite new disturbances in the Doab. And the Commander-in-chief has deemed it necessary to send a strong brigade, under Brigadier-General Grant, C.B., to make a circuit in the province of Oude, and threaten the rear and flanks of the insurgents on the Ganges; the Brigadier-General is to visit the places bearing the most rebellious character, particularly the residence of the Nana, at Futtehpoore Chowrassee, of Numsib Ally, at Rassoolabad and Meangunge. Brigadier-General MacGregor hoped to cross the Gogra below Tanda, on the 14th of February, with Jung Bahadoor's force, and Brigadier-General Franks will be able to concentrate his force on the same date at Singramow. Thus his Excellency will have an additional force of 12,000 men to carry on the siege. General Outram reports that he has no reason to anticipate further attacks from the insurgent troops under the Begum of Lucknow. The great Commissariat dépôt is to be formed at Jellalabad, which is the right of Sir James Outram's position.

Delhi.—The necessary orders for the demolition of the fortification have been issued.

Etawah.—Mr. Hume has gained a victory over the rebels at Phoolpore, capturing their guns and killing 125 men.

Puttjore.—The party of mutineers and insurgents in the district continue to increase.

Puttyghur.—2,000 men are reported to be on the Ramgunga with four guns. At Sandee there is a force of 4,000, with several guns; they hover about Meorah Ghaut opposite Mendhee Ghaut. They are also in force at Seorajpore. The Nana was at Nobutgunge on the 10th February, and seized some boats. Hurdeo Bux's villages have been attacked. Appa Sahib is recruiting at Seetulgunge, and has got 300 men. A regular chain of communication is kept up by the rebels between Bareilly and Lucknow, via Shabjehanpore, Sandee, and Bilgram. Raja of Seorajpore, Minnepoorie Raja, Kuttra Raja, Mossum Ali Khan, and perhaps Bukht Khan, are at Meorah Ghaut and Bilgram with a strong force of Cavalry and Infantry, and six or seven guns. Nirtul Sing commands Hushmut Ally's men, about 500, near Mendee Ghaut; there are no guns there. The force at Nana Mhow consists of 2,000 men and twelve guns. Munsab Alli, with 1,000 men and ten guns, is at Meangunge; and at Sandee a force of 1,000 Sowars five guns. One attack is proposed on all the ghats at once.

Fyzabad.—Maun Sing has reached with, it is said, 12,000 men.

Hyderabad.—The Rajah of Sholapore, having levied bodies of mercenaries with a view to hostilities against the British Government, the Resident has applied to the Madras Government for troops, and has also ordered the troops of Singa Soogoor and some of the Hyderabad Contingent to proceed to Sholapore. The town of Sholapore has been occupied by Colonel Malcolm; the Raja had made his escape, but was afterwards captured.

Indore.—The Rajah of Arghar has been hanged.

Jaunpore.—Brigadier-General Franks has united his columns near Budhapore, on the road to Sultanpore, and has been ordered to move on the road which runs from Jaunpore to Lucknow.

Jubbulpore.—Captain Osborne has taken all the outer defences of Bijeeragohur, and was about to attack the fort itself.

Nagpore.—Seventeen mutineers of the Nagpore Irregular Force were hanged on the 20th January, 1858. The execution went off quietly. Captain Shakespear has returned through through the Jungham pass, through the Raepore frontier, and found the road open, and not a rebel to be seen. Baron Von Mayern commenced shelling the fort of Seobugpore on the 21st January, but was obliged to desist in consequence of some accident to his gun. He has been ordered to return to Pindun and defend the Raepore frontier against the Mundla rebels. General Whitlock has advanced towards Jubbulpore.

Punna.—Major Ellis states that Medhaloll, Chuprassie, and Koorja Persaud, Moortear of Dalta States, went to the Nawab of Banda, and signed a paper agreeing, on the part of the State, to send troops to his assistance. The Rance of Dalta gave the intelligence. Orders have been given for securing both the men.

Rholas.—Lieutenant-Colonel Mitchell took possession of the fort on the 17th February with a part of Captain Rattray's Sikh Battalion. The mutineers and rebels retreated and dispersed.

Sassiram.—Within five hours of the Governor-General's departure from Jehannabad, on his journey by dâk to Benares, on the night of 2nd February, 1858, the village of Akbarpore was attacked by 200 mutineers and rebels; they were, however, held in check by the Zemindars, and retreated in the morning.

Saugor.—Sir H. Rose attacked the fort of Shahghur on the 26th January, 1858. The rebels had been forced to abandon the town, and are in the fort. The Shahzadah of Mundesore and other rebel chiefs, with about 4,000 people, are said to be in the fort. The fort of Ratghur was evacuated on the night of the 28th idem. Fazel Mahomed Khan was taken prisoner and hanged over the gate. Sir Hugh Rose reached Saugor on the 3rd February, 1858, without opposition, and relieved the fort and station. The rebels are at Kinakut.

Sylhet.—A party of forty or fifty mutineers have been attacked in the Kuttar jungles, and thirteen killed. Several stragglers have also been killed; in all, 137 have been accounted for. At Cachar, in Jumbulpore, the Jemadar of Kalabar, a rebel chief, and several others, have given themselves up.

No. 6.

The Governor-General of India to the Court of Directors of the East India Company.

Military Department, Allahabad, March 5, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure 1 in No. 6.

Narrative of Events dated March 5, 1858.Allahabad, March 5, 1858.

Cawnpore.—Brigadier-General Grant arrived at Meangunge on the 23rd February and found it a strong walled town occupied. A breach was effected in three hours, and the place was assaulted, and taken. The enemy lost upwards of 400 men; our casualties only sixteen or eighteen, including two officers wounded; four guns had been captured. The Commander-in-chief crossed the river, and reached Buntara, six miles from Alumbagh, on the 28th February.

Calpee.—The Nana's nephew, Rao Sahib, is at this place, with no considerable force.

Cuttack.—A detachment of forty men, Madras Native Infantry and Ramghur Light Infantry Battalion, attacked some rebels in their stronghold, near Sumbulpore, and were defeated. Captain Woodbridge commanding the detachment, and two sepoy were killed and five sepoy wounded,—assistance had been sent.

Futtyghur.—The Nana was reported to be still at Birra on the 20th February, and the situation of the rebels much the same across the river.

Goruckpore.—General MacGregor reports, that the fleet of boats with Colonel Rowcroft's force arrived on the night of the 19th February, four miles below Jung Bahadoor's position at Burraree; that Colonel Rowcroft's force was crossed over to the right bank of the River Gogra; on the morning of the 20th another brigade and six guns crossed; and that the boats would at once be brought up to Phoolpore, when the whole force would be crossed over. Colonel Rowcroft's force, and the brigade which crossed the river on the 20th, met the enemy at Phoolpore, and totally defeated them, capturing three guns. The bridge of boats was expected to be ready on the 25th February; and the Maharajah had proposed to advance by forced marches. Jung Bahadoor's force arrived at Umberpore (fifteen miles towards Lucknow via Sultanpore) on the 26th February. As it was determined to go by this route, the Naval Brigade, Yeomanry Cavalry, and the two Goorkha Regiments, under Colonel Rowcroft, were left for the protection of Goruckpore, agreeably to the wishes of the Maharajah. On the 27th instant the forces arrived at Semolee. The men and cattle, especially the Bewa Brigade, were considered unfit to proceed any further. On the 26th of February the force captured a small fort after a desperate resistance; it was very strong, having a triple line of defence within a bamboo jungle, and although defended by only thirty-four men, the Goorkhas lost seven killed and forty-three wounded. All the enemy were killed. A much larger fort was occupied on the 27th instant without opposition, and burnt; 200 men had been in it the day before.

Jaunpore.—General Franks' force marched from Singramow on the 19th February, and attacked a force of 8,000 men (of whom 2,500 were Sepoy of the 20th, 28th, 48th, and 71st Regiments, Native Infantry) under Bunda Hossun Chukledar, with eight guns, at Chanda, and totally defeated them, and pursued them to the village of Rampoor, three miles beyond Chanda. Later the same day he attacked and defeated a force of 10,000 men and eleven guns, under Mehundec Hussein at Ameerapore on their march to the support of Chanda. In these actions six guns have been captured, and 600 or 700 men killed and wounded. The casualties on our side were only two officers (one civilian), five Europeans, and four Goorkhas wounded. General Franks was at Ameerapore on the 20th. The Nazim being on his left at Warree, and both being equally anxious to get possession of the pass, jungle, and fort of Budhayan; but on the 21st General Franks out-manœuvred him, and got into the above position, which secured the advance of our troops to Sultanpore. On the 22nd General Franks halted at Budhayan, awaiting the arrival of the Cavalry reinforcements, and the Nazim, by making a détour, arrived at Badshahgunge, two miles beyond Sultanpore, and took up a strong position, intimating his arrival by firing a salute. On the 23rd our force marched ten miles, turned the right of the enemy's position, and got into his rear, attacked and defeated his force of 25,000 men (of whom 5,000 were Sepoy, and 1,800 Cavalry), with twenty-five guns, killed and wounded at least 1,800 men, amongst the latter Rajah Hussun Ali Khan, and captured twenty pieces of artillery—one 32-pounder, two 24-pounders, two 18-pounders, four 12-pounders, one 9-pounder, and ten smaller guns, besides all their camp, baggage, ammunition, &c. The enemy's force was completely dispersed, and the road to Lucknow and Fyzabad was opened. Our whole loss in the three actions abovementioned amounts to only two men killed, and sixteen wounded. General Franks proposed continuing his march towards Lucknow the next morning. On the 25th instant the force arrived near Moosafir Khana. Two of the enemy's sowars were killed, and important despatches from Rajahs Hussein Alli Khan and Lall Madho Sing found on them, acknowledging their inability to cope with us in the field, and recommending night attacks being made on our baggage, and inroads into the old provinces, as the only means of preventing General Franks' force from going into Lucknow. The Lahore Light Horse and Pathan Irregular Cavalry have joined General Franks.

Lucknow.—The enemy attacked Sir James Outram, at Alumbagh, on the 25th February. Two guns were captured from them, and a large number of rebels were cut up. Our loss only two killed and six or eight wounded, amongst the latter Colonel Berkeley and Captain Moorsom slightly. The Begum and some of her principal officers were present on elephants, but escaped.

The Commander-in-chief arrived at Dilkosha on the 2nd instant, and took up his ground in rear of the place after a skirmish with the advance guard of the rebels, in which a gun was taken from them. They have made a very complete line of works in front of the Commander-in-chief, and were keeping up a heavy cannonade. The siege train was to close up on the 4th, half of it arrived on the 3rd. General Franks was to close on the Commander-in-chief on the 4th. His Excellency is in communication with him.

MR. PLOWDEN telegraphs to the 30th. Captain Shakespear had returned through the Sanghorn Pass to the Raepore frontier, where he will remain. Not a rebel seen in his line of march or by his detached horsemen. The road open, and the Calcutta dak of the 19th had reached Nagpore, via Sumbulpore. The news of the Raepore mutiny did not alarm either Captain Shakespear or Baron Von Meyern, but still Mr. Plowden thinks that a few Madras and European troops should be at Raepore. Baron Von Meyern began to shell the fort of Soebugpoor on the 21st, but had to desist, as his guns were disabled. He has been ordered to return on Pindun and defend the Raepore frontier against the Mundla rebels. General Whitlock has advanced to Jubbulpore.

Allahabad, February 12, 1858.

THE following message was received this day from Commissioner of Nagpore:—

"Please refer to my message, dated the 20th instant. All the mutineers, viz., the whole Artillery detachment, consisting of a Havildar and fourteen privates, and two sepoys of the 3rd Infantry, in all seventeen men, were convicted on the afternoon of the 21st, and hanged the next morning at Nagpore, before general parade of the Irregular Infantry and Mookee Sowars. The evidence was clear against the whole seventeen men, and given by native officers, eight (Mussulmans and Banians), of the 3rd Infantry, readily and without hesitation, and the execution went off quietly, notwithstanding the critical nature of the proceeding. Haumain Sing, the murderer of the Serjeant-Major, has not been captured yet, but he cannot, it is believed, remain undiscovered long. It is impossible to speak too highly of the Rajpore authorities, viz., three in number, in this matter; their promptitude and determination, from first to last, have secured the district. General Whitlock has refused to spare me a single man. I regard his refusal, under circumstances communicated to him, as absolutely undefensible. I have entreated the Madras Government, by return telegram, to comply with my requisition for aid; if this be not done I will not answer for the peace of the province; as it is, much valuable time will be lost in forwarding the above, at the request of the Commissioner, to the Government of India. The Chief Secretary has been directed to transmit the following telegram, which has been sent by the Madras Government to the Commissioners. Orders have been sent to General Whitlock to telegraph such measures as he may consider necessary for the suppression of mutiny, and for the restoration of order at Rajpore, or wherever else it may be requisite for him to act."

YOUR telegram, and much correspondence relating to the Goorkhas, been received. In the meantime recollect that no advantage can be gained by the attempt to introduce the British system into the Goorkhas, and that you are to treat them altogether as the soldiers of an allied, but independent power. Above all avoid calling for complicated returns, and do not separate the Goorkhas from one another. It is very desirable that on the occasion of your advance into Oude you should move with a month's provisions, there being no longer any necessity for detached columns. You will brigade your three English regiments together, making the senior Lieutenant-Colonel a Brigadier, and the Goorkha corps will be brigaded by themselves, under their own officers. The British officers attached to them are to assist and guide, but are not, on any account to take command, thus you will have an European brigade, and the other a Goorkha brigade. I write fully by post. You may give Lieutenant-Colonel Sparks leave to Benares, he is not to remain in the field.

HAVING now received undoubted proof of the Rajah of Sholapore having levied bodies of mercenaries in the Nizam's territories, with a view to hostilities against the British Government, beg that sufficient force now available in the Southern Mahratta country may be moved on to Sholapore. The number we may have to contend with, as far as I have been at present able to ascertain, is from 1,500 to 2,000 Arabs, Rohillas, and others, and the Rajah has the power of raising in a few days 12,000 armed militia, his own subjects. Should the troops in the Southern Mahratta country be insufficient for the service, I beg the Madras Government may be telegraphed to order the moveable column from Bellary or Kurnaul, or wherever it may be. I have ordered by express the troops of Lingasogoor, consisting of six companies of Infantry, fourteen Irregular force, and 200 of the Hyderabad Contingent, to march at once on Sholapore, with a view of protecting Captain Campbell; and beg Colonel Malcolm's moveable column may at once be ordered on from the same; I have also ordered the remainder of the battery of Hyderabad Contingent, stationed at Bolarum, to march on Sholapore; but they cannot reach under ten or fifteen days. Brigadier-General MacGregor to Brigadier-General Franks.

Sir,

Camp, Lallunge, February 16, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of a correspondence relative to the brigading of the Europeans and Goorkhas of your force; and also of your letter of the 12th instant, informing me that you are to march to Singramow on the 13th, where you are in all probability to-day.

2. We march to Gaighaut to-morrow morning and, if possible, seize a position on the right bank of the river on the 18th; and immediately commence the construction of a bridge.

3. Great delay has been occasioned in the bringing up a fleet of boats from Gopalpoor, but Captain Sankey, the field engineer of the force, has constructed a sort of pontoon train out of dingees of the country, and of them we trust to be able to make a bridge, and will certainly be able to make rafts sufficient to throw both troops and guns across. This is the more necessary as the position of some forts on the right bank of the river, and the prevalence of strong westerly winds have delayed and may stop entirely the arrival of our boats at the point of crossing.

4. We shall have two brigades and twelve guns at Gaighaut to-morrow, and another brigade with Colonel Rowcroft's force, and ten guns, within I trust one march of us, having left one brigade with six guns, at Belwa, opposite Fyzabad.

5. Maun Sing has been seeking terms and will not, I think, oppose us in any way, while his withdrawing from the rebel cause has already caused a split in their camp.

6. Our present intention is to throw two brigades across on the 18th, and making a strong tête-de-pont at the village of Phoolpore, to set to work at once on the bridge, and we trust we may have it ready and everything passed across by the time our ammunition arrives, for an advance, vid Tandah, on Fyzabad. By the time we reach Tandah, I trust you will be at Sultanpore, and ready to concert measures with the Maharajah and myself for one continued advance on Lucknow.

7. I have the honor to request that you will be good enough to make known these particulars by telegraph to the Governor-General in Council, and to his Excellency the Commander-in-chief, and to keep me informed of your own movements day by day; I sending to you the like information regarding the movements of this force.

I have, &c.

I HAVE the honor to forward herewith, for the information of the Governor-General, a copy of a letter of the 16th instant, from Brigadier-General MacGregor, C.B., Military Commissioner with Maharajah Jung Bahadoor, detailing his movements past and future.

2. At the time of writing this letter he cannot have received the telegram from the Chief of the Staff, a copy of which is attached hereto, and which was forwarded to him yesterday by me.

3. A force of 20,000 men, of whom 2,500 are Sepoys and 1,400 Sowars, with twenty-three guns, will be assembled to-morrow, at Chanda, to oppose my advance to Sultanpore. I march to-morrow morning to Koereepore. If the enemy remain where they are, I shall attack them on the 20th, having previously thrown my baggage into a strong position, and on that day I shall halt beyond Chanda, moving on towards Sultanpore the next day. If I am not opposed I shall march to Rampoor on the 20th, from which I shall endeavour to reach Sultanpore in two marches.

4. I have placed a force, equal to a strong Goorkha Battalion, about 500 men, in the fort of Jaunpore.

5. I have the honor to request that the contents of Brigadier-General MacGregor's communication, and a notice of my intended movements, may be telegraphed for the information of the Commander-in-chief.

Inclosure 29 in No. 6.

Brigadier-General Franks to the Secretary to the Government with the Governor-General.

Sir,

Camp near Moorsafir Khana, February 25, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to report, for the information of Government, and for communication to the Commander-in-chief, that I have this day marched to within two miles of Moosafir Khana, eighteen miles.

2. On the road, some of my Cavalry came on a party of the enemy, and cut up two of his Sowars, carrying important despatches from Rajahs Husain Ali Khan, and Lall Madho Sing, to the Nazim.

3. From these documents, it appears that the rebel force in these parts is crushed by my recent victory; and the Rajahs recommend attacks by night on my baggage and camp; and predatory excursions into the old provinces, in the hope of drawing away this force; and they admit that, in open war, they have no chance of success.

4. All my Cavalry reinforcements have joined by extraordinary forced marches; and I have now nearly 600 sabres.

This force is prepared to march anywhere; and to-morrow we move towards Jugdespore.

The Lahore Light Horse and Pathans unfortunately only arrived at my headquarters after the action at Sultanpore; had they reached me six hours sooner, when the whole plain was covered with fugitives, whom the utmost efforts of my Infantry could not overtake, the enemy's loss would have been considerably heavier.

5. On entering Oude, I issued proclamations inviting agriculturists and merchants to bring in supplies, which shall be paid for, and intimating that the well-disposed have nothing to fear from this army; and I have rigorously repressed plundering by camp followers.

I have, &c.

"To-day the Maharajah's force marched to Umberpore, fifteen miles towards Lucknow, via Sultanpore. As we had determined to go by this route, it became necessary to have better protection for Goruckpore, so I have left both the Naval Brigade and Yeomanry Cavalry, in addition to the two Goorkha Regiments, under Colonel Rowcroft, for the defence of that district. “It is impossible for us to be farther than Fyzabad or Sultanpore, if we take that road, by the 28th. Lucknow we cannot reach before the 7th March. If the Commander-in-chief is waiting out of deference to the Maharajah, I can assure the Governor-General that it is quite unnecessary; the Maharajah, though anxious to share the glory of the capture, does not expect to be in time, and does not wish the Commander-in-chief to wait for him. We will, however, press on as soon as ever we get boats to cross, so that we may be at hand if required. I report daily, and will continue to do so; if we were across, however, we could not move till our ammunition arrives, and it has not come.”

I suppose the non-arrival of ammunition may be due to it having been sent to Dhoreebushall instead of to the point where the force was to cross the Gogra. Davies' letter of this morning is being sent to the Governor-General.

IN answer to your Lordship's telegraphic communication, I beg to assure you that my desire was to forward the recommendations of the Generals who commanded, and to give them my heartiest support. I have made two or three very trifling alterations, without interfering, except in the instances alluded to, with the expressed wishes of the officers commanding at Delhi and at Lucknow; I trust that this will be sufficient. I arrived here yesterday, and took up my ground in rear of the Dilkoosha, after a skirmish with the advance guard, in which a gun was taken from the enemy; the enemy has made a very complete line of works in my front, and keeps up a heavy cannonade. The siege train closes up to-morrow, half of it having arrived to-day. General Franks is one march in the rear, and will close on me to-morrow; I am in communication with him.

Benares, March 2, 1858.

FROM Brigadier General MacGregor, C.B., dated 27th February, Camp, Semotee Burhabra, received by express, 9 A.M., 2nd March:—

"The army of Maharajah Jung Bahadoor marched this morning from Umberpore to this place. I wished to go farther, but the Maharajah remonstrated, saying that both men and bullocks were done up, especially the Betwa brigade. In reply to the last paragraph of your message, received through Secretary to Government, Military Department, of the 22nd instant, I was well aware that his Excellency's intention was that we should go to Lucknow and co-operate; but no specific duty has been assigned to the Maharajah's force, and he was anxious to know what he was expected to do, and kept asking me about it. Yesterday we captured a small fort, which lay in our way, after a desperate resistance. It was immensely strong, having a triple line of defence within a bamboo jungle, and though only defended by thirty-four men, it cost us 7 killed and 43 wounded. All the enemy were killed. The place, however, commanded the road, and had we passed it, they would have been down on our baggage. The effect was good; this morning we occupied a much larger one without opposition, and burnt it afterwards. It had 200 men in it yesterday."

Benares, February 24, 1858.

GENERAL MACGREGOR writes, on February 22nd, from Phoolpore, on the Gogra:—

The bridge is proceeding famously, and we shall cross on the 25th. The Maharajah and myself have agreed to march, via Tandah, on Lucknow, in eight marches, if possible. If we went by Fyzabad we must be detained. The ammunition is one march from here, and arrives to-morrow."

Inclosure 39 in No. 6.

Brigadier-General Macgregor to the Commissioner of Benares.

(Telegraphic.)

Camp, Burarce, February 23, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to request you will be good enough to transmit immediately to Mr. Edmonstone, for the information of the Governor-General in Council, the following telegram, and send me the answer by express:—

“Since my last telegram our prospects have very much improved. The boats arrived the night before last, four miles below this, and Colonel Rowcroft’s force at once crossed the river. Yesterday, Brigadier Gungadoa’s brigade joined them, and the whole force advanced to Phoolpore, where they met the enemy, and, after an action, lasting over an hour, totally defeated them, capturing three guns. Our tender point is now secure, and the bridge will, Captain Sankey thinks, be ready by the morning of the 25th. The Maharajah has proposed to make forced marches, and we will push on as fast as possible. Agreeably to instructions received from his Lordship, I have spoken to the Maharajah about leaving the Naval Brigade behind, and he is very much disappointed. He says that his Lordship promised they should go with him, and that I promised it too; that of course, if the public interest require it he will say nothing about it; he had expected it from the first, and he feels it very keenly. The Yeomanry Cavalry has also arrived, fifty, at Bihtee, and I have directed them to wait there until I get an answer to this telegram. They would be invaluable assistance to us; without Cavalry we cannot strike a decisive blow, and the Maharajah expects them to be joined to our force, where their actual use, great as it would be, will be equalled by the moral effect of their presence, which would give confidence to Goorkhas and the Maharajah, who have a fear of the enemy’s Cavalry, and whose defective discipline renders them liable to attacks from that arm, while the presence alone of the Yeomanry would have a great effect on the enemy at Goruckpore, Belowa, and, perhaps, more than ever yesterday, could have literally destroyed the whole rebel force. The Naval Brigade, yesterday, proved of value; the light impetuosity of the Goorkhas, when checked by the enemy’s fire, found on it a nucleus on which to reform. Major Richardson, who is now with me, having come here at my request, has assured me there will be no difficulty in preventing collision between the Yeomanry and the Goorkhas.”

Narrative of Events.

Agra.—On the 6th March, it was reported that Walleedad Khan, with 4,000 men and three guns, intended crossing the Ganges at Kuchla, and 200 Cavalry at Kudwar-gunge. Brigadier Showers has directed some troops from Allyghur to take up an advanced position to keep them in check.

Allahabad.—The wing of Her Majesty’s 13th Foot has been ordered to join Colonel Rowcroft’s force across the Gogra, from Azimghur. The 4th and 6th Madras Light Cavalry arrived here on the 10th March. On the 12th March, the 80th Foot left for Futtypore. The 4th Madras Cavalry marched on the 15th instant to Goruckpore, detaching fifty men under a subaltern at Azimghur on its way. The detachment of Her Majesty’s 97th at Ghazeepore, with two guns, proceeds to Azimghur, and another detachment of the same regiment, now at Dinapore, is to come up to Ghazee-pore. Her Majesty's 35th has reached Dinapore.

Allyghur.—General Penny had marched from Meerut with a moveable column, and reached Allyghur on the 12th March; and discretionary powers have been sent to him to cross the Ganges in pursuit of the rebels, or under any other circumstances that may make it advisable to do so. He was expected at Khasgunge on the 15th March. Etah is now safe.

Cawnpore.—The rebels have evacuated Ghatumpore, and recrossed the Jumna. A body of rebels, considerable in number, but not known to have guns, arrived on the 4th March on the left bank of the Ganges, opposite Radhall, five miles above Shebrajpore. They are supposed to have come from the west. On the 5th March, there was a report from Colonel Maxwell's moveable column, which states that the Chirkatee Rajah had been taken prisoner by the rebels after a hard fight; but it requires confirmation. The rebels who threatened Radhall have retired inland, and are now known to have been Nurput Singh's party. On the 2nd March, some reinforcements, called Wilaitees, had joined the rebels at Calpee. The rebel force at Ghatumpore has made no advance, and all is clear on the left bank of the Ganges. On the 6th March, the ghauts on the Ganges were still clear; but a collection of rebels reported at Booea fort, near Madho Ghurrie headed by rebel chiefs, Rajah of Futwa and others. *Nothing new from the Jumna side. Colonel Maxwell's force is at Jubbulpore. The gathering of the rebels on the left bank of the Ganges was assuming a more serious form on the 7th March. On the Jumna side, the rebels continue to gather at Hameerpore, and they have made preparations for its defence. The Rajah of Chirkatee is still said to be holding out. Natives report great alarms at Calpee. Colonel Maxwell's moveable column crossed into Oude on the 9th March. It is said that the rebels intend breaking up their establishments at Derapore and Russoolabad. On the 12th March, planking was in progress on the sands of the Jumna, near Humeerpore, but the rebels have not crossed. At Calpee, all as usual. All the ghauts on the Ganges were quiet. A report was received on the 15th March, that a considerable body of rebels had crossed the Jumna, from Humeerpore into Ghatumpore district, but without guns. All well at Cawnpore. Colonel Maxwell returned.

Futtyghur.—On 6th March, the rebels were in force at Soorajpore, headed by leaders of importance, who threatened to cross the Ganges. The rebels from Budaon are reported to have attacked Kumpil, on the right bank of the Ganges. Some 300 Sowars and some Infantry have recrossed the river with considerable plunder. Information, from a reliable source, was brought on the 11th March, that the Nana had arrived with 300 or 400 men, horse and foot, at Shajehanpore, and was on his way to Bareilly. The enemy had recrossed the Ganges on the 4th March.

Futtypore.—The moveable column under Lieutenant-Colonel Christie, Her Majesty's 80th, on the left bank of the Jumna, attacked the rebels at Serowlee, on the opposite bank. The enemy are believed to have suffered severely, but as there were no boats our force could not cross the river and attack them, and Lieutenant-Colonel Christie, therefore, after having shelled the town of Serowlee, and set fire to parts of it, retired to Dhana at 10 A.M.; our loss was one man killed, and three wounded.

Goruckpore.—Colonel Rowcroft's force was attacked by the rebels, 4,000 Sepoys, 10,000 Irregulars, 300 Sowars, and nine guns, at Amora, on the 5th March. The action commenced at 8.30 A.M., and closed at 12.30 P.M. The enemy were totally defeated and pursued seven miles, losing 400 or 500 killed and wounded; eight guns and ammunition were captured, namely, one 18-pounder, one 9-pounder, two 6-pounders, and four of smaller calibre. The Yeomanry Cavalry made some telling charges, in one killing ninety-three of the enemy. The Nazim Mahomed Hussun Rajah Dabie Bux of Gonda, the Rajah of Churdah, and Mahundee Alli Hussain were present, on elephants. The Sepoys were of the 1st, 10th, and 53rd, lately completed to 500 each, 2nd Oude Police, 700, and some of the 5th Gwalior Contingent.

On the 17th February, whilst escorting boats up the River Gogra, Captain Sotheby, R.N., with a force consisting of 130 men of the Naval Brigade, 35 Sikhs, and 60 Goorkhas, with one mountain-howitzer, attacked and captured the fort of Chundee-pore, on the left bank of the river, taking two guns, spare waggons, and ammunition, besides all the private property of the rebels. The fort was situated in the midst of a dense plantation of bamboos, and was garrisoned by about 300 men, not many of whom were killed in consequence of the thick cover they fought under. Our loss was four wounded, including Captain Weston, 36th Native Infantry. The river steamer "Jumna" co-operated with the land force, and rendered efficient service. The fort and adjacent buildings were Lucknow.—General Franks's force joined the Commander-in-chief on the 5th March. On the left of Alumbagh, a strong brigade of Cavalry has been placed, and patrols as far as the old road between Lucknow and Cawnpore. Sir J. Outram's advance across the Goomtee took place on the 6th March, and his force, after driving the enemy from it, occupied a position across the Fyzabad Road, leaving the Chukkur Walla Kotee rather more than a mile in his front. Major Smith, 2nd Dragoon Guards, was killed in the skirmish. On the 7th instant the enemy made a desultory assault on Sir James's force, but was driven off with ease. Sir H. Grant then made a wide sweeping movement with Cavalry and Horse Artillery to the north-east through the cantonments, and returned to camp without having been opposed. On the 9th March Sir J. Outram attacked the enemy, and after taking the Chukkur Walla Kotee he pressed on, and occupied the Badshabagh, opposite the Chutter Munzil. Our loss very trifling. Sir J. Outram having on the 9th instant effectually turned and enfiladed the enemy's first great line of works, the Martinière, after it had been heavily cannonaded, was stormed by the 2nd Division, under Sir E. Lugard. The action was principally an artillery one, and our loss was consequently trifling. The lower line of works on the canal, abutting on the Goomtee, has been seized by us. Sir J. Outram was to commence shelling the Kaiserbagh on the 10th March. The Commander-in-chief is making gradual progress against the multiplied defences of the enemy. On the 10th March, Banks's house was occupied, and an extended position taken up in its front; and Sir J. Outram has pushed his advances on the other side of the river. The resistance was stubborn, and the rebels are in great numbers.

Jung Bahadoor joined and moved into line on the 11th March. Sir J. Outram, on the 11th, pushed his advance as far as the iron bridge on the left bank of the Goomtee, and established batteries so as to enfilade some of the enemy's works, and to command the stone bridge. The Begum's house was stormed, after a heavy cannonading, on the afternoon of the same day, by the 93rd Highlanders, 4th Punjaub Infantry, and 1,000 Goorkhas. They were supported by the rest of Sir E. Lugard's Division. Maharajah Jung Bahadoor was to move close to the canal, the same afternoon, and to take an active part in the operations of the 12th instant. Three telegraph offices have been established, one at Alumbagh, one in the Martinière, and one in General Outram's camp. All were working well on the 12th idem. The Emanbarrah and Kaiserbagh were taken on the 14th instant. On the 15th March, the enemy were streaming out of the city in vast numbers in the direction of Sundeela. Brigadier Campbell, who was on the left of the Alumbagh, started in pursuit at 2 A.M., with a very strong brigade of Cavalry, and two troops of Horse Artillery; and Brigadier-General Grant, with 1,000 men and two troops of Horse Artillery, also started towards Seetapore, with the view of intercepting the fugitives who may be turned off by Brigadier Campbell's movement; and was followed on the morning of the 16th instant, by a brigade of Infantry and Heavy Artillery. He is directed to halt at Seetapore for instructions. This is the direct road to Rohileund.

Roorkee.—Three regiments and a-half of Sikh Infantry, and one of Cavalry, were ready to cross the Ganges on the 10th March.

Saugor.—Brigadier Wheler writes from camp, Banda, 1st March, that he had had an affair with a body of about 300 rebels, at a village called Jalimpore, seven miles from thence, and just across the Shahghur frontier. They were posted in the village, with a densely wooded hill in their rear; they opened a fire with zumboorucks; but after a few rounds from our guns, they retired into the jungle. The head-quarters of the 31st Native Infantry, and 150 of the Hyderabad Contingent, drove them through the jungle, and on the hills, until they were totally dispersed, and had lost their zumboorucks, plunder, and two loads of gunpowder—our loss, nothing. Brigadier Wheler was about to make a feint on Shahghur, and await further orders from Sir H. Rose at Bamori, the fourth march from Saugor on the Calpee Road. The force under Sir H. Rose forced the pass of Mudhunpore on the 3rd March, after a short but vigorous resistance. The enemy numbered about 4,000 or 5,000 Pathans and Bundelas, and 600 or 700 sepoy of the 52nd, and other regiments: they suffered severely. Major Orr was sent in pursuit, and cut up fifty or sixty of the rebels, of whom a large number were sepoy. The enemy abandoned the fort of Serai, which is the property of the Rajah of Shahghur, and scattered in every direction. A small party of our troops is to be left in it, to keep open the communication with Saugor. This success enables Sir H. Rose to communicate with his first brigade at Esaghur (or Chundeyree) up to Jhansi, with the exception of two or three forts which he can take.

Inclosure 1 in No. 8.

Narrative of Events dated March 18, 1858.

Cawnpore.—On the 16th March the rebels had recrossed the Jumna to Humeerpore.

Futtyghur.—On the 15th of March the Nana was still at Shahjehanpore, and the more important of the rebels were with him. The enemy had also again entered the district, attacked Kumpil, and driven off the Shanna people. General Penny was close at hand.

Lucknow.—On the 16th March the bridges were secured, and our troops occupied the Muchee Bawn and great Imambarah. Large bodies of the enemy were seen to cross the stone bridge an hour before Sir J. Outram's attack commenced. He was ordered to press the attack; but the resistance was very slight in comparison with that of the previous days. On the night of the above date a Goorkha division also seized the enemy's position in front of the Alumbagh. Vast numbers of men, both armed and unarmed, were evacuating the city by the outlet they possess to the northwards. On the 17th instant our advances were being gradually pushed on all sides of the line occupied by the troops, particularly towards Gow Ghaut and Moosabagh, in which direction the enemy are retiring. The point they intend to make for is not known.

Agra.—Intelligence has been received from Agra, dated the 17th March, that the town only of Chirkaree had been plundered, and that the fort was safe. Nothing of interest had been heard from Brigadier Showers' column; but the rebels were in the ravines of the Chumbul, and some of them had been killed. The new police behave well. The country on both sides of the Chumbul is much unsettled. At Kotah the Rao, aided by others from Kerowlee, is fighting with the rebels, and appears to have the best of it.

Inclosure 2 in No. 8.

Narrative of Events dated March 19, 1858.

Futtyghur.—On the 17th March the enemy were in great force at Bichpooria, headed by Mohsour Alli Khan, and have completed their bridge there, and threaten to cross.

Lucknow.—On the 17th March the Goorkha force, under Jung Bahadoor, occupied the Charbagh and Cawnpore Road in the city, and were attacked by the enemy in great force in the afternoon. The enemy's flank, however, was turned by the direction of the Maharajah in person, and they were completely defeated, with the loss of ten guns and all the waggons of a light field battery; one gun was one of our own 9-pounders. On the morning of the 18th March the Goorkha force renewed its advance on the right, and captured seven more guns, and the force holds that quarter of the city, one mile and a-half to the westward of the Cawnpore Road. The Goorkhas have passed the front of Alumbagh, and taken the rebel batteries opposed to them in reverse. The advance of our troops on the right, on the 17th, was not opposed. On the 18th instant we were in possession of the greater part of the town, and the first attempts at the restoration of authority were being made. The inhabitants had fled the city and were in the neighbouring villages. A force had been organized to attack the Moosabagh, the last post held by the enemy, on the following morning, 19th March.

The Secretary to the Government of India to the Secretary at the India House.

Sir,

Military Department, Allahabad, March 20, 1858.

I AM directed by the Governor-General to transmit the accompanying addition to the narrative of events dispatched yesterday to the Court of Directors.

I have, &c.

R. J. H. BIRCH, Colonel.

Inclosure 1 in No. 9.

Narrative of Events dated March 20, 1858.

Agra.—News of the 15th March from Gwalior confirms the intelligence of the capture of the fort of Chirkaree by the rebels, under Tantea Topee, aided, it is said, by parties sent by the Nawab of Banda and Ranee of Jeytpore. Up to the 19th of March no further news had been received from Brigadier Showers' force on the Chumbul, or from Kotah.

Futtyghur.—On the 18th March the rebels crossed the Ramgunga in great force, with four guns; they retired, however, to Baugaon. Their bridge is finished across the Ramgunga. On the 19th instant our column at Meeran-ke-Serai was called in. Authentic information had been received that the Nana was at Allygunge. At Simirree the rebels remain in the same force as before.

Lucknow.—The Moosabagh, the last post held by the enemy, was taken by our troops on the morning of the 19th March, and the Cavalry has been sent in pursuit to the northward. Miss Jackson and Mrs. Orr have been saved. Arrangements were being made for the withdrawal of a part of our troops from the city. The Commander-in-chief is arranging the details for the future garrison of Lucknow.

Cawnpore.—On the 20th of March intelligence had been received from the Tehseeldar of Ghatumpore, that the party who crossed the Jumna from Humeerpore to Burree Paul have retreated before the column commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Christie, 80th Foot, who is patrolling the Futtypore district of the Grand Trunk Road.

Inclosure 2 in No. 9.

Brigadier Wheeler, Commanding Saugor District, to the Adjutant-General of the Army.

Sir,

Camp, Banda, March 1, 1858.

I BEG that you will acquaint his Excellency the Commander-in-chief that I had an affair with a body of about 300 rebels at a village called Jalimpore, seven miles hence, just across the Shahghur frontier.

2. The enemy were quite unaware of my approach till I was within a mile of them; they posted themselves in a village with a densely wooded hill in their rear.

3. They opened fire on me with zumboorucks, but after a few rounds from my guns, and seeing the infantry approach to storm the hill-side, they retired deliberately into the jungle.

4. The head-quarters of the 31st Native Infantry, under Major Hampton, and 150 of the Hyderabad Contingent Infantry under Captain Hare, in skirmishing order, ran them through the jungle and on the hills, until they were totally dispersed, and had lost their zumboorucks and plunder, together with their two loads of gunpowder. Some of the enemy were killed, and our loss nothing.

5. By order of Major-General Sir H. Rose, K.C.B., I am now going to make a feint on Shahghur, and await further orders at Bamori, the fourth march on the Calpee Road from Sangor.

I have, &c.

Head-Quarters, Bebeeapore House, March 5, 1858.

GENERAL FRANKS joined me yesterday, but I have no news of General MacGregor. According to General Franks' reports, there is reason to fear want of boats at Sultanpore for the passage of the Goomtee by Jung Bahadoor. Sir James Outram will be sent to-morrow, with a division of Infantry and strong bodies of Field Artillery and Cavalry, to take position on the left bank of the Goomtee. He will clear the open country up to the Fyzabad Road. On the left of the Alumbagh, Brigadier Campbell has placed in position a strong brigade of Cavalry and patrols as far as the old road between Lucknow and Cawnpore. Kindly let me know by telegraph your last news of General MacGregor.

Inclosure 8 in No. 9.

Lieutenant-Colonel Christie to Brigadier Carthew, Commanding Futtypore District.

Sir,

Dhana, March 5, 1858.

I HAVE the honour to report, that the moveable column under my command (consisting of detachments of corps as per margin*), arrived at the village of Dhana, at 8 o'clock this morning.

2. On my arrival, I heard that the enemy was posted in force on the opposite bank of the Jumna, at the village of Serowlee, whence they had been firing on the village of Dhana since daylight.

3. On reconnoitring their position, I found that the heights and ravines leading from the town were strongly lined with skirmishers, parties of whom were also posted in villages on their flanks; a number of boats lay in the river immediately under the town.

4. I advanced the guns under a strong escort, and extended two companies of the 80th Regiment, under Brevet-Major Miller, to skirmish to our right and centre; a company of the 17th Madras Native Infantry skirmishing to our left; these were supported by two companies of the 17th Madras Native Infantry, under Brevet-Major Gill of that regiment. My reserve, under Captain the Honourable J. H. Browne, 80th Regiment, I left close to the village of Dhana.

5. On reaching the river's bank the skirmishers opened fire, and the guns under Captain and Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel Cadell, Madras Artillery, getting into position, shelled the town of Serowlee with considerable effect, setting fire to part of it.

6. The enemy opened with a heavy fire of ginjalls and musketry, which however the long range of the rifles of the 80th Regiment soon checked, though they continued a dropping fire during the rest of the morning.

7. Not being able to procure boats to effect the passage of the river, I withdrew to my position at Dhana, at 10 A. M.

8. From information gathered, I reckon the enemy's force at about 1,000 men, including a party of Cavalry, which were distinctly seen riding off at speed. I am unable to form an estimate of their loss, but it must have been heavy. On our side I have to report the loss of:—

1 sepoy, 17th Madras Native Infantry, killed.

1 private, 80th Regiment, wounded.

2 gunners, Madras Artillery, contused by spent balls.

In conclusion, I beg to report most favourably the conduct of the troops under my command.

Dilkoosha Station, March 8, 1858.

SIR JAMES OUTRAM'S advance took place, as ordered, the day before yesterday, the 6th instant, across the Goomtee; and his force, after driving the enemy, occupied a position across the Fyzabad road, leaving the Chukkur Walla Kotee rather more than a mile in his front. I regret to say Major Percy Smith, Her Majesty's 2nd Dragoon Guards, lost his life in the skirmish. Yesterday, the 7th instant, the enemy came out to make a desultory attack against Sir James's front. As usual, he was driven off with the greatest ease. Brigadier Sir Hope Grant then, according to instructions previously given in a private note to Sir James Outram from the Chief of the Staff, made a wide, sweeping movement with the Cavalry and Horse Artillery, to the north-east through the cantonments, afterwards returning to his camp. He was not opposed. The preparations are in forward progress for making the attack, from both sides of the Goomtee. Discretionary instructions having been given to Sir James Outram last night, which were confirmed this morning, after I had reconnoitred the ground. There are numerous reports, apparently much exaggerated, respecting the gathering of rebels in the neighbourhood of the road between Bunnec and Cawnpore. Colonel Maxwell, with Her Majesty's 32nd and 88th Foot has been ordered to leave Akbarpore, cross the Ganges, and advance on Lucknow. I trust that this will have a happy effect on the rebels alluded to.

Inclosure 17 in No. 9.

Dilkoosha, March 9, 1858.

SIR JAMES OUTRAM having very ably carried out the instructions of the Commander-in-chief, and effectually turned and enfiladed the enemy's first great line of works, the Martiniere was stormed by the 2nd Division, under General Sir E. Lugard, after it had been very heavily cannonaded. The action was principally one of Artillery; the loss being trifling in consequence. The lower end of the line of works on the canal alluded to, abutting on the Goomtee, has been seized by the troops. This closes operations of this evening. Sir James Outram has been ordered to shell the Kaiserbagh. He will commence to-morrow morning.

IT appears advisable to reinforce Colonel Roweroft with Europeans. A wing of Her Majesty's 35th, or the wing of Her Majesty's 37th, which is ordered to proceed to Ghazee-pore, is available. So large a force as one regiment is not required at Dinapore, and much depends on keeping the Fyzabad rebels in check, while the Commander-in-chief is busy at Lucknow. Captain Sotheby writes privately, that notwithstanding the defeat of the rebels on the 5th, he fully expects them to attack again. Has your Lordship any objection to some such arrangements, or will you reinforce Roweroft from elsewhere.

YESTERDAY the troops under my orders forced the pass of Mudhunpore after a short but very vigorous resistance. The troops, British and Native, behaved very gallantly. The pass is extremely strong.

The enemy suffered severely. They numbered 4,000 or 5000 Pathans and Bundelas, and 600 or 700 Sepoys of the 52nd and other regiments. I sent Major Orr in pursuit; he cut up fifty or sixty rebels, of whom a large share were sepoys.

The enemy scattered in every direction, abandoning the perfect little fort of Serai, a sort of arsenal, which is the property of the Rajah of Shahghur, in which I shall leave a small force to keep up my communications with Saugor.

This success enables me to communicate with my first brigade at Esaghur or Chundeyree, and gives me command of the whole country up to Jhansi, with the exception of two or three forts, which I can take.

93rd Highlanders, 4th Punjaub Infantry, and 1,000 Goorkhas, all of whom behaved with great gallantry. They were supported by the rest of Sir Edward Lugard's division. Up to the present moment there are still rebels in the city, but I have no reliable information. Brigadier Campbell, who was well placed in the left of the Alumbagh position, started in pursuit at 2 A.M., this morning, with a very strong brigade of Cavalry and two troops of Horse Artillery. Brigadier-General Sir Hope Grant advanced towards Seetapore this day, with the view of intercepting fugitives who may be turned off by Brigadier Campbell's movement; he has with him 1,000 sabres, and two troops of Horse Artillery. He will be followed to-morrow by an infantry brigade and heavy artillery. He is directed to halt at Seetapore for instructions. This is the direct road to Rohilcund. Resistance was very slight as compared with that of the previous days. A Goorkha division seized the enemy's position in front of Alumbagh last night. Vast numbers, both of armed and unarmed men, are evacuating the city by the outlet they possess to the northward. Our advances are to-day being gradually pushed on all sides of the line occupied by the troops, particularly towards Gow Ghaut and Moosabagh, in which direction the enemy are retiring. In the afternoon, the enemy, in great force, attacked our position in the city. Their flank was, however, turned by the direction of the Maharajah in person, and they were completely defeated, with the loss of ten guns and all the waggons of a light field battery. One gun was one of our own 9-pounders. This morning our advance was renewed on the right, and we captured seven more guns, several of which belonged to the battery above mentioned. We now hold this quarter of the city one mile and a-half to the westward of the Cawnpore Road. The Goorkhas have passed the front of Alumbagh, and taken the rebel batteries opposed to it in reverse.

In our advance on the right, yesterday, we were not opposed. The first attempts at the restoration of authority in the city are being made, but until all resistance is put down but little progress can be expected. The inhabitants have fled the city, and are in the neighbouring villages. Everything will be done to reassure them. Military Department, Allahabad, March 18, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to transmit the accompanying copy of a private letter, dated February 11, 1858, to my address from Major-General S. J. Cotton, C.B., commanding the Peshawur division, forwarding a statement of the share taken by him in May last in disarming the native troops in the Peshawur cantonment, and of my reply, dated the 26th February, 1858, assuring General Cotton of the high appreciation in which his services are held by the Government of India, and of its desire to correct any misapprehension which may have arisen as to their extent and value.

2. With this object these documents have been placed upon official record, and are now transmitted for your information.

Inclosure 1 in No. 10.

Major-General Cotton to the Governor-General of India.

My Lord,

Peshawur, February 11, 1858.

I TAKE the liberty of thus addressing you on a subject, not of so much importance to Government as to myself personally, trusting that your Lordship may not consider me in error when I thus address myself to you on the matter referred to.

I will briefly then explain, that the newspapers, at home and abroad, have endeavoured to persuade the public that I had not much share, if any, in the responsibility attached to the measure of disarming a large body of native troops in the Peshawur cantonment in May last.

It is impossible to combat with anonymous writers in newspapers, but still their writings are read by all, and, frequently, believed by many.

As the measure of timely "disarming" the troops mainly rested with myself, and has led to the most important results, I am anxious that my superiors should know exactly what did occur, and how far I was concerned in causing that measure to be carried out.

I take leave to lay before your Lordship my written statement on the subject of the "disarming," which is authenticated by two officers, Colonels Herbert Edwardes and Galloway, the next in rank to myself, who were present when that measure was resolved on.

With many apologies for thus intruding on your Lordship, I have, &c.

SYDNEY COTTON.

Inclosure 2 in No. 10.

Memorandum.

Peshawar, January 13, 1858.

DURING the night, between the 21st and 22nd May, 1857, Colonel Edwardes, the Commissioner of the Peshawur and adjacent districts, and Colonel Nicholson, then Deputy Commissioner, who had first received the intelligence of the mutiny of the 55th Native Infantry, at Nowshera (twenty-six miles from Peshawur), and also of the complicity of the 10th Irregular Cavalry, who, at the same station, had refused to act against the mutineers, came to Brigadier Cotton, and proposed an immediate "disarming" of a large body of Hindoostanee troops, with a view to enabling our European force to quit the cantonment and go forth into the district to act against the mutineers.

Unmistakeable signs of disaffection amongst these troops had been evinced for some days previously, and Brigadier Cotton had found it necessary to tell off into two wings the Peshawur force, placing the commanding officers of two European regiments, with six guns attached to each, ready for immediate action.

The mutiny of the 55th Native Infantry, the disaffection of the 16th Cavalry, and the intelligence received of the revolt of Hindoostanee troops in various parts of the country rendered it a matter of certainty, that the whole native army of Bengal was more or less imbued with the same spirit of rebellion against the British Government. The "disarming" of a large body of these troops in the Peshawur district was, therefore, at that moment, unquestionably, a necessary precaution, ere a single European soldier could safely be permitted to leave the cantonment.

At the time of the outbreak of the 55th Native Infantry (probably arranged by the sepoys of that corps to create a diversion in favour of a general revolt, which certainly had been contemplated), there were in the Peshawur district only 1,500 European Infantry with 500 European Artillerymen, whilst the Hindoostanee troops in the district amounted to no less than 10,000 men.

On the measure of "disarming" being proposed to Brigadier Cotton by the civil authorities (Colonels Edwardes and Nicholson), the Brigadier, as commander of the whole forces on the Peshawur frontier, seeing the imperative necessity for it, determined to accede at once to their proposal; and certain troops, amounting to 3,000 or 4,000 men, were named to be "disarmed."

The officers in command of the native corps in cantonment were at once summoned to Brigadier Cotton's quarters (Colonels Edwardes and Nicholson being present), and informed of the step about to be taken, when nearly the whole of them, still placing implicit confidence in the loyalty of their men, strenuously opposed the measure as unnecessary. To the arguments, and indeed remonstrances of these officers, men generally of long standing and experience, the Brigadier paid every attention; in fact, he was desirous that their views and feelings regarding the sepoys should be heard: and to give an instance of the nature of the protests made on the occasion by the Commandants, as indicative of the difficulty attending the undertaking, one of the commanding officers expressed his opinion that his regiment, one of the most efficient in the brigade, would never submit to the disgrace of being disarmed, and would be certain to attack the guns.

The discussion continued some time, when Colonel Edwardes, addressing one of the Regimental Commanders, put an end to it by saying, "The matter rests now entirely with Brigadier Cotton," or words to the same effect. The Brigadier immediately replied, "Then the troops, as originally determined on, will be disarmed." Not another word was said as to the advisability, or otherwise, of the measure.

The Regimental Commanders received the necessary orders for the disarming, and proceeded at once to prepare for it at the time appointed. Colonels Edwardes and Nicholson, when that time arrived, accompanied Brigadier Cotton to the lines of Her Majesty's 87th Regiment, in which artillery had been previously placed, and there, prepared with the European Infantry and guns, the Commissioner and Brigadier Cotton observed, at a short distance from them, one of the native corps of the right wing of the brigade deprived of their firelocks by its commanding officer. The commanders had been directed to take the arms from their men, troops being at hand to enforce the measure, if necessary. The Commissioners and Brigadier then proceeded to another corps, both corps delivered up their arms without a murmur.

Whilst this was going on, and exactly at the same moment, two other native corps of the left wing of the brigade were deprived of their arms in a similar manner by Colonel Galloway, Her Majesty's 70th Regiment, the officer next in seniority to the Brigadier.

The "disarming" was accomplished without bloodshed, and an European force was at once told off to take the field against the insurgents.

The disarming of so large a force on the Peshawur frontier was certainly at that moment a desperate measure: not so much on account of the danger to be apprehended in seizing the arms of sepoys, whose minds were more or less unsettled by passing events, but as to the consequences which might be expected when the Government had been deprived of so large a portion of its frontier defence. Troops placed at Peshawur to overawe and keep in subjection the ever-restless people of the adjacent mountains and districts, and to guard the British territory against invasion by its ancient enemies, of whose best province England had taken possession.

Who could tell what a moment might produce? Might not the inhabitants of the neighbouring districts have taken advantage of the internal weakness and disunion reigning in the British garrison, have come down upon the handful of Europeans, isolated (if the expression may be used) to the westward of the river Indus, and in conjunction with disaffected native soldiery, have reclaimed the Peshawur territory, and swept away from the face of the earth every European inhabitant. It pleased Almighty God to save the British Government at this all-important and critical moment; for no sooner were the arms taken from the sepoys, than the inhabitants of the country, flocking in at the call of the civil authorities, took service, which they had previously declined to do, and thus the first fruits of the measure of disarming were providentially escaped.

The heavy responsibility of these measures rested on Colonel Edwardes and Brigadier Cotton. The former had proposed to the latter the measure of "disarming," whilst the latter, as chief commander on the frontier, had consented to it, being responsible to Government for the management and disposal of troops placed, at that juncture, in the most difficult and, apparently, under the most perilous circumstances of any in British India.

The mutiny of the 55th Native Infantry was put down at the fort of Murdan by Colonel Chute, commanding an expeditionary force, ably assisted by Colonel Nicholson. Numbers of the sepoys of that corps, however, escaped into the Swab country, who were subsequently disposed of through the able exertions of Major Beecher, the Commissioner of Hazarah.

The scenes of the future services of the ever-to-be lamented and noble Nicholson were elsewhere; not a punishment for mutiny or desertion was inflicted in Peshawur until that officer had left it, alas! never to return.

The numerous and continued executions in support of discipline were carried out in the presence of the troops, loyal or disloyal; 7,000 or 8,000 men assembled on parade in front of the cantonment, under the personal superintendence of Brigadier Cotton, whilst the highly valued and talented Commissioner, Colonel Edwardes, guarded and protected with his levies the rear of cantonment, ready to act and co-operate should the disloyal troops, as might be expected, break away from the enforced restraint with which they were compelled to witness the execution of their comrades.

It is unnecessary whilst describing the "disarming" of the Peshawur troops and its immediate consequences, to offer any remarks on the subsequent events which, in the Peshawur district, were numerous, varied, and continued, during the progress of the general revolt of the army; but, certain it is, those events have invariably and throughout tended to prove the wisdom of the measure of timely "disarming," which was resorted to by the civil and military authorities under the guidance of Divine Providence.

My dear General,

Peshawur, January 28, 1858.

I NEVER was more surprised than when I saw in the "Lahore" the credit of disarming the disaffected regiments at Peshawur given to General Nicholson. I was present when Colonels Cooper and Harrington made an appeal to you on behalf of their regiments, and I heard your firm and decided order for the four regiments to be disarmed: after this there was no discussion, and you then gave me instructions for the disarming of the 5th Light Cavalry, and the 51st Native Infantry.

Yours, &c.

T. J. GALLOWAY.

Inclosure 5 in No. 10.

The Governor-General of India to Major-General Cotton.

My dear Sir,

Camp, Allahabad, February 26, 1858.

I WILL gladly further your object of setting in their true light the facts connected with the disarming of the native troops in the Peshawur cantonment in May last.

I can best do this by placing upon official record the statement which you have sent me in a private form.

It will thus take its place with other authentic documents in the hands of the Government at home, and will doubtless come before the public.

I had not seen the statement in the "Lahore Chronicle," referred to by Colonel Galloway, nor was I aware that there had been so general a misapprehension, in regard to events at Peshawur, as you describe. But be this as it may I am happy to do my best to correct it.

So far as the Government of India is concerned, and the opinions expressed by it upon the transactions in question, be assured that full justice is done to your promptitude and sound decision, and to those high soldierly qualities which have led me to look upon your presence in command as a mainstay of safety.

Believe me, &c.

Inclosure 1 in No. 11.

Narrative of Events dated April 1, 1858.Allahabad, April 1, 1858.

Allahabad.—On the 25th March, the railway to Futtehpore was opened by the Governor-General. On the evening of the 27th instant, the wing of Her Majesty's 13th, and fifty men of the 2nd Dragoon Guards, left to reinforce the troops at Benares and Azimghur.

Allyghur.—On the 27th March, there were between 3,000 and 4,000 men, with five guns, at Kuchla; and Nyaz Mahomed, with five guns and 5,000 men, at Sahaswan, said to be coming to Goomour. Raheen Ally, with a considerable force was at Chumaree. It is reported that the Nana, with 500 men, had reached a village near Bareilly, and sent a message to Khan Mahomed Khan, asking for an asylum, which the latter granted, and offered him the command of his army, which the Nana accepted, and promised to join the force at Kuchla in a couple of days.

Azimghur.—On the 21st March, Colonel Millman's force drove a body of Koor Sing's troops out of Aitowlia, but on his return he was attacked by large bodies of rebel "Pulwars," and forced to retire, without loss, to Azimghur. Forty-six men of the Madras Rifles had been sent from Benares. Colonel Millman's force consisted of 206 Europeans, 60 Madras Cavalry, and two guns; and a reinforcement of 150 men of Her Majesty's 37th, from Ghazeepore, was to reach Azimghur on the 25th instant, to be followed by another part of nearly the same strength. Colonel Dames had assumed command at Azimghur. The rebels took possession of the town of Azimghur, without opposition, on the 26th March, and attacked the entrenchment. They are said to be 4,000 strong (1,000 Sepoys), with four guns, and 3,000 more are said to be coming up from the rear. On the 27th March a force consisting of 200 men of Her Majesty's 37th, two guns, and the Head-Quarters of the 4th Madras Cavalry, made a sortie, and drove the enemy before them with ease in the open country, but having attacked the town, they were repulsed with the loss of Captain Bedford. Her Majesty's 37th Regiment, killed, and eleven men of the same regiment killed and wounded. Colonel Dames retreated to the entrenchment covered by the guns and Cavalry. Colonel Dames has been instructed to act strictly on the defensive.

Benares.—On the 27th March eighty recruits arrived at Benares, and Brigadier Gordon was organizing a field detachment, consisting of 100 men of Her Majesty's 10th and 97th Regiments and 50 Madras Rifles, to be added to by as many picked men as possible from the recruits. On the 29th March supplies for fifteen days for 500 Europeans, and ammunition, were dispatched to Azimghur via Ghazeepore, escorted by 100 men of Her Majesty's 10th and 97th Regiments and 60 Madras Rifles, and it would be joined at Ghazeepore by at least a squadron of Madras Cavalry. The wing of the 13th sent from Allahabad will go to Azimghur.

Cawnpore.—On the 22nd March, Futtypore, Chorasee, and Oosmanpore, across the Ganges, were occupied by a body of rebels. Maharajah Jung Bahadoor arrived at Cawnpore on the 27th March, with 2,500 soldiers. The rebels who crossed the Jumna below Humceerpore into the Futtypore district, made an attack on Ghatumpore on the night of the 26th March, burnt the thannah and tehselee, and killed six of our men. They left again at daybreak. Reliable information was received from Calpee on the 26th March that the Rance of Jhansi had left her own fort, and taken refuge with Tantia Topee, in the Chirkaree territory. On the 27th March, a rebel force of 200 Sowars, 500 Sepoys, and two guns, was at Oonah and its neighbourhood. On the 30th March, the detachment from Maxwell's column had left Ghatumpore, and rejoined the main body at Akbarpore; Lieutenant-Colonel Christie's force had also moved off from Jehanabad; and, consequently, the tehselee and thannah establishments have been withdrawn from the Ghatumpore district. No news from Calpee. Affairs at Ooryah Deokullee, in the direction of Sherghur Ghaut, remain unsatisfactory.

Calcutta.—A detachment of Artillery, with two guns, left for Sasserām on the 30th March; and on the 31st instant a detachment of 100 seamen left for the same place.

Etawah.—Intelligence dated the 22nd March, states that the Thana and Thessildaree of Phuphoond were plundered a few days previously.

Futtypore.—Intelligence has been received, dated 24th March, that the rebels had crossed the Jumna below Humceerpore, and entered Pursenda, with guns. It is also said that it appears certain that the Rajah of Chirkaree has capitulated, as two lacs of rupees and fourteen guns have reached Calpee with the return force, a portion of which had again left to meet our force at Jhansi. The 52nd Native Infantry had arrived at Ata, near Calpee, many of them wounded, after fighting General Rose's force.

Futtyghur.—Intelligence from Shumshabad, dated 23rd March, states that Kumpil has been again attacked by the enemy; that they are in strength at Kuckla Ghaut, Soorujpore Ghaut, Bhurtpore Ghaut, and Bichpooria Ghaut; that they are also in great strength at Baugaon, from whence firing was heard. On the 22nd March, Mr. J. Power, the magistrate of Futtyghur, sunk five boats near Soorujpore. On the 25th instant, Mr. Power reconnoitred at Soorujpore, and observed the enemy to be in great force on the opposite side of the river, amounting to some thousands, with a great many well-mounted Cavalry amongst them. They are in greater force at Baugaon. On the 27th March, the enemy had increased in strength opposite Soorujpore, and brought down more guns. On the 30th March, 800 of the enemy's Cavalry, in excellent order, crossed the Ganges, near Kumpil, but retired again on the appearance of our force. A strong body of them went off to the left. The rebels who were at Kusnore had dispersed. They are still in force at Baugaon and Allygunge.

Jaunpore.—All was quiet on the 28th March, and the fort in readiness to resist any attack that might be made on it.

Jhansi.—On the 22nd March, Sir H. Rose's force arrived at Jhansi, and the reconnoitring party were fired at from the fort and town. The Rance is residing in the fort. The garrison is said to consist of about 300 or 400 mutineers, 100 or 150 Cavalry, 400 Willaitees, and 5,000 or 6,000 Bundelas, &c.; but these numbers are not to be depended on. Twenty or thirty guns have been mounted on the works, and most of the city gates have been bricked up. Rajah of Banpore is supposed to be in the neighbourhood, with a strong party, with the intention of annoying the investing force. The Duttiah State has sent 2,000 or 3,000 men to take post on the borders between that State and Jhansi, and to assist the British. The inhabitants of the country hold aloof from us as yet. Intelligence of 28th March has been received that our cannonade from the evening of the 27th instant had been very severe, and that only one gun in the fort, and two guns on the city walls, remained silenced.

Kotah.—Intelligence of the 18th March, reports that the Kurrowlie troops, who were assisting the Maha Rao, had taken six guns from the rebels. A letter from Boondie, dated 20th instant, states that the rebels had made an inroad into Boondie and destroyed some supplies collected there. On the 22nd March, the British force arrived opposite Kotah, and encamped one mile and three-quarters from the enemy, who is in position on the opposite side of the Chumbul; they have 100 guns, of which fifty are heavy ones, and they fire at great elevation towards our camp and the palace and fort, which are held by Maha Rao's force; his Kurrowlie allies hold half the city, their inner flank being a wall which surrounds the city. The Maha Rao went out to the British camp on its arrival. The enemy's fire on the fort and part of the city, protected by it, had slackened on the 23rd instant.

Lucknow.—On the 23rd March, Sir J. H. Grant was sent to Koorsee to disperse a body of insurgents under Jai Lall Sing. The operation was perfectly successful, and twelve guns were captured. General Grant was to return on the 24th instant to his old quarters in cantonments. The Military Train, Her Majesty's 10th Regiment, and a field battery left Lucknow on the 28th March for Allahabad. And on the 29th instant, Sir E. Lugard marched with a brigade of Infantry, 700 sabres, and eighteen pieces of Artillery, including heavy guns and mortars, towards Azimghur. He is to go vid Atrawlia, and take the rebels at Azimghur in rear. General Grant is commanding in the city of Lucknow, and the army has been broken up; but there remains a strong moveable division, composed of four regiments of Cavalry and eight of infantry, with Artillery in proportion, under Brigadier-General Walpole. The troops, remaining at Lucknow, are to be formed into a field force, under a divisional commander, with Brigadiers for each arm (two for the Infantry).

Punnah.—General Whitlock's force was encamped on the right bank of the Bunas river on the 24th March, and was expected at Punnah on the 29th instant, when he would move against the rebels, who left Chirkaree upon the 19th idem, and have collected in force near Nowgong.

Patna.—Intelligence from Patna, received vid Calcutta, dated 30th March, states that the rebels had collected ninety boats on the Gogra, and threatened to visit Hutra and Chupra.

Sasseram.—The two companies of Her Majesty's 54th Regiment and two guns have left for Benares, to be replaced from Calcutta.

Saugor.—The fort of Chandaree was stormed and captured on the 17th March, by the 1st Brigade Central India Field Force; our loss was not great.

Supplementary Narrative, dated April 7, 1858.

Allahabad, April 7, 1858.

Agra.—Intelligence of the 6th April has been received, mentioning that the loss of the enemy, at the taking of Kotah was trifling, as they had prepared for flight, and that they had escaped in the direction of Gwalior. The leaders have escaped. Spies sent from Agra report the arrival of a rebel force with twelve guns at Sheopore, on the border between Gwalior and Kotah. Hera Sing has command, and gives out his intention of going to Jhansi.

Azimghur.—The detachment of Her Majesty's 13th and Madras Rifles reached Azimghur on the 6th April. The rebels had partly broken the bridge, and met the detachment in force. The fire was very severe, but the 13th and Madras Rifles, the whole under Lord Mark Kerr, behaved admirably.

Cawnpore.—On the 7th April, Maxwell's force had moved to Guincue. The rebels at Hurra have been dispersed.

Calpee.—On the 6th April, Calpee was being filled with the wounded and defeated rebels from Jhansi.

Futtyghur.—On the 6th April, the rebels had gone back from Kumpil across the river, but remain in the same place on the opposite side. The force at Banguon had been increased by two regiments. The more important rebels are all at Barcilly, and a proclamation by Ferozshah, son of the King of Delhi, has attracted much attention.

Kotah.—Intelligence received from Baroda, of the 5th April, states that both the fort and town of Kotah are completely in our possession, and that above fifty guns had been captured. Our loss estimated to be only twenty-five killed and wounded. This success was gained by a flank movement which turned the enemy's position, and rendered his defences utterly useless. The native troops were behaving right well.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL SIR JAMES HOPE GRANT, K.C.B., was sent yesterday to disperse a body of insurgents under Rajah Jai Lall Sing, at Koorcey. The operation was perfectly successful, and the Brigadier-General took twelve guns. He will return to his old quarters at the cantonments this afternoon.

Lucknow, March 28, 1858.

I HAVE received news by telegraph from the Azimghur district which is most serious. It appears that nothing can be more important than to protect the rich provinces in that direction. Will your Lordship consent to the movement of a strong brigade of Infantry, Cavalry, and Artillery from hence by Sultanpore to Singramow and Azimghur? I propose to place in command of it a general officer, who would be instructed to gather up all the troops in the district of Azimghur, and be accountable for it. If this movement takes place it may, perhaps, of necessity, interfere with the ulterior designs expressed in your Lordship's note of 25th instant. Will your Lordship kindly answer immediately by telegraph?

Lucknow, March 29, 1858.

SIR E. LUGARD marched this morning with a brigade of Infantry, 700 sabres, and eighteen pieces of artillery, including heavy guns and mortars; he is ordered to cross the Gouttee at Sharunpore, if he can manage it, and march straight upon the rear of the rebels at Azimghur by Atrowlia. Brigadier-General Sir Hope Grant has been placed in command of the city, the garrison of which has been detailed of the strength already communicated to your Lordship. The army of Lucknow has been broken up in consequence of these arrangements, and there remains a strong moveable division composed of four regiments of Cavalry, eight of Infantry, with Artillery in proportion, under Brigadier-General Walpole. The arrangements for the town will be soon completed, when a detail report will be sent to your Lordship.

BRIGADIER GORDON has received the following orders from the Commander-in-chief: "Colonel Dames will remain strictly on the defensive, repulsing the enemy by sorties if necessary, but on no account renewing his attacks on the town. The right wing of Her Majesty's 13th Foot will be sent up to reinforce Colonel Dames,—communicate this order to Lord Mark Kerr,—the 4th Madras Cavalry remains with Colonel Dames. General Lugard has marched this morning; it is fifteen marches from Lucknow to Azimghur." Under these circumstances I propose, if your Lordship has no objection, proceeding to-morrow evening to Calcutta.

OWING to the great demand likely to be made for some time to come on the troops stationed at Lucknow, I would propose to your Lordship the advisability of forming them into a field force under a divisional commander, with a Brigadier for each arm. This establishment seems to be necessary on account of the very large number of European regiments which require much supervision indeed; for the Infantry there ought to be two Brigadiers, whose duty it would be to take command of moveable columns issuing from the city. I shall be very much obliged to your Lordship for a telegraphic answer, that no time may be lost in carrying out the arrangement.

THE following message from the Commissioner of Patna is forwarded for the information of the Governor-General:—

“There is great alarm both at Chupra and Arrah. The Brigadier will not send the two companies to Arrah unless the Sikhs are moved down from Dehree to support them. Colonel Mitchell objects to the Sikhs being moved; the rebels have collected ninety large boats on the Gogra, and threatened to visit Hutra and Chupra; the point of danger seems to be the north of the Arrah district and Chupra. I think the Sikhs should march at once to Arrah, whence they and the Europeans could move at once to Chupra if necessary; it would allay alarm much if I were enabled to say what steps the Governor-General is taking to disperse the rebels in Azimghur.”

SIR HUGH ROSE opened fire on Jhansi on the 26th, the assault was to be made on the 27th. The rebel regiments have returned to Calpee, having suffered defeat. Tantia Topee, the Mahratta Commander-in-chief, has been killed in action. The sepoys tried to conceal this fact, but it is, we believe, certain. Maxwell's column moved from Umberpore towards Boryah and Sharghur. Pergunnah Jaulumpore still remains quite exposed. A large assemblage of sepoys, with guns, rumoured to be at Belwa, across the Ganges, opposite Bilhaur, requires confirmation. Our emissary arrived in Calpee with the proclamation; but it is too late, as the rebels must now fight Sir Hugh Rose.

THE Goorkha force went to Nawabgunge, at no solicitation of mine. The Maharajah offered to clear the country in its neighbourhood, and gave me to understand he should go home by way of Fyzabad. All this seeming advantageous I acquiesced willingly in his move to Nawabgunge. Since the Goorkhas have been there, the British officer in charge has expressed much alarm for the safety of the force, and I have always had troops in readiness to support it. A retreat by way of Bairan Ghaut would not be nearly so good for our interest as a movement by Fyzabad, but it is possible the Goorkhas may fear the latter. Sir James Outram had employed Maun Sing to make it safe for them, and maintain the bridge. I do not wish to be in any way responsible for their movements, which are quite beyond my powers of direction; perhaps it may be better that they should go home as suggested by your Lordship. It is not in my power to spare British troops to act in concert with them, with respect to the most recent arrangements.

SHAHABAD is nearly defenceless against attack from the northward. There are only eighty of the Sikh police at Arrah. The rest, except some small detachments at Sewan and Chupra, are at Dehree, Sasseram, and Rhotas. Brigadier Christie will not send a detachment of Her Majesty's 35th to Arrah, unless they are reinforced by more of the Sikh police, and Colonel Mitchell will spare none of them from the south. Lieutenant Batt's brigade, 100 strong, is at Buxar. Another brigade of Indian Navy seamen, under Lieutenant Carew, will be sent to Sasseram, and a Bengal brigade is on its way up the Trunk Road to Arrah. The European crew of the "Jumna" mutinied; all brought the vessel back to Patna. Another has been sent up. The men in the "Jason," believed to be all young recruits.

The fire was very severe, but the 13th and Madras Rifles behaved admirably. On our side one officer killed, Captain Jones, one officer wounded, and twenty-five men hors de combat. There has been some apprehension regarding the baggage, the rear-guard having been twice attacked; but the tents and ammunition are believed to be safe. It is believed that the enemy will now try to escape; and distinct orders, as to his future line of conduct, should be issued the officer commanding in case they do.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a further narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from the information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure 1 in No. 12.

Narrative of Events dated April 6, 1858.

Allahabad, April 6, 1858.

Banda.—It is stated that the mutinous sepoys are leaving the Nawab's service, in consequence of his having refused to grant them increased rates of pay.

Barcilly.—On the 24th March, Khan Bahadoor Khan's powder magazine is reported to have exploded, destroying adjacent houses and 63 lives. The Nana reached Barcilly the same day, with his family, and 500 horse and foot. Pilleebheet has been evacuated by the rebels.

Calcutta.—A further detachment of the Indian Navy, with two guns, had been ordered up to Sasseram on the 5th April.

Cawnpore.—On the 3rd April, news of the death of Tantia Topce was again received from Calpee. A detachment of Colonel Maxwell's column had gone to help Mr. Hume at Ooryah. The 5th Fusiliers and 78th had arrived at Cawnpore from Lucknow. On the 4th April a party from Colonel Maxwell's column made a demonstration at Humeerpore Ghaut, in order to draw out the enemy's strength. The force appears to have been greatly exaggerated; only three guns were observed, and two of these were native ones, of small calibre. The village of Rampore, the inhabitants of which have always harboured rebels, was burnt by our force. Colonel Maxwell's force was to march to Ackbarpore on the 5th April. On the 4th April a strong column, under General Inglis, left Cawnpore, and had gone across the Ganges to attack Harra, a village in Oude, where the rebels have been collecting revenue.

Calpee.—In consequence of a misunderstanding between the Gwalior Contingent mutineers and Mahrattas, Mahomed Ishur, an adherent of the Nana, is stated to have fled, on the 5th April, from Uroha to Narain Rao for refuge. It is said that a strong party, with guns, intend to cross at Sherghur and make for Bareilly. Panic prevails amongst the rebels at Calpee, on account of Sir Hugh Rose's advance.

Futtyghur.—On the 1st April, the enemy were crossing at Bichpoooria, but were not thought likely to remain across. Walleedad Khan is said to have joined the rebels at Mhow, opposite Bichpoooria. There is also a report that the rebels intend making a rush through the Futtyghur district to the southward. Some Cavalry have joined them at Alygunge, and are said to have come from Shahjehanpore. It is rumoured that the Nana is coming that way. On the 2nd April it was said the enemy intended to cross at Soorujpore. The Magistrate had seized seven boats.

Jhansi.—On the night of the 31st March, the rebel force crossed the Betwa from Burwa, Saugor. The British force moved out at daylight on the 1st April to meet them; and before 8 A.M. the enemy was routed and pursued by the Cavalry towards Burraghutta and Oorcha. Eleven guns were captured from the enemy, many of whom were killed; amongst them several sepoys of the Gwalior Contingent. No attempt was made to escape from the fort or town, which were surrounded by our troops. On the 3rd of April the town was gallantly taken, after a determined resistance. The fort had almost ceased firing.

Kotah.—Two hundred men of Her Majesty's 83rd and 100 of the 13th Bombay Native Infantry have been placed in the quarters held by the Kurrowlee troops against the enemy; guns were to follow. The rebel force is said to be 5,000 men. On the 30th March, Kotah was taken by the British force with slight resistance. Battery after battery, and bastion after bastion were carried with a rush, Her Majesty's 72nd and 95th leading; our losses are small. The rebels are outside in the cantonments, and a force of Artillery and Cavalry, including the 8th Hussars, had been sent out against them. The brother of the leader of the rebels, Jeydial, is amongst the slain. On the 31st March, 500 rebel Sowars, with two guns, had left Kotah in the direction of the north-east.

Punnah.—General Whitlock's force arrived on the 21st March, and the Rajah went out to meet it. On the 26th instant Narain Rao had attacked and burnt down Thora, and other villages belonging to the widow of Rughoroa Sing, in consequence of which the Rajah had increased the force to 1,000 men. The Mooktiar of the Ranee was killed; and there is a report that the rebel Faizandeh Mooktiar, who had proclaimed Sool Sing, Rajah of Aojghur, has also been killed, but this requires confirmation.

Saugor.—Intelligence, dated 2nd April, has been received from Saugor that Talgurh and Baraita had been occupied by the head-quarters of the 31st Native Infantry and 3rd Irregular Cavalry with hardly any opposition.

The Nana reached Bareilly on that date with his family, fourteen carts, and 500 horse and foot. Khan Bahadoor was laid up with fever. From Kotah nothing new. Two hundred men of the 83rd, and 100 13th Bombay Regiment had been put into the quarter held by the Kurrowlee troops against the enemy; guns were to follow. MAJOR-GENERAL WHITLOCK'S force arrived at Punnah this morning. The Rajah went out to meet the force, and was much pleased at their soldierly appearance, particularly that of the 12th Lancers and the Royal Artillery.

Narain Rao attacked and burnt down Thora on 26th instant, and villages belonging to the widow Rughoroa Sing, and which led to a report that he was about to march, in consequence of which the Rajah has increased the force there to about 1,000 men. Koonioo Beharee the Mooktiar of this lady, was killed on this occasion, and a report to-day is in circulation that Fe zandeh, the rebel Mooktiar, who has proclaimed Soosal Sing, Rajah of Aojgurb, has also been killed, but it requires confirmation. The news in Banda is that the mutinous sepoys are leaving the service of the Nawab, in consequence of his having refused to grant them the increased rates of pay for which they applied.

I SEND you this hasty telegram. The rebels crossed the Betwa from Burwa Saugor in great force during the night; we had excellent information of their advance. Sir Hugh Rose moved out, and at daylight the enemy opened a very heavy fire from a strong position which they held, until their flank was turned, when they began to retreat. The Cavalry made a splendid charge, and captured a gun. The rebels were pursued across the river; they have lost eleven guns and an immense quantity of ammunition; one 18-pounder, drawn by two elephants, was captured in the river. The loss of the enemy must have been severe; many sepoys of the Gwalior Contingent were killed. No attempt was made to escape from the fort or town, which was surrounded by our troops, and fired into uninterruptedly during the fight, which lasted till near eleven o'clock. No officers killed.

Some firing without effect took place, and the result will be sent to you in detail by Mr. Sherer. The Hummeerpore force has apparently been greatly exaggerated, only three guns were observed, two of them native of small calibre. The village of Rampore, which has constantly harboured rebels, whose inhabitants are supposed to have assisted in the murder of Messrs. Lloyd and Grant, Civil Service, was burnt by our force. Some observations were made; Colonel Maxwell's column was to march to Akbarpore to-day. In the meanwhile the establishments at Russulbad are threatened from the Ooryah side, in fact that Pergunnah and Secundra are constantly threatened from Sherghur Ghaut, while Bhognepore and Ghatumpore are kept in alarm and disturbance by the Calpee and Hummeerpore rebels. Cawnpore, April 5, 1858.

MR. SHERER'S people at Calpee report that Mahommed Tohur, a principal adherent of the Nana, in consequence of a misunderstanding with the army, has fled to Uroha Narain Rao for refuge. He might be caught through that party. A split has occurred between the Gwalior Contingent and the Mahratta. Strong party with guns intend, it is said, to cross at Sherghur and make for Bareilly. Panic prevails at Calpee on account of Rose's advance. A strong column from Cawnpore marched across the Ganges to some point in Oude yesterday afternoon. General Inglis was with it.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a further narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from the information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure 1 in No. 13.

Narrative of Events dated April 16, 1858.

Allahabad, April 16, 1858.

Allahabad.—Maharajah Jung Bahadoor left on the 8th April.

Azimghur.—On the 14th April a large body of the rebels, with two guns, had marched away and halted at Jugutpore, near Sugree, on the road to Goruckpore. The wing of the 13th Light Infantry, with Walsh's guns, and Cavalry, were about to start for Mhow (between Azimghur and Ghazeepore), and were to be joined by Major Carr's detachment from Birnoa, on the road from Ghazeepore to Goruckpore. General Lugard was seven miles from Azimghur.

NOTE.—A despatch dated 14th April, from Sir E. Lugard, mentions his arrival at Rancee-ke-srai, Koer Sing and his party were still in the city (Azimghur), and that he proposed seizing the bridge in the evening. Some of the rebels had gone to the south-east, but measures had been taken to intercept them.

Benares.—On the 14th April, in consequence of the movement of the Azimghur rebels towards Ghazeepore, two companies of the 54th were sent off on elephants and "ekahs," so as to reach the latter place in two days. The force there will then consist of 300 Infantry, 50 Dragoons, 100 Madras Cavalry, and two six-pounder guns.

Bundelcund.—General Whitlock's force arrived at Mandala on the 2nd April. Sir H. Rose had ordered the force on to Jhansi direct, with all expedition, but a great deal of the baggage not having come up, in consequence of the difficulty in getting over the ghât, and the guns and other wheeled carriage having sustained much injury, it would not be able to march before the 7th instant. General Whitlock's force of Cavalry and Horse Artillery arrived at Logassi on the morning of the 10th of April, and was pushed on to Jheejhan to attack a party of 400 rebels under Disput Bundala. The rebels had taken up a position on a hill, but were speedily dislodged, and pursued by the cavalry; forty rebels were killed, and fifteen made prisoners, among them two of note—Rajah Hunjee, cousin, and Tet Sing, nephew of Disput.

Etah.—Rajah Tej Sing of Mynpoorie crossed the Kalla Nuddee on the 9th of April with 100 men. Their baggage was cut off by the Thannahs of Allygunge, who pursued them. They had no guns. Some sowars and their horses are said to have been drowned in crossing the Nuddee.

Futtyghur.—On the night of the 6th of April, a force under Brigadier Seaton, consisting of 1,000 Infantry, 300 Cavalry, and five guns, crossed the Ganges, and, on the morning of the 7th instant, attacked the rebel force under Ishmail Khan and Mohsim Ally Khan at Kunker, near Baugaon. The enemy was taken completely by surprise, and defeated. They consisted of 800 Cavalry, 1,800 Infantry, including some Sepoys of 41st and 10th Native Infantry, and Gwalior Contingent, with guns; three of the latter (one 10-pounder and two small guns) were taken by us; and a large quantity of ammunition. 250 of the rebels were killed: our loss five killed and seventeen wounded. The enemy had broken up the bridge over the Ramgunga at Allygunge, but began rebuilding it when our force returned. The Zemindars, across the Ganges, had arranged for the payment of their revenues. On the 11th instant a Brahmin in the service of the Nana had joined the force opposite Jaitpore Ferry with four regiments and four guns; the enemy there is strong. Hurdeo Buksh had taken Sandhee, and captured two guns from the rebels, and their camp. On the 13th April it was reported that the rebel army intend to cross at the ford of Kenium, near Bhutta. They had increased largely at Allygunge. Watson's column was under orders to march in that direction. On the 15th April the enemy's cavalry were burning villages on the other side of the Ganges, near Futtyghur, and it was supposed their rear had been disquieted by the advance of our troops.

Jaunpore.—On the 10th April the rebel Golaum Hussein with 3,000 men (1,000 of them Sepoys), and two guns was within four miles of Tigra, to the north-west of Jaunpore. Sir E. Lugard's force was expected at Jaunpore on the following day. Sir E. Lugard, with his force, arrived at Tigra on the 11th April, and heard that the rebels under Golaum Hussein were six miles distant; our force was too much exhausted, from the excessive heat and a long march to proceed on; but in the evening, Sir E. Lugard hearing that there was a movement amongst the enemy, pursued with three horse artillery guns and cavalry, came up with them, killed about eighty men, captured their two guns, and dispersed their force. On our side, Lieutenant C. Havelock was killed and six Sowars wounded. Sir E. Lugard was to march to Deedargunge on the following day. On the 14th April it was reported that Golaum Hussein was again collecting his followers, but it was not supposed that they would venture near the station. Sir E. Lugard has relieved the Goorkhas at Jaunpore by three companies of Her Majesty's 34th Regiment.

Kotah.—On the 1st April a magazine exploded and killed two officers,—Captain Bainbrigge, Brigade Major, and Captain Bazalgette, Her Majesty's 95th Regiment. On the 2nd instant the 1st Brigade was on the Kotah side of the Chumbul, and the headquarters and Brigadier Lawrence expected to cross the next day. 286 prisoners had been taken and were undergoing trial. The rebels from this place, from 3,000 to 5,000, with six guns, joined the Rajah of Nerwul, six miles from Kolarus, on the 11th April. Scindia's force at Seepree were at once placed by the Maharajah under the orders of Captain Mayne.

Lucknow.—General Walpole left en route to Rohileund on the 9th April. He is to be joined at Allygunge on the Ramgunga by a brigade from Futtighur, and a siege train has been ordered up from Cawnpore.

Mynpoorie.—Rajah Tej Sing who crossed the Kalla Nuddee in the Etah district, on the 9th April, had made his escape through the Mynpoorie district, and was on his way to cross the Jumna.

A PORTION of General Whitlock's force, consisting of Cavalry and Horse Artillery, after encircling from Chutterpore to Lohanee during the night, was pushed on this morning to Jaunpore, to attack a party of about 400 of the rebels under Disput Bundala. The rebels had taken up a position on a hill covered with jungle, from which they were speedily dislodged by the fire of artillery, and pursued by the Cavalry; Disput himself was not forthcoming, but about forty of the rebels were killed and about fifteen made prisoners, among whom are two of note, Rajahs Ilungee, his cousin, and Tet Sing, his nephew.

Scindia's force, at Sepree, consisting of 420 Infantry, 160 Cavalry, and two guns, were placed at once by the Maharajah under Mayne's orders, and a part of the force, with families and much plunder, is said to be at Shabad in Kotah. Camp, Pigra, April, 1858.

I MARCHED to this place yesterday, expecting to find the force under Golaum Hussein, which had plundered and burnt the village of Selmedapore the previous day, and had actually threatened Jaunpore. On arriving, found that the rebels, to the number of 3,000, with two guns, were about five or six miles distant. My troops were too exhausted from the excessive heat, and a sixteen miles' march, to proceed; but in the evening, on hearing that there was a movement among the enemy, I pursued, with three horse artillery guns and Cavalry. Came up with him, killed about eighty, dispersed the remainder, and captured their two guns, which are now in my camp. One officer, Lieutenant Charles Havelock, killed, and six Sowars wounded. I march to Deedargunge to-morrow.

Benares, April 14, 1858.

BY express, dated this morning, the Magistrate of Azimghur reported that a large body of the Azimghur rebels, with two horse artillery guns, had marched off, it was supposed towards Ghazeepore. It being uncertain whether any troops can be spared from Azimghur for the protection of Ghazeepore, and as the safety of that place is too important to be left to chance, the two companies of Her Majesty's 54th have been ordered to reach Ghazeepore in two marches, and that the soldiers may not be over fatigued I have arranged that one-half of them shall ride on elephants or ekaahs.

I have recommended that the 54th companies be at once sent off to join the party already covering Ghazeepore, which will thus become a very respectable force, consisting of about 300 Infantry, fifty European Cavalry, 100 Madras Cavalry, and two 6-pounder guns, quite sufficient to keep the open country for a few days, until Sir E. Lugard's force arrives at Azimghur. From Jaunpore, it is reported Golaum Hossein is again collecting his followers, but it is not supposed they will venture near the station.

THE party under Lord Mark Kerr, after a severe encounter with the enemy, forced his strong position on the Benares Road, and reached the Azimghur Bridge yesterday. The loss of the 13th appears to be heavy. Colonel Longden arrived with the advance. A party of eighty 37th, 100 Madras Rifles, and two guns, had been detached to assist in bringing in Lord Mark Kerr's rear-guard. Colonel Dames gives no further particulars, but promises a full report, with a casualty roll, as soon as possible. The Magistrate of Azimghur informs the Commissioner that the 13th lost Captain Jones, and about twenty-five rank and file killed and wounded. The ammunition and tents had arrived, and he believed most of the baggage and stores were safe, with the exception of twelve hackery loads of grain, which had to be destroyed. The enemy numbered about 2,000 sepoys. The bridge on the Benares side, near the entrenchment, had been partially destroyed, but was easily rendered passable. The Magistrate says the Sepoys are much dispirited, and he thinks it probable they will make off. In this case, are they to be followed up? Should they make in a body towards Ghazee-pore, this will be necessary, to save the district from being plundered.

In consequence of the intelligence received from Shahabad, Her Majesty's 6th Regiment had been ordered up by bullock-train to Sasseram, and the first detachment left by bullock train on the 24th April; twenty artillerymen, with an officer, have also been ordered up. The last party of Her Majesty's 6th Regiment left Ranecgunge by bullock train on the 29th April.

Cawnpore.—The party of rebels who had crossed over to Amcerapore, had again fallen back on the 22nd April.

Futtyghur.—Intelligence was received, dated the 20th April, that the rebels were concentrating on Jellalabad. They were raising earthen fortifications, and intended awaiting an attack there. Their force is about 10,000 men, divided into separate columns of 2,000, stretching from the Ganges to Jellalabad.

Ghazee pore.—On the 20th April the rebels from Azimghur were attacked near Bunsdeah, in this district, by Brigadier Douglas; many of them were killed, and we captured one 9-pounder gun complete with horses, one limber, two ammunition waggons, twenty horses, fifteen bullocks, five elephants, and twenty baggage carts; nineteen more elephants were taken by their mahouts into Ghazee pore, and delivered over to the Magistrate. Brigadier Douglas continued the pursuit towards Beyreah, where Kooer Sing is reported to have gone. At Bulleah a body of the rebels had crossed his line of march at Chit Burragaon. The steamer "Agra," with two companies of the 54th had likewise been sent down the Ganges to intercept the rebels, and the steamer "Jumna" was moving down the Gogra for a like purpose. On the 21st April Kooer Sing crossed the Ganges at Sheopore Ghaut with a large party of sepoys. The villagers on the right bank assisted him by raising several boats which had been sunk. Sir E. Lugard has been ordered to press the rebels. The 37th Regiment have been ordered to concentrate at Ghazee pore. Sir E. Our force was engaged with the rebels on the above date near Bilwa, whom they defeated, capturing one gun. On the 26th April, Colonel Rowcroft reported a large assemblage of rebels from Oude, as well as those in the district under Mahomed Hussein and the Rajah of Gonda. The enemy evacuated the fort during the night, and it was destroyed the following morning. On the 25th April Nurput Sing had returned to Rooya, and was committing excesses in the neighbourhood. Benee Mathub, with a considerable force was threatening Oonao, and the Cawnpore and Lucknow road.

Rohilcund.—Brigadier-General Walpole continuing his progress, attacked a large body of rebels on the 22nd April at Sirsee, near Allygunge, killed five or six hundred of them, captured four guns and all their camp, &c. The ghauts on the Ganges have thus been cleared by General Walpole; the Ramgunga turned, and the bridge over it at Allygunge secured for the passage of the siege-train, which crossed the Ganges at Futtyghur on the 23rd instant. The Roorkee field force, under Brigadier-General Jones, met the Bijnore rebels on the 21st April at Nugeenah, utterly routed them, and captured all their guns (twelve). A great many of the enemy were slain, and on our side the casualties were one officer, Lieutenant Gostling, killed, and eight or ten men killed and wounded. This force had taken altogether twenty-three guns since it had crossed into Rohilcund. It was at Mooradabad on the 26th April. Guards had been placed at every entrance of the city to prevent plunder, and rebels escaping. The city was quite quiet. The rebel Nazim Khan had been taken alive by Lieutenant Angelo, of 1st Punjaub Infantry, and twenty-two inferior rebels had also been seized.

Shahabad.—On the 23rd April a force consisting of 200 Europeans, of whom about fifty were sailors, the rest belonging to the 35th Foot, and 100 Sikhs of the Bengal Police Corps, with two guns, was sent from Arrah to attack Koer Sing's force at Jugdespore. Our troops were overpowered, and repulsed with the loss of both the guns, and a great many men. Koer Sing was entrenching himself at Jugdespore. The rebels had not advanced on Arrah up to the 29th April. The death of Koer Sing is rumoured, but the report requires confirmation.

Sasseram.—The detachments of the Naval Brigade have been stopped at Sasseram. The two first detachments of the Naval Brigade have also been halted on the Grand Trunk Road.

Inclosure 2 in No. 14.

Brigadier-General Walpole to the Chief of the Staff.

Sir,

Camp, Sundeela, April 12, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to acquaint you, for the information of his Excellency the Commander-in-chief, that I marched yesterday to Ruheemabad, and this morning to this place.

At Ruheemabad I destroyed a fort which was being constructed, which belonged to Soobah Singh, a man of considerable influence, and said to be the head of 4,000 men; he commanded two regiments at Lucknow, where he fought against us. In the course of the afternoon this man came into camp, and gave himself up to Captain Thurburn.

The man who was kotwal here under the English Government before the mutiny, met us on the road, and though very humble now, gave a very poor account of himself, and an old man, who was chuckledar in the King's time, also met us on the road; he was, I understand, a man of influence; and the people upon being told that they would not be molested, remain in their villages, and open their shops; but the Thakoor, the most influential man here, has left the place, and is reported to be at Roeah.

Hearing that a bridge was being made over the Goomtee, I sent a person to ascertain whether such was the case, and I find that the piers are made, and the boats for the bridge ready about ten or twelve miles from hence.

The country through which we pass, is reported to be free from insurgents, and I believe such to be the case, except a Sowar or two to look out, and give information of our movements, and there are stated to be 150 men at a place called Pomayech, a dozen miles to our right.

From what I hear, I believe the march of this column will have a very beneficial effect upon this part of the country, and since the fall of Lucknow, the influential people have become fully aware of the hopelessness of the struggle, and their chief object now is to make the best terms they can.

The country is fine, and well wooded, and the road, or rather track, good for marching and camels; but in parts near the streams, of which we have crossed two, it is intersected with ravines, and is, in those places, extremely bad, and difficult for hackeries.

I have, &c.

R. WALPOLE, *Brigadier-General,
Commanding Field Force.*

“As Ricketts has not arrived, I have taken charge of the district, but shall go on as soon as I hear of Walpole's approaching Bareilly. Guards placed at every entrance of the city to prevent plundering and rebels escaping. City all quiet, and shops open as usual. Angelo, of Coke's Rifles, gallantly seized Nazim Khan alive; he and four of his men were arrested. Angelo shot three of the men with his revolver; a Sikh shot the fourth; twenty-two inferior rebels also captured; twenty-eight guns taken since leaving Roorkee.

"Meerut, 28th.—All quiet between this and Moradabad and in Bignour district. Shakespear, with some Sowars of a Talookdar, escorted fifteen guns, captured at Nugeena, to Bignour. A guard brought this into Meerut this morning. Ganges ford impracticable, and a sharp look-out kept."

The ghauts of the Ganges had been cleared by General Pole's march, the Ramgunga river turned, and the enemy's bridge at Allygunge secured for the passage of the siege-train across the Ramgunga, which, as part of the combination, is passing the Ganges to-day at Futtyghur.

I HAVE just received by express a copy of a letter to Mr. Bowring, from Mr. Maddock, Deputy Colloctor, Buxar, stating that a force which had been sent from Arrah to meet Koer Sing, in the direction of Jugdespore, had been totally defeated, two of our guns being captured by the enemy. The Arrah detachment, it is said, consisted of 250 or 300 men, and the spies report that only twenty-five or thirty-five Europeans, thirty or thirty-five Sikhs, and seven officers, were seen by them returning to Arrah. If this is true, our loss has been very heavy. Koer Sing is entrenching himself in the jungles, and is burning all villages, the inhabitants of which will not join him. He has 1,500 sepoy, and rabble up to 4,000 or 5,000.

Ghazeepore.—On the 3rd May, Sir E. Lugard's force was crossing the Ganges at Synial Ghaut, and would be at Arrah on the 5th instant. Brigadier-General Jones's force arrived at Bareilly on the 6th May. The enemy were driven back from Bahadoor Sing's bridge, with slaughter, and three guns taken; three-fourths of the town was in our possession, including the most important part of it. Heavy firing was heard on the cantonment side of the city, from which it was known that another column of ours was there. A party had been sent to communicate with it.

Allahabad, May 26, 1858.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a further narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from the information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure 1 in No. 16.

Narrative of Events dated May 25, 1858.

Allahabad, May 26, 1858.

Allyghur.—RAHEEM ALLY crossed the Ganges with, it is said, 1,000 men and three guns, on the 12th May. Intelligence has been received from Etah, dated the 21st May, and says that 1,000 rebels are trying to cross the Ganges at Sewrajpore Ghaut.

Bundlekund.—The rebels were attacked and driven out of their entrenchments, and the town of Koonch occupied by Sir H. Rose's force on the 8th May. The enemy suffered very severely, losing four guns, our force having taken altogether eight guns. On the 22nd May, our batteries on the left bank of the Junna opened fire on the fort at Calpee; the practice was excellent. The enemy's fire was slack. On the same day the enemy attacked Sir H. Rose's force in great numbers, and with great determination, at Golowlie. The right flank of our force was hard pressed, but the Camel Corps was brought up, charged the rebels with the bayonet, and the rout soon became general. On the 23rd instant, Sir H. Rose moved forward, and took possession of the town and fort of Calpee. The rebels were panic struck, and fled with precipitation towards Julaon, followed by Cavalry, Horse Artillery and Camel Corps, which soon overtook them, killed a great many, and captured all their guns and ammunition. Colonel Maxwell had shelled the fort and town from the opposite side of the river with great effect. On the 21st May, the roads between Banda and Calpee were still closed, and a party of rebels were still at Mowdha. About 150 mutineers and thirty sowars had collected at Juspoora, and were inviting the attendance of the mutineers at Serolee Ghaut, with the intention of attacking the thannah at Chilla Tarra Ghaut, and then to cross the Doab into Oude. Some troops of the Rajah of Chutterpore, with two guns, had been sent to Chilla Tarra.

Futtyghur.—The Commander-in-chief arrived here on the 25th instant.

Gwalior.—The communication on the 22nd May had been stopped by rebels for some days between Gwalior and Sir H. Rose's force. The Jhansi district is reported to be in a disturbed state. Raheem Alli, who crossed the Ganges on 12th May, reached Indoorkee on the 18th instant, and was well received by the rebel Koer Dowlut Sing.

Hyderabad (Deccan).—The Resident reports the district of Aurungabad in a very disturbed state. Arabs and Rohillas had plundered the towns of Dullnee Chuckeel and Nundwa. Scindia's district of Nagpore is likewise reported to be in a disturbed state.

Oude.—Intelligence has been received, dated the 25th May, that the Moulvie, with 500 Sowars, some Infantry, and three small guns, had reached Sandee, and taken possession of that place on the 24th instant.

Rohilcund.—Bareilly was finally occupied by the Commander-in-chief on the 7th May. The enemy opposed our force with much spirit for some hours the previous day, but was at last driven, from his position outside, back into the town, with the loss of several guns. Brigadier-General Jones, with a strong column, left Bareilly on the 8th May, to relieve the garrison at Shahjehanpore, where the right wing of Her Majesty's 82nd Regiment had been besieged since the Commander-in-chief's advance on Bareilly. On the 11th May, Brigadier-General Jones's column relieved the garrison of Shahjehanpore, and took one gun. The enemy's force was principally Cavalry well mounted, and no opportunity offered of cutting them up in any great number. Our casualties were small. On the 18th May, it is reported that our forces under the Commander-in-chief attacked the rebels at Hatara and Bunnee, near Shahjehanpore, fighting lasted till night, and we had possession of their entrenchments. On the 22nd May, 900 rebels with three guns, under Abudoola Khan, Akbur Khan, and Baboo Ramnarain, Vakeel of Choundousa, were at Islain Nuggur, threatening Choundossie and Merowlee. On the Commander-in-chief proceeding to Futtighur, Brigadier-General Jones was charged with the operation of driving the enemy out and destroying Mohundee. He had pursued them nine or ten miles.

Shahabad.—General Lugard's force attacked (the late) Koer Sing's force, at Dilowa, on the 9th May, and took Jugdespore on the 10th instant. Umur Sing (Koer Sing's brother) was reported to be dying. On the 11th May, Colonel Carfield's force attacked the rebels under Umur Sing, on the skirts of the Jugdespore jungle, near Peroo, defeated them with loss, and burnt several villages. The enemy retired into the jungle.

Saugor.—The rebel Râjâs of Shahghur and Banpore are reported to be close to Shahghur; the former it is said has petitioned for life and subsistence, or otherwise he says he must plunder until he meets death; he promises to do nothing until he gets a reply. The Political Agent has got guns and troops from the Bizaar Rajah to aid him; this must have been about the 12th or 13th May. On the 14th May, all was still right, and 150 Native Infantry, with supplies, was about to be sent into the fort of Shahghur. Lullutpore was said to be in the hands of the rebels, and the Jhansi dâk had been cut off. The Rajah of Banpore was still sixteen miles from Shahghur. On the 17th May, it was reported that Chunda, Lullutpore, and Tal Behut were in the hands of the rebels; the dâks had been cut off. The Shahghur Rajah was still quiet.

ARRIVED here this morning in two forced marches, from Shahjehanpore. I left Brigadier-General Jones at that place, with orders to attack the insurgents and destroy Mohundee. He is there to-day, having driven the rebels nine or ten miles yesterday; but the latter were too nimble for him to be able to effect much loss in them. Would your Lordship tell me if there is any cover for the officers and establishment of the great departments of the army at Allahabad? The officers, with their clerks, form a very considerable body, and have now been exposed for a long time. Here they can find accommodation.

Camp, Calpee, May 23, 1858.

CALPEE has fallen. Yesterday the rebels attacked in great force, and with utmost determination, my front and right flanks at my camp, Golowlie, on the Jumna. My right front was hard pressed, but I brought up the Camel Corps, charged them with the bayonet, and put their left to complete flight. My whole line then moved forward, and the rout became general. Calpee being their last stand, the sepoy had sworn by the waters of the Jumna to die or to destroy my force. This morning I marched from Golowlie against Calpee, the rebels were panic struck and fled with great precipitation after firing a few shots, leaving me master of the town and fort of Calpee. I sent Cavalry and Horse Artillery in pursuit. The officer commanding the pursuit reports that he quickly came up with the rebel sepoy, killed great numbers, and took all their guns and ammunition.

Colonel Maxwell shelled the fort and town from the opposite side of the Jumna for fifteen hours, with great effect.

Hyderabad, May 1858.

I HAVE this day addressed the following message to the Governor of Bombay:—
 "The Aurungabad district is reported much disturbed, and the Hyderabad force, Arabs, and Rohillas, have assembled and plundered the large towns of Dulnee Chuckeel and Nundwa. Jaulnah should be reinforced immediately with a wing, or if that cannot be spared, two companies of Europeans and two guns. We can spare no troops from this. There are houses there that can be used as barracks, if the accommodation of the European Horse Artillery barracks are insufficient. I have ordered as many of Beatson's Horse as are ready for service, to march on Jaulnah, also a reinforcement of artillery for Aurungabad. The Scindia districts of Nagpore are disturbed."

NO news-letters have been received at Gwalior from Sir Hugh Rose's camp for five days. The communications, it is said, are stopped by parties of rebels. The news-writer from Gwalior reports that the rebels have taken Tal Behut in Chundeyrea, and have attacked the thannah at Mhow. The country around Jhansi appears to be in a disturbed state. Raheem Ally's band, which lately crossed the Doab, reached Indoorkee on the 18th instant, and were well received by the rebel Koer Dowlut Sing.

Our dak is cut off, and I know nothing of Sir Hugh Rose's movements, nor of Brigadier McDuff's. Intelligence by hurkaru that Tantia Topee, with a large force, has slipped past Sir Hugh Rose, and is coming this way. By the last accounts, Shahghur Rajah quiet. I hope that ere this 150 men and supplies have reached Shahghur. I must prepare to be ready to send families into the fort here.

The Shahghur Rajah sends a petition to Sir Robert Hamilton, praying for life and subsistence, or he must plunder till he meets death. He promises to do nothing till the answer arrives. This gives time. There is little doubt but that the Political Agent, Mr. Thomson, has got guns and troops from Bijour Rajah to aid him, but he was absent from Shahghur, and nothing positively known.

Brigadier-General Jones effected his junction with me on the 6th, having, on the morning of that day, attacked the town from the Mooradabad side, and taken a considerable portion of it. He marches to-morrow with a strong column to the relief of Shahjehanpore, where the right wing of the 82nd Regiment has been besieged since my advance on Bareilly. The relief of that garrison will be effected by the 10th or 11th. I shall be detained here for some days longer.

I HAVE the honor to transmit, for your information, a further narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from the information received from the authorities in those districts.

Inclosure 1 in No. 17.

Narrative of Events dated May 31, 1858.Allahabad, May 31, 1858.

Bundelcund.—A flying column from Sir H. Rose's force was sent on the 24th May in further pursuit of the Calpee rebels. On the 26th instant Sir H. Rose reports that large quantities of powder and ordnance has been discovered in a subterraneous magazine in the fort of Calpee. Four foundries for making cannon were also discovered in the town. Colonel Robertson, with a flying column, is following up the rebels to Shurghur.

Colonel Smith, commanding a brigade of the Rajpootana field force, and who was sent to protect Jhansi, marched on the 21st May against Chunderree, which was evacuated by the rebels on the 27th.

On the 25th May Major Middleton's force crossed the Jumna, and took possession of Humeerpore without resistance.

In a report dated 31st May, Sir H. Rose reports, that the troops sent in pursuit of the Calpee rebels have taken eight guns, and killed about 500 or 600 men. The pursuit was checked in consequence of the very great heat. Sir H. Rose likewise mentions that fifteen guns were taken in the fort, and several standards belonging to the Gwalior Regiments and Kotah Contingents. Also that a box had been found, containing important correspondence of the Rane of Jhansi, and which throws great light on the principal authors of the revolt. The rebels are said to be quite disheartened and disorganized.

Cawnpore.—Intelligence has been received, dated the 28th, that some rebels who entered the district were unable to cross the Ganges between Bitheor and Bilhour, and have gone back towards the Jumna. The Rajah of Kupoorthala was at Urwul, on the 28th instant, with 5,000 men, 1,200 of whom are Cavalry. On the 29th May the rebels were reported to be some thousands strong, with eight guns, at Sheorajpore Ghaut, on the Ganges, and had crossed and were crossing into Oude. Major Middleton's column was at Mohor, on the Grand Trunk Road, on the 30th instant; and Brigadier Carthew had marched for the same place, from Futtypore, with a force of Sikhs and Madras Sepoys, with two guns; and 80 Europeans on camels, some Cavalry, and two Horse Artillery guns had been sent from Cawnpore to join him. The Rajah of Kupoorthala, with his force, arrived at Cawnpore, on the 30th May, and was to leave for Oonao, in Oude, on the following morning.

Futtyghur.—On the 28th May, 5,000 rebels crossed the Kallee Nuddce, and attacked Kaimgunge on the 29th instant, but were beaten off. They were crossing the Ganges during the night. A force of Cavalry had been sent after them.

Goruckpore.—About the 26th May, a force of mutinous sepoys, with a horse battery crossed the Gogra at Betwa, and were joined by Mahomed Hussein, and 1,500 men from Tanda. The united force was going to attack Maun Sing, who has asked for aid. The Begum has also sent six regiments to attack him from the west, and they have crossed the river twenty miles above Fyzabad. The town and tchelsee of Banda were plundered on the same day. Some mutineers, and four guns, are at Amorah.

Gwalior.—The rebels under Tantia Topee, numbering 5,000 or 6,000 men, with nine guns, have crossed the river Scinde, near Indoorkee, and threaten an attack on Gwalior. Scindia's small force had fallen back from the borders, and a speedy advance of our troops on Gwalior is urged, and will take place. On the 29th May the above rebels were within twelve coss of Gwalior. Scindia had sent out two regiments of Infantry, 1,000 Horse, and eighteen guns to the Morar cantonments, to oppose them, and intended commanding the force himself.

Hyderabad.—Beatson's Horse march for Jaulna on the 20th May. One squadron of European Cavalry, two companies of European Infantry, and half a battery of European Artillery, have likewise been ordered there from the Bombay Presidency.

Rohilcund.—The rebels were attacked and defeated near Shahjehanpore on the 24th May; they retired on Mohundee, in Oude, which place has been taken by our troops. The Moulvie, Seeakut Alli, is reported to have attacked and plundered Bilgram.

Dara Shikoh, and Hajee Shikoh, two princes of the Delhi family, were captured on the 28th May, in the Moradabad district.

Shahabad.—Sir E. Lugard attacked the rebels at Dulipore on the 27th May, and recaptured the two guns which had been taken from the Arrah detachment. No loss on our side.

I THINK it would be very advisable for General Whitlock to send detachments to Humeerpore, which is evacuated, to hold it. Major Middleton is going to cross over to Humeerpore; but he thinks he has not troops enough to hold his own. A subterranean magazine has been discovered in the fort, it contains 500 barrels of powder, and immense quantities of ordnance. We found in the town and fort four foundries and manufactories of cannon, and one 18-pounder brass gun, one brass 8-inch mortar, and two brass 9-pounder guns, all made in these manufactories. Colonel Robertson, with a flying column, is following up the rebels to the fort of Sheerghur. I am trying to make a bridge of boats across the Jumna. The rebels tried to carry away their iron 18-pounder gun, but we took it; the troops are getting much healthier.

Sir.

Military Department, Allahabad, June 14, 1858.

I AM directed by the Governor-General to transmit, for the information of the Court of Directors, a narrative of events in the disturbed districts, compiled from the information received from the authorities in those districts.

I have, &c.

R. J. H. BIRCH, Colonel.

Inclosure 1 in No. 18.

Narrative of Events dated June 14, 1858.

Allahabad, June 14, 1858.

Agra.—On the 3rd June the 3rd European Regiment, a Light Field Battery, Mead's Horse, and some heavy guns, left Agra for Dholepore, to co-operate with Sir Hugh Rose's force against Gwalior. The Maharajah of Gwalior intends to join Sir H. Rose's force.

Ghazeepore.—Intelligence, dated 11th June, reports that 300 or 400 of Ummer Singh's rebels had crossed the Ganges and gone towards Russerah; and that two guns had been dug up at Ghamur. Brigadier Douglas' force arrived at Ghamur (fourteen miles west of Buxar), on the 11th June, and burnt it, the villagers having openly sided with the rebels. Some of the enemy were killed and others pursued to Sherepore Ghaut, but Ummer Sing, with the principal part of his force, had left Ghamur previously. Brigadier Douglas' force returned to Buxar on the 12th instant. On the 13th June the district of Ghazee-pore was reported to be entirely disorganized; almost every thana and Tehsildaree burnt. Bulliah was about to be attacked, the Kurruntadhee stud depôt was threatened, and all the Government mares and stallions had been seized by the rebels. Ummer Sing's force is said to have recrossed the Kurrunnassa into Shahabad.

Gwalior.—On the 7th June, a report had reached the rebels of the advance of the Seepree Brigade, and, on the 8th instant, of the arrival of the greater portion of the Calpee column at Indoorkee. No supplies, up to the above date, had been put into the fort. On the same date, the rebel troops at Gwalior had been paid three months' pay, and received two months' pay as a reward. A Regiment of Infantry, 600 horse, and 19 guns, were also sent to watch the British force at Indoorkee. On the 11th instant, it was reported that Rao Ramkishur, the deposed Minister of Dholepore, had joined the rebels, and it is also stated that the Seepree Brigade had reached Mahona Burragaon, but this requires confirmation. Intelligence from Agra, dated 13th June, mentions that desertions have been frequent from the rebel troops since they received their pay; that Tantia Topce is with a force at Seegowlie, about six coss from Gwalior, watching the advance of our force. A regiment and four guns had been posted at Jeengunge, and pickets of horse along the Agra Road. The principal resistance, it is supposed, will be at the Lushkur. Sir H. Rose reports, from the banks of the Phooj, dated 13th June, that ill-will is said to have arisen between the Banda, Calpee, and Bareilly troops, and those of Scindia, caused by the former having taken their guns from the latter. The rebels have not left Gwalior to oppose the passage of the Scinde river by Colonel Robertson and Brigadier Stuart. 14th. Information just received that the detachment, with guns posted at Jeengunge (above mentioned), are a portion of Scindia's body guard, which escaped from the flight of the 1st instant, and have remained faithful. The latest from Gwalior confirms the report of dissension between Scindia's troops and the rebels, the latter having, in consequence, moved out of the Lushkur and encamped under the neighbouring hills.

Mynpoorie.—On the 11th June, Tej Sing, the Rajah of Mynpoorie, surrendered himself.

Agra, June 10, 1858.

FROM Gwalior the news is to the evening of the 7th. Report has reached the rebels of the advance of the Seepree Brigade being ordered on the 8th instant, of the arrival of the greater portion of the Calpee column at Indoorkee.

There had been a discussion about retiring to the fort in case of a reverse or retreating. The latter, it is said, was decided, and Kotah was named. The intelligence on three successive days is the same, that no measures had been taken to put supplies into the fort. Six or seven guns had been mounted on the fort, where it commands the approaches to the Lushkur and Phoolbagh. All well at Jeypore on the 8th and Bhurt-pore on the 9th. The European Regiment, 3rd, with light battery, Meade's Horse, and heavy guns, left Agra last evening for Dholepore.

This message will be repeated to Sir J. Lawrence.

The deposed Minister of Dholepore, Rao Ramkishur, is said to have joined the rebels. It is also stated that the Secpree Brigade has reached Mahona Burragaon, on the road to Gwalior. This requires confirmation. This is repeated to Sir J. Lawrence.

THE crossing of the rebels at Chachuckpore, reported yesterday by the Tehsildar Syndpore, turns out incorrect. I do not know exactly where they are, but report says that they have gone south.

Brigadier Douglas' force arrived at Ghamur yesterday, and burned it, the village having openly sided with the rebels. Some of the enemy killed, and others pursued to the Sherepore Ghaut. The force returns to Buxar to-day. Mishan Sing, Koer Sing's Lieutenant, was blown away from a gun at Sasseram four days ago.

THE reports which I have received from Brigadier Stuart and Lieutenant-Colonel Robertson from the other side of the Scinde river, represent, in a more favourable light, the state of affairs at Gwalior. Ill-will, it is said, had arisen between the rebels from Banda, Calpee, and Bareilly, and Scindia's treacherous troops, which is caused by the former having taken their guns from the latter. The rebels, although in possession of a great amount of artillery, have now left Gwalior to oppose the passage of the Scinde river by Colonel Robertson and Brigadier Stuart.

NOTHING of special interest from Gwalior after issue of pay to the troops. Descriptions have been frequent. Tantia Topce is with a force at Seegowlic, about six coss from Gwalior, watching the advance of the British force. A regiment with four guns has been posted at Jeengunge, and pickets of horse along the Agra Road. The Lushkur is evidently the point where the rebels will make their principal resistance. A plan of it is being prepared with the fullest practicable details for transmission. Brigadier Showers has arranged with Dinkee Rao for an escort in communication with an aid of his most trustworthy followers. He will depart without notice. All well at Jeypore on the 10th, and at Bhurtpore 12th instant. Telegraph working with Dholepore. This has been repeated to Sir J. Lawrence.

Agra, June 14, 1858.

COLONEL SMITH, commanding the Scepre Brigade, has received your telegram, of the 3rd instant, sent by cossid, and was to move towards Gwalior without delay. Scindia and his Minister left Agra for Dholepore last night; Captain Meade escorts them to Sir Hugh Rose's camp. The detachment, with guns at Jingardee, on the road from Dholepore to Gohud, proves to be a portion of Scindia's body-guard, which escaped from the fight on the 1st June, and has remained faithful. The latest information from Gwalior states, that there has been great dissension between the rebels and Scindia's troops, and that the former, in consequence, has moved out of the Lushkur, and encamped under the neighbouring hills. This is from Banker of Gwalior to Dholepore, and, if true, indicates preparation for flight.

SAMUELLS reports from Patna, last evening:—"I believe there is no foundation for Richardson's report of the invasion of Chupra. I have stopped the dispatch of troops. Arrah rebels are at Belgaum, burning, plundering, and murdering. Rattray will take with him two small guns, recovered by General Lugard." Money, from Gya, reports: "Last evening, a small band of mutineers and budmashes came to the jail at 2 o'clock and relieved the prisoners. Nujecbs made no resistance. Nothing has been burnt or plundered; town quiet.

"I sent for safety, on Thursday, 156 prisoners to Sherghotty, under 50 Nujecbs. Yesterday, near Sherghotty, prisoners and Nujecbs combined, shot the Jemadar, and went off. I do not know how many prisoners have remained or how many Nujecbs were faithful.

THE Baie's troops at Sojan, 130, and 150 Horse, mutinied for arrears of pay. They say they are five months in arrears. They have also seized the magazine, with the guns. I am anxious about Mundesore; the Sarsoo Baboo Ajida has some 2,000 men. Baboo Ajida's brother has joined the rebels in Gwalior; a flying column, stationed at Indore, joined them: have a wonderful effect in preserving peace of Malwa. A minister of Holkar's concurs with me.

(Telegraphic.)

Agra, June 15, 1858.

THE Rajah of Gwalior and his followers arrived at Dholepore yesterday, all safe. There is no news of interest from Gwalior. The rebels have gained courage by the advance of Sir Hugh Rose's force being delayed. Some anxiety has been caused by their moving two regiments and six guns to Sookoorsda, about seven miles from the Chumbul, opposite the junction of Dholepore with the Kerowlee. State all well at Jeypore on 13th and Bhurtpore 14th instant.

THE native news from Gwalior, and by telegraph from Dholepore, is as follows:— All, or a portion of Sir H. Rose's force reached Sepowlee on the 14th: the rebel force seemed disinclined for a contest, and there were many desertions. The Sceprece Brigade was at Shoorpoora on the 10th, and was to be at Mahona on the 11th. Later accounts say that several of the rebels have fled from Gwalior towards Shoorpoora on the Kotah border. All well at Bhurtpore, Tezpore, and Kurrowlee, by to-day's post.

N.B.—This has been sent to Sir J. Lawrence.

THE Dewan Dunkar Rao, through Captain Mead, reports the Sceprece force to have occupied the fort of Kimutghur, twenty miles south of Gwalior, after a skirmish, in which the enemy were defeated, and fled to the Lushkur. Sir Hugh Rose's force had reached Sepowlee, fifteen miles from Gwalior. Scindia's troops were deserting in great numbers from the Lushkur to rejoin the Maharajah, and were collecting at Hingona. They had been ordered to move to Jowra, on the old Bombay road, and intercept fugitives. Tantia Topees' intention is to retreat towards Kotah; information has been sent of this to Jeypore, for communication to the authorities at Rajpootana.

Agra, June 18, 1858.

SEITH AMEERCHUND BUTTYA, Scindia's father's treasurer, is well known to have been the receiver of the plundered valuables of the officers of the Gwalior Contingent. He has now joined in the plunder of Scindia's treasure, and has sent off fifteen camel-loads of plunder, with about 100 of his followers, to Byranzur, in the Bhekaneer States. From the route taken, the party will probably proceed through the Jeypore State. Captain Eden has been written to, but the political authority of Bhekaneer might also be instructed to take requisite measures. The proceedings of this man have been closely watched, and the intelligence is reliable. From Dholepore, Scindia had passed over seven coss of his journey without any kind of obstacles. Heavy firing was heard last night in the direction of the Morar cantonments.

The Secretary to the Government, Calcutta, to the Secretary to the Government with the Governor-General.

Calcutta, June 18, 1858.

THE rebels left the jungles on the 14th, on their way up Tekaree. General Lugard was on his way to Jeral, and was requested by the Commissioners to cross the Soane at Urwul, as soon as possible.

On the 15th, the thannah at Bickram, sixteen miles from Patna, was burnt by the rebels, and the Jemadar escaped to Jubbulpore. On same day, rumour reached Sasseram that Captain Rattray had been attacked, and had killed Ummer Sing and followers, but this is not confirmed.

Yesterday General Lugard resigned from bad health, and Colonel Longden was to cross the Soane that morning in pursuit of the rebels who burnt the thannah, and had gone to the south.

Yesterday evening Mr. Money reported that the rebels are spreading over the eastern part of Behar, plundering and burning, but were not then at Tekaree, or near Gya.

Two companies of the Madras Rifles left Sheorghotty for Gya yesterday, and the two companies in rear have been directed to push on.
